DESMOND AND KIELY, TARGET OF GRAND JURY

Captains, Sergeants and Patrolmen Summoned to Tell of Alleged Oppression.

GORDON TO TESTIFY

PANEL GAMES PAY WELL

Patrolman Church, Who Raided Gamblers and Was Reduced, Is Called.

Six captains, four sergeants and a patrolman and a former detective—Andrew Gordon, negro, who testified concerning police politics before the Board of Police Commissioners—have been subpenaed to appear before the grand jury Monday afternoon to furnish information for the grand jury's investigation of alleged oppression by Chiefs Kiely and Desmond in the Police Department.

The men subpenaed are: Capt. William Young of Soulard Street Station and Capt. James Johnson of Carr Street Station, both mentioned to succeed Kiely, Johnson being Kiely's successor as Captain of Carr Street Station; Capt. George Pickel of North Market Street Station, night Chief of Police under Chief Campbell; Capt. George McNamee of the Mounted District, Capt. Patrick Gaffney of Dayton Street Station, Capt. Edmund Creecy of Magnolia Avenue Station, Sergt. Louis Nolte, formerly of Central District, now of Manchester avenue; Sergt. M. R. Fay, formerly of Central District, now of Dayton street; Sergt. Sidney Sears, the department's crack shot; Patrolman Thomas Church, former Sergeant of Central District, now patrolman in Baden, and Gordon.

Sergt. James McNamara of the Deer Street District, another of the officers summoned to appear before the grand jury Monday afternoon, was formerly in the Carr Street District, under Capt. Johnson.

It is said that McNamara was active in trying to suppress the playing of a species of poker called "stuts" and that he was successful in suppressing all of the gamekeepers except one who seemed to have protection from those higher up. There was a strong sentiment against him among the gamblers at the time he was transferred.

Circuit Attorney Sager declined to say what line of information was to be obtained from the men summoned, but it is believed that the men will give testimony regarding alleged oppression in office on the part of their superiors.

To Ask About "Outside Pulls."

They will probably be asked about orders which they may have received not in strict accord with police business; whether they have received orders from political sources; whether they have been interfered with in the discharge of their duties; whether they have suffered from "outside pudds."

Policeman Church was once considered the best sergeant on the force. He is now doing "invalid" duty as a desk policeman in Baden. When gambling was at its height in St. Louis Church raided games said to have been backed by a certain well-known turfman. When Harry Hawes gained control of the Police Department this turfman is reported to have said: "I'll get your star."

Church was made a desk sergeant, as were others said to have incurred the turfman's ill will. Later a resolution passed the Police Board reducing the rank of desk sergeants to that of desk patrolmen, and the salary from $115 to $90. Church was shifted about, until he finally landed in Baden.

Sergt. Sears, who has borne that title but a short time, being promoted for merit, is said to have refused an opportunity to enter the Detective Department at increased salary, when he was a patrolman. For good work on the levee he was sent to Chief of Detectives Desmond's office for duty as a special officer and told that he would be promoted to the rank of detective.

Declined Detective Job.

Sears, it is said, asked that it be not done.

"Put me back in a uniform," he is said to have requested. "I've had enough of the Detective Department. I've been kept around here with nothing to do since I've been a special officer, and I've seen how it is managed. One has to be a 'pet' of Chief Desmond or he is nothing at all. I want to go back to work."

Sergt. Nolte and Sergt. Fay were on duty in Central District when Folk was Circuit Attorney. They were regarded as supporters of Folk and admirers of his methods of enforcing the laws. Friends say they once refused to carry out instructions which they thought detrimental to the Circuit Attorney. They are now in outer districts.

Panel Houses Protected.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday Detective Gordon said:

"Along Chestnut street, from Twenty-first street west, there are dozens of panel houses, and every one of them pays certain men $10 a week for protection. In addition to one-third of what

WARM WINDS BRING RAIN

Clouds and Wet Weather in Prospect for St. Louis.

DID ANYONE SEE ROLLY WELLS AT THE FREE BRIDGE MEETING SATURDAY NIGHT? EH!

In Saskatchewan over the Canadian border the mercury has dropped so far below zero that it is thought to be lost. In St. Louis nothing worse than a fall of rain is in prospect.

A storm that extends over the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast, causing ran and snow in the mountain states and those directly east of the mountains, will move over into Kansas within the next 24 hours, causing rain in St. Louis and vicinity.

It is warmer in the South and Southwest. Up the Mississippi Valley and in the East the weather is cooler.

DOCTOR SAYS HEIRESS WED BY CONTRACT

MERELY GAVE PROMISE

Relatives of Man She Married Later Say Nuptial Contract Binding.

Dr. Thomas A. Hopkins, a well-known practitioner, in his deposition Monday before Special Notary Franklin Miller, said that he was one of three persons in whose presence Mrs. Marie Fleming Everest Brown Eastes consented to become the wife of Oscar Elmo, a St. Louis traveling salesman, without the formality of a legal ceremony, at the Planters' Hotel in the autumn of 1899.

Dr. Hopkins said the other witnesses were John Duner, a barber at the Planters' Hotel, and a carriage driver named Ryan.

"I had known Elmo for some time prior to the ceremony," said the witness. "He asked me one day if I would come down to the Planters' Hotel. He said he htad made arrangements to marry a young lady at whose house he was staying.

"I supposed a minister would be on hand to solemnize the wedding. But I asked no more questions. Elmo was somewhat of a joker anyhow, and I thought if he was fooling me I would soon find it out.

"When I went to the hotel I found Elmo there. With him was his bride-to-be, Miss Magee.

"Shortly afterwards two other men came into the room.

"Elmo introduced them to me. One of them, he explained, was the barber who had shaved him a few minutes before, the other a coachman who had conveyed them to the hotel in a carriage.

"The ceremony was brief. Mr. Elmo took Miss Magee by the hand and said, 'I promise to take you for my lawful wife.'

"She answered, 'I take you for my lawful husband.'"

After the ceremony, Dr. Hopkins testified, they went into the cafe and had supper.

Whether they remained in the city to spend their honeymoon he could not say.

Four years after the alleged common-law marriage ceremony, Mrs. Eastes, then known in St. Louis society as Miss Marie Everest Magee, adopted daughter of Henry L. Magee, general superintendent of the Wabash Railroad, married Henry Brown, nephew of a famous Denver hotel proprietor. Brown died a year ago, and a $350,000 estate of which he came into possession was awarded to his widow, who had sued him for divorce shortly before. She has since wedded again.

The present proceeding is based on a petition, filed in Denver by Brown's stepmother, Mrs. Sarah Johnson Brown, to the effect that Mrs. Eastes has no right to the estate, because of the alleged common-law marriage.

It is contended that the second ceremony was rendered void by the first, and that common-law marriages are legal in Missouri.

Mrs. Brown is represented in St. Louis by Johnson, Houts, Marlatt & Hawes, while Attorney Morton Jourdan is acting here in behalf of Mrs. Eastes.

Hearing Is Private.

When Dr. Hopkins, the first witness, was placed on the stand at 10 o'clock Monday morning, Mr. Jourdan requested that the hearing be conducted in private. The plaintiff's counsel offered no objections and Notary Miller required all except witnesses to leave the room.

Dr. Hopkins was on the stand an hour and a half.

He related in detail the circumstances under which Mrs. Eastes agreed to be known as the wife of Mr. Elmo.

Suit Showed Marriage.

Mrs. Eastes is not now in St. Louis. In the paper filed in connection with her application for letters of administration on the estate of Brown, Mrs. Eastes disclosed for the first time that, soon after Brown's death, she had married J. Clark Eastes, who gave East St. Louis as his home.

Mrs. Eastes' St. Louis relatives insist they know nothing of the alleged common-law marriage.

Mrs. Magee, her mother, said she knew Elmo, but that he was merely a friend of the family. He is about 40 years old.

Elmo went to Isle of Pines, Cuba, two years ago, but returned to St. Louis recently, and will, it is understood, testify in the hearing.

FOLK ORDERS GATLING GUNS FOR STATE PEN

RAYMOND CONFESSES.

Vaughn Alone, He Says, Knows How the Weapons Got Inside Jail.

REWARD IS OFFERED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 27.—After a long conference between Gov. Folk and Warden Hall an order was placed by wire for a supply of gatling guns which will be placed so as to sweep all of the approaches to the prison and in accordance with Gov. Folk's expressed determination they will be manned by officers who will use them.

The idea is to have the gatlings so dispersed about the prison walls that any number of convicts can be swept away in the event the walls are destroyed by explosives. It is believed that the presence of the guns will have a deterring effect on future attempts at riot and escape.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 27.—As the result of a morning of hard work by Gov. Folk Sunday in sweating the convicts who attempted to escape from the Missouri Penitentiary last week, a complete confession was obtained from Edward Raymond, one of the convicts. Raymond was only a follower of Vaughn in the desperate enterprise and had not been taken completely into the leader's confidence, so that he was unable to tell how the weapons and the explosives had reached the interior of the Penitentiary, but he told all he knew and added much to what had been known of the plans of the conspirators.

The men, since they were brought back to the Penitentiary, have been kept in solitary confinement. No one, except officials of the institution, are permitted to talk to them. Gov. Folk has had frequent interviews with them. Sunday he spent the better part of the morning in the cells of the men. Vaughn preserved a sullen, scowling silence under the most persistent questioning.

Raymond Confesses.

Raymond told all he knew, and Ryan talked sufficiently to convince Gov. Folk that Raymond was telling the truth.

Raymod told Gov. Folk that none of the men except Vaughn knew how the revolvers, cartridges and explosives were smuggled into the prison. He said that the plan had been concocting for a month or more, and Vaughn told the others all along that he would provide the means of getting out.

Raymond declared that he, Blake and Ryan were in entire ignorance of the presence of the weapons until they met in the shoeroom and Vaughn unearthed the deadly contents of the two boxes hidden away under the pile of sole leather. It was the plan originally to use the explosive upon the wall, but Vaughn expressing doubt as to the power of the stuff to break the heavy masonry, that plan was abandoned and one to capture Deputy Warden See and force the wagon gates was hastily agreed upon.

Planned Engine Capture.

Raymond further informed Gov. Folk that the plan was to get to the railroad yards and capture a locomotive. This was the reason they made direct to the tracks. Blake was a railway engineer, but he was shot down before an engine was reached, and the plan had to be changed again.

Ryan told Gov. Folk that the supplies might have been brought into the prison by freight or by express with goods brought into the prison, but, like Raymond, he denied any knowledge of where they came from.

Through Raymond's confession one of the humorous features of the tragic episode became public. The Governor asked Raymond how they secured the gun from Jail Officer Clarence Fromme, who was on duty in the street directly in front of the gate that was blown open.

Guard "Flunked" Abjectly.

Raymond smiled broadly and declared that it was the funniest thing he had ever seen.

"When we came out of the gate," he said, "Fromme could have potted the whole gang of us with his shotgun, which was loaded with buckshot. He didn't fire, but dropped his gun and started hotfoot up the street. Some of us fired, but with no intention of hitting him, and he fell down crying that he was shot. As we passed him, someone got his pistol, and each of us gave him a kick as we passed by. He was moaning all the time that he was wounded and dying. I couldn't help laughing, it was so funny, and to think how easy it would have been for him to have got us all with that shotgun if he had pulled down on us."

After the convicts went by Fromme hurried to a nearby house and telephoned to a doctor, saying that he was badly wounded, and to hurry for he was getting weak from loss of blood. He was entirely uninjured, as he had not received a scratch.

Reward Is Offered.

Gov. Folk today issued a proclamation offering a reward of $300 each for all persons who assisted in smuggling arms, ammunition and explosives into the prison to the convicts who tried to escape. Those who did it are guilty of murder, and will be dealt with as severely as the law allows.

Gov. Folk delivered an oration at the funeral of Officer John Clay Sunday afternoon, in which he said:

Monument Suggested.

"I want the State of Missouri, through the next General Assembly, to erect a monument here and at Clinton, where the courageous old Confederate, who gave his life for his State, is now being laid to rest, and on each of these monu-

ONE KILLED; 12 HURT IN BLAST

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 27.—One person was killed and 12 were injured, none seriously, as the result of blasting rock at Ninth street and Grand avenue, in the center of the business district, where an excavation is being made for an office building.

The dead:

ANDREW KNIGHT, aged 30, a laborer, was crushed beneath a 200-pound rock that was hurled into the air by a blast and instantly killed.

The injured were men and women who were watching the progress of the work. Their hurts consist of cuts and slight bruises. Dozens of windows in the vicinity were broken. The upheaval resulted from a too heavy charge of giant powder being used.

LEHRBERG HERE OUT ON BOND

Accused of Defrauding Business Men, He Denies Guilt of Forgery.

INSURANCE CO COMPLAINS

Manager Says Lehrberg, in Its Name, Secured Big Sums From Many.

Charles K. Lehrberg, arrested in Cincinnati Saturday afternoon on a telegraphed request from St. Louis, where a warrant had been issued against him, charging forgery, was brought to St. Louis Sunday night by Detective Schmidt, and is now at liberty on bond.

The warrant was sworn to by G. H. Wilson of 2610 North Tenth street, who says he lost $33.75 by Lehrberg's alleged forgery. The prosecution is being made by State Manager Finney of the Interstate Life Assurance Co. The name of this company Lehrberg is alleged to have used in fraudulent transactions by which he obtained thousands of dollars from St. Louis business men.

Dr. Pinckney French of the Missouri-Lincoln Trust Co., was a witness against Lehrberg when the warrant was applied for, while many other wealthy business men are named as victims of his alleged insurance scheme.

"I am not guilty of forgery," Lehrberg told Detective Schmidt, "and I can straighten out everything else."

When he reached St. Louis Monday night, bond for him had already been arranged and he was taken to Judge Withrow's home from detective headquarters. Joseph Zanone furnished bond.

FOUND AT THEATER AFTER FIRING THE DEADLY SHOT

Says He Is Sorry His Stepparent Is Dead and Wishes He Had Only Wounded Him —Fled From Home After the Shooting, Going to a Show.

Mrs. Matilda Curtis justifies her 17-year-old son, Fred Rogers, in killing Harry Curtis, her husband, and the stepfather of the boy. Standing in the kitchen of her home at 113 North Nineteenth street, East St. Louis, Monday, on the spot where her husband died in her arms Sunday evening after being shot near the heart by her son, she raised her right hand dramatically and, her voice tremulous with emotion, she exclaimed:

"As sure as there is a God in heaven the boy had to do what he did. My husband is gone and I wouldn't say anything against him that isn't the truth, but he would have killed Fred if Fred had not killed him."

The boy who is locked up at the East St. Louis Police Station says he acted in self-defense.

"I am not sorry that I shot him," he said. "I am sorry that he is dead and that I murdered him. I wish I had only wounded him so as to teach him a lesson."

Rogers was arrested Sunday night at the Broadway Theater, where he had gone with two companions after the shooting. He says that when he ran out of the house after firing the shot he thought it had not taken effect.

Stories Do Not Quite Agree.

The accounts given by the mother and son of the tragedy agree except that the boy says he was sitting on a chair when the shot was fired, and the mother says he had been borne to the floor by his stepfather. Mrs. Curtis did not hear the report of the revolver, however, and does not know exactly when it was fired.

Fred Rogers talked freely about the shooting. He said:

"I was knocking around Sunday afternoon with Bert Sarchett and Charley Fee. As we were going to the theater together in the evening I asked them to go home to supper with me. Charley was sitting at the kitchen table with me and Bert was sitting beside the door leading into the next room, playing the zither, when my stepfather came in.

"He had been to a shooting match and had his muzzle-loading shotgun with him. He began to fuss about the supper and said he wouldn't pay the grocery bills any more. I had left the table and sat down beside the door opening into the yard. I said to my mother that I was working and we wouldn't want for something to eat.

"He cursed me and shouted 'I'll kill you,' and rushed at me and grabbed me with both hands. I had a revolver in my righthand coat pocket. I had put it there the day before, intending to clean it. There were three cartridges in it. As he threw himself on me I jerked it out of my pocket and pulled the trigger. It was so close to my face that my right eye was powder burned.

Didn't Know Shot Hit Him.

"He staggered back and I got to my feet. He swore and raved and struck at me. One blow struck me on the shoulder. My mother got between us. I saw him start toward the middle room, as though to get his gun, and I ran out in the yard.

"I jumped over the fence into the street, as the gate was tied. The two boys had run out when the trouble began. They joined me and we ran down Nineteenth street to Division street and over to Eighteenth street and over Eighteenth street to the railroad tracks, down the tracks to Fifteenth street and Division avenue. The other boys stopped running before I had gone that far, but we met a little later.

"I asked them if they thought I had hit him. They said they didn't think so. One of them said he thought he heard the bullet strike the range.

"We decided we wouldn't say anything about it, and went to the show. I was sitting between the other two fellows when a policeman came and got me.

Mrs. Curtis, the widow of the dead man, and the mother of his slayer, said:

"I certainly acted in self-defense, but I wish I had only wounded him."

The Mother's Statement.

"My husband got up yesterday morning in an ugly humor. Before breakfast he went out to get a bottle of whisky. As he was leaving the house he ordered the boy and me not to eat breakfast until he got back. He said there would be trouble if we did. To avoid trouble we waited until he returned. When he came back he cursed both of us and threatened us. I got the boy out of the house as soon as I could, so that my husband would not harm him.

"My husband left the house after breakfast, and did not return until about 2:30 in the afternoon. I got dinner ready and told him to come and eat.

"He said he didn't want any of my dinners and didn't want anything to do with me.

"I said: 'Come on and drink a cup of coffee anyway.' He again refused and cursed me, and shortly after took his gun and left the house.

"When my son came home in the evening with his two friends I told him he had better wait for his supper until his father came home. He said he was going to the show and did not want to wait so I gave the boys their supper.

"Fred was still sitting at the table when my husband came in. I could see that he had been drinking. He began to swear and said he'd quit paying the grocery bills if we didn't wait meals for him.

"The boy could not not eat any more. He left the table and sat down by the door. He said, 'Never mind, Mamma, I'm working now and you won't starve as long as I've got a dollar.'

"My husband was standing by the table when the boy said that. He made a rush at Fred. I tried to get between them, but he threw me into the corner over the gasoline stove and grabbed Fred and hurled him to the floor and fell upon him.

"I heard him say, 'I am shot,' but I had not heard the shot and I had no idea that he had been shot. The boy got away from him and ran out of the room, calling back a warning to my husband not to hurt me while he was gone.

"My husband ran out after him into the back yard and out through the side gate into the street, where he fell, calling to Harry Thrift, who had come out of his house, that he had been shot. Harry told him he was mistaken and helped him into the house. Then we discovered that he had been shot and sent for a doctor. When he came he said my husband would have to be taken to the hospital. Before the ambulance came he died in my arms here on the kitchen floor."

Feared Boy Would Be Killed.

It was at this point in the recital that Mrs. Curtis raised her right hand and exclaimed: "As sure as there is a God in Heaven, the boy had to do what he did."

Continuing, she said: "I have long been afraid that my husband would kill the boy. He had threatened to do so time and again. It was with curses and threats to kill him that he rushed upon him in the kitchen. He was a very strong man and very violent when drinking. He could have crushed every bone in the boy's body. He has beaten me a hundred times. When Fred was only 7 years old my husband shot at him because he defended me with a poker and it was only a button on his coat that saved his life.

"The boy has always been good to me and gives me all his wages. I will testify for him and if there is any justice in the world he will be set free."

Curtis was 40 years old. He had latterly been employed as a teamster. Young Rogers is employed at a foundry.

The body of Curtis is at an undertaking establishment, where an inquest will be held Monday afternoon.

Saved Thanksgiving Dinner.

William Curran of 4922 Reber place is goiving thanks that he will have chicken for his Thanksgiving dinner. He is a member of No. 35 engine house, of Arsenal street and Sublette avenue, and has been feeding some of his last spring's roosters for some time. Sunday night at 10:30 his 17-year-old son, Joseph, a telephone operator in Central District Station, was aroused by the barking of his little dog, and, stepping to the window, he saw a man trying to get into the chicken house. Getting his pistol he commanded the intruder, a white man, to halnt. At the second shot the man either fell or stumbled, but before Curran could get to him he had escaped.

INNOCENTLY ADMIT IT

Disinclination to Take Cases Before the Juvenile Court.

Ruth Joyce, a beautiful, sweet-faced child, 10 years old, and her brother, Andrew Joyce, a handsome, manly boy of 14, with a face like a cameo and an air of guilelessness which commands sympathy, will have to stand trial in the Juvenile Court on a charge of shoplifting.

An information against them was issued Monday, and their case will present to Judge Bishop one of the most difficult problems which has been presented to the court since it was organized.

With money in their pockets to buy more than enough Christmas goods, they yielded to the temptation of a bewildering array of pretty things in a downtown store and filled a basket with toys and knick-knacks before they were caught.

Reluctantly, Manager H. E. Tolles of the Knox company, from whose store at 718 North Broadway the goods were taken, applied for a warrant, charging them with theft.

They will be tried Friday, and, if found guilty, may be sent to the detention department of the Industrial School for an indefinite period or for a stated time at the discretion of Judge Bishop.

Were Arrested Saturday.

Following their arrest Saturday they were held in the detention room at the Four Courts until they were closely questioned by Probation Officers McDonald and Dame.

Pending their trial they will be prisoners at the Industrial School, formerly known as the House of Refuge.

No more beautiful children have ever been charged with a crime in St. Louis. Little Ruth is small for her 10 years. She has a sweet, childish face, perfectly molded. Her hair is light brown and her eyes are blue. She might have stepped out of one of the fairy books which she is accused of stealing.

Wearing a dark brown picture hat with plumes and a brown velvet coat, trimmed with applique lace of ornate pattern and costly texture, she was in striking contrast to several other children who had been summoned to Juvenile Court.

She did not seem to realize the gravity of the charge against her and her brother. The boy also is above the average in personal appearance. He has the same regular features which characterize his sister.

The Girl's Story.

"Almost a whole year Andrew and I had been saving up money that had been given to us by persons who liked us. We had a dollar and a quarter, and we thought it would be nice to buy something for mamma. She needed cups and saucers worse than anything, and we went out Saturday afternoon to get them.

"We walked around downtown and looked at all the windows. We saw some cups and saucers in a window on Broadway and we went in the store. We bought the present for mamma and put it in the basket we had brought with us. After we got our bundle and paid for it nobody seemed to pay any attention to us.

"There were lots of people in the store and the clerks were very busy, so we just walked around and looked at all the pretty things. There was an awful lot of toys and dolls and ribbons. We didn't have enough money to buy everything we wanted. I thought maybe if we took it and went home with it mamma would pay for it and it would be all right. We put a lot of things in the basket and when we were going out a policeman took us."

The Boyf's Story.

The boy told the same story. "I don't know why we took those things," he said. "I guess we just couldn't help it."

The mother and stepfather of the children told the probationary officers that Ruth and Andrew had never stolen anything before, and begged that the prosecution be dropped.

H. E. Tolles, manager of the store from which the goods were taken, said:

"We do not like to prosecute these children, but we think it best for them that their case be heard by Judge Bishop, who will best be able to determine whether the theft was just a childish freak or whether they are under influences from which they should be freed. That they took the goods there is no doubt. They had their basket covered with a newspaper, and they showed great stealth in slipping the articles into it. The value of the stolen goods was about $5."

ACCUSES POLICE OF ILLEGAL SEARCH

Julius Bongner Jr. Says Police Chief's Son Invaded His Home.

Julius Bongner Jr. of 1239 South Eighth street, private watchman at City Hall, in applying for a warrant against Mrs. Blank of 1241 South Eighth street Monday, told a story of incivility which he says he met in the detective department when trying to learn on what authority his home had been searched by two detectives. Bongner charges Mrs. Blank with having circulated false rumors about himself and his wife.

He says that Mrs. Blank has told neighbors that he and his wife were "thieves," and that she has stopped people as they were entering his home, telling them to stay away for the sake of their reputation. He had paid no attention to the woman, he said, until Saturday, when, during his absence, Detectives Thomas Kiely—son of the Chief of Police—and John Murphy searched his home from top to bottom.

The detectives, when Mrs. Bongner asked to know their business at the house, said, according to the story told Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Thomas, when asking for the warrant:

"We are looking for stolen property. We have information that you are thieves, and have property secreted here."

"You may search the house from cellar to garret," Mrs. Bongner said, "but I'd like to know you're authority."

The detectives, Bongner says, displayed their badges.

Bongner said he went to Chief of Detectives Desmond and asked on what authority the search was made.

"We had information," he said Desmond replied.

"Where did you get it?" he asked.

"None of your business," he says Desmond answered.

Thomas said he would ask Desmond the same question and took the names of several witnesses furnished by Bongner.

IT COULDN'T CRY "HELP!"

A defenseless chewing gum machine standing in front of Williams' cigar shop, at 2800 Olive street, was attacked by a highwayman some time Sunday night and robbed of $1.50 in pennies. The highwayman used some hard substance with which he battered the form out of the machine.

Although the demolition of the chewing gum apparatus must have made some noise it was not loud enough to bring a policeman to the scene.

None of the gum was taken, owing to the fact that most of it was mixed up with the pieces of tin to which the machine had been reduced by the robber. Besides giving up gum and swallowing pennies the machine told fortunes.

they get. A panel house is a place where robberies are pulled off by means of a secret panel in the wall. I know the names of the men who get this money, and I am willing to give them to the grand jury or to the Police Board.

"If they really want to investigate the police and detective departments, let them find out what men outside the department—what politicians—ask for the assignment of certain patrolmen and detectives at certain precincts at every primary and election. Let them find out why the men on the force with reputations for recklessness and roughness are assigned to places where the politicians want rough work done, whether the officer belongs to that precinct or not.

"They can find out if they want to who was protecting a show all during the World's Fair opposite Union Station. Whenever they got a 'sucker' in the back of that place they turned the lights out and cleaned up. The men getting the money had a fight over it. It was commonly known to the detectives and police, and even to citizens in the neighborhood, that the place was protected and who was getting the money.

Mustn't Arrest All Crooks."

"No man can be a policeman in this town and stay right. He's got to protect certain criminals or he gets fired. The man who gets a place on the police or detective force and thinks that the more criminals he arrests the better the big men will think of him, is a fool. He's got to learn to be blind in both eyes when he sees certain crooks before they think well of him at headquarters.

"They can't reform the police and detective departments until they get rid of some of the big timber.

"I honestly believe Desmond is square, but I can't say that for some other big ones. Desmond is simply the mouse in the claws of certain politicians. He is kept blinded as to the corruption all around him. He really wants to see the crooks locked up and punished, but he is practically powerless because politics rules his department, whether he's willing or not.

"Every man in the police and detective departments knows that all these robberies and 'hold-ups' could be stopped easily enough. If the officers were to arrest every known thief or other crook he saw, without regard to whether he was protected by any politician, the burglaries and robberies would stop in two days. You don't have to catch those people in the act of robbing a man Just arrest them the first time you see them on the street, and let them know you will keep on arresting them even if you can't make a case, and they'll leave town.

Crooks Do Election Work.

"But if an officer goes up to a crook he will be told, 'You dare not touch me. So-and-so is back of me. So-and-so is always some politician who wants that crook to do dirty work on election day. Nobody but a crook will take a chance of doing that kind of work. His reward is the promise of immunity from arrest—and he gets it.

"I can give the board the names of the men who promise protection to criminals as a reward for election services. I am willing to give the names either to the board or to the grand jury.

"No detective in St. Louis ever goes into the territory north of Wash street and west of Jefferson avenue, or south of Chouteau and west of Jefferson avenues unless he has a special job from headquarters. It's easy enough for highwaymen and burglars to get in their work.

"Last election I contributed $16.35 to the campaign fund. I had to do it to keep my job. Every man on the police and detective departments had to give up his share."

Gordon was the first negro ever put on the Police Department payroll. He was promoted in August, 1903, and given a gold medal for the best arrest of the year—Joe Wright, whom he captured after a running duel for several squares, wounding the fugitive four times in the battle. He says that in five years' service he has made 969 arrests, 21 of them murderers, and has caught between 60 and 75 fugitives from justice and returned them to the cities from which they fled.

Stewart Doubts Gordon.

President Stewart of the Police Board, when told of Detective Gordon's charges, said that if any person would write him a letting stating that Gordon had made such charges, the board would investigate them "right down to the ground."

"In view of what has been shown about Gordon," President Stewart explained, "I do not take much stock in what he says. The board does not intend to waste time investigating charges that have nothing in them. But if there appears to be any ground for suspicion that the statements made by Gordon have basis in truth, they will be thoroughly probed. The board wants to do the sensible thing and the right thing."

President Stewart laughed heartily when told that Gordon said the board did not want to investigate graft charges against the police and detective departments. When told of the detective's charge that "panel houses" pay regular tribut to officers he grew grave.

"If any evidence is offered to the board that such a thing is going on, it will unquestionably be thoroughly investigated," he said.

"Gordon says high police officials forbid their men to arrest certain thieves and other crooks who are protected by politicians. What is the board's attitude toward this?" Mr. Stewart was asked.

"The board wants to know the facts if such things are going on. No matter who is responsible, if he is a member of either department and is guilty, either he will have to get out or I will."

ments I want inscribed the words, 'He died at the post of duty.'"

An 18-foot ladder was found Sunday evening by Otto Brown, a bartender, hidden in some willows close to the edge of the Missouri River and within 50 yards of the prison walls. It is possible that this was used in getting the box in which the pistols and explosives were packed over the wall.

Two New Witnesses.

Two men who were held up with the Deputy Warden, an incident not given out at the prison, have been found. They are Jacob Wegman and Theodore Porting, both residents of Loose Creek, Osage County, Mo. They were sitting in the Deputy Warden's office talking with a convict whom they knew, when the four convicts bent on escape appeared. Two of the latter shot and held up the Deputy Warden while the other two forced Wegman and Porter to hold up their hands and walk to the big iron gate.

The convicts told them they would not be harmed, but were wanted as a shield to prevent guards from firing upon them. Porting escaped when Officer Clay was shot, but Wegman was forced into the entrance and witnessed the killing of Capt. Allison and the two explosions which wrecked and blew open the outside steel door.

Gov. Folk has given out a statement acquitting Warden Matt Hall of all blame for the jail delivery. This sets at rest rumors that Hall would lose his place as a result of the episode.

"Breaks like that of Friday occur in prisons all over the country and are liable to happen wherever desperate and dangerous criminals are confined," said Gov. Folk.

Praises the Warden.

"Enough has already developed to show that no prison guard or official connived at the attempted escape. Warden Hall is a good, brave man, with a big heart. He has sought to treat the convicts as human beings, and, so far as I know, has dealt with them kindly, but firmly. The Penitentiary is the largest prison in the world. Every other large State has two or more prisons. There is always danger when several thousand convicts, many of them desperate, are confined in one place.

BURTON ASKS RETRIAL.

Exceptions to Verdict to Be Filed Wednesday.

Attorneys for United States Senator Joseph R. Burton filed Monday a motion for a new trial, thus taking the first step in the effort to overthrow the conviction obtained by the Government early Sunday morning, on the charge of unlawful acceptance of money for services rendered for the Rialto Grain and Securities Co. for appearance before the Postoffice Department.

The motion will be taken up Wednesday, when it is is anticipated that a detailed bill of exceptions will be filed. This will precede the passing of sentence by Judge Van Devanter, who has the choice, under the law, of imposing a fine or a jail sentence, or both.

DIXIE TUTTLE LETTER WRITER IS FINED $400

WEEPS OVER SENTENCE

WROTE OF RIVAL TEACHER

Miss Dixie Tuttle, pretty 17-year-old farmer's daughter of Mexico, Mo., charged with sending objectionable letters through the mails to Miss Eighty-one Turley and to others concerning Miss Turley, pleaded guilty in the United States District Court Monday and was fined $400 and costs.

The letters were written on account of Claude Sansbury, a young school teacher, who had paid attentions to both girls. He was the recipient of some of the letters.

When the fine was assessed, after her attorney had entered the plea of guilty in her behalf, she burst into tears.

Miss Tuttle came to St. Louis Monday morning accompanied by her father, Thomas Tuttle, and, when her case was called, her father was sitting by her side in the courtroom. She wore a large white hat, a white waist, a brown skirt and a tan coat.

Judge Finkelnburg read the indictment and asked Miss Tuttle what plea she wanted to make. She did not rise, but her attorney, George Robinson of Mexico, arose and said that a plea of guilty would be entered. He then made a plea for leniency.

HER FIRST OFFENSE.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that an offense has been committed here, but it is the first of any kind that has ever been committed by this girl. I have investigated carefully among her schoolgirl friends and others and have not been able to find anything to reflect on the character of this defendant prior to this offense. I ask that the Court will take this into consideration in fixing the punishment for her offense."

District Attorney Dyer said:

"Your Honor, I have looked into this very carefully because this young woman's position before the law appealed to me. The fact that she has come into court here and has stood before this bar and pleaded guilty is in itself a great punishment. I want to do all in my power to make it possible for her to retrieve her life. Until this offense was committed she was blameless. Still the offense must be punished in such a way as to show its gravity.

"The United States mails must not be contaminated. I recommend a fine of $400 and that the young woman be not imprisoned. I would be unwilling to plant a thorn in her path."

Judge Finkelnburg asked to see the letters. Attorney Robertson said:

"We concede that they were in violation of the law."

Miss Tuttle was then called before the bar.

Sobs Answering Judge.

"Did you write these letters," asked the Judge.

"I did," said Miss Tuttle, sobbing.

"Are you sorry?"

"I am."

"Do you think you did right?"

"No. I did wrong."

Miss Tuttle was weeping when Judge Finkelnburg announced the sentence.

"This is an unpleasant duty for me," said the Judge. "Your offense was more disgraceful than criminal, and was unworthy of a woman of your family standing. You will pay $400 fine and the costs of this proceeding.

Miss Tuttle, with her father, at once went to the Clerk's office and paid the fine and the costs, amounting to $5[illegible]. She will leave St. Louis for Mexico Monday night.

The maximum penalty for her offense is five years in the Penitentiary and $5000 fine.

BLOW SAFE AND WADE A RIVER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHAPMAN, Neb., Nov. 27.—Burglars last night dynamited the vaults of the State Bank of Chapman, and after securing all but 12 cents of the cash, escaped in the darkness, waded the treacherous quicksands of the Platte River, forded the current of stream and got away completely. The Sheriff and a posse are pursuing the robbers, but with small chances of overtaking them.

Bloodhounds have been sent from Lincoln to take up the trail on the south side of the river.

There were $5000 in the vault on Saturday evening and the robbers secured all but 12 cents.

This morning at 3 o'clock three separate explosions of dynamite occurred, and the whole town was awakened. Citizens hastened to the bank in time to see the robbers escape. Not a shot was fired by the people, and the robbers covered the crowd with their pistols as they backed away towards the Platte Rover.

A posse was quickly organized and gave chase. By lanterns the robbers were traced to the river, where they had taken desperate chances, and passed on a quicksand bar, which threatened to engulf them at each step. The channel of the river is three feet deep only, and the robbers waded this, escaping to the south side, where they again crossed the quicksands.

There is no bridge at Chapman, and the posse was forced to make a detour of 10 miles before taking up the trail of the robbers. If the bloodhounds can follow the scent, there will probably be a battle when the burglars are overtaken.

BOY FOOTPADS GET BOY'S FIRST WAGES

Victim Holds Coins Tight, but Rap on Knuckles Scatters Them.

The police have captured a confessed highwayman in the person of 13-year-old Romer Webber of 2832 North Broadway, held in the matron's detention room at Four Courts, until his accomplice, whose name the police have, is also arrested. The boys robbed Earl Thompson, aged 11, of 1415 Bremen avenue Saturday of the first day's wages he ever earned—40 cents.

According to the story Earl told the police, he worked all day Saturday distributing samples for a yeast company. At 4 p. m., on his way home, carrying the money, mostly nickels, in his hand, he stopped to watch boys playing marbles at the alley on Ninth between Branch and Palm streets.

Proceeding homeward, he says, he was followed by one of the marble-players, who called him to stop.

"How much you got?" the boy asked.

"Ain't got any," he answered.

"Yes you have. Will you stand for a 'frisk?'"

"Frisk" is police language for searching. The boy stood the "frisks," holding his hands, containing his earnings, above his head. The other found nothing, but another boy joined the youthful highwayman then and calling the first one a "dub," rapped the Thompson boy on the knuckles.

Down dropped the nickels and there was a mad scramble, in which the victim succeeded in gathering none of the money.

On the boy's description Policeman Dumont and Sergt. Androveno searched the neighborhood and Sunday night found the Webber boy, who confessed. He said the other highwayman got all the money.

CAN PRESIDENT USE CIGARETTES?

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 27.—The American public, anxious for a prolonged discussion on the question of cigarette smoking, with two such able exponents as United States Supreme Court Justice David J. Brewer, on the one side, and District Attorney Jerome of New York on the other, is to be disappointed.

An attempt to secure from Mr. Jerome at the Hotel Rudolf today an answyer to the statement ascribed to Justice Brewer that the aggressive victor over Tammany Hall could never be President until he had given up the rp-rhnsibl habit of smoking cigartis, brought rforth a Jrome smile of expansive proportions, and an amused refusal to be drawn into a discussion of the merits or demerits of cigarettes, even with the astute member of the highest legal tribunal in the world.

"I will only say that the utterance of Justice Brewer has not disturbed by equanimity, nor the pleasure which I have secured from my visit to the seashore," said Mr. Jerome.

"Will you cut off cigarettes on the advice of Chief Justice Brewer?" questioned the reporter.

"That question is rather personal, and I fear would lead to a somewhat deep discussion on the subject which I have no reason to wish continued," replied Mr. Jerome, still smiling. "I fear that Justice Brewer has been drawn into making a statement which he had little idea was to be spread broadcast over the land, and I shall try to avoid falling into the same trap."

SOCIETY GIRL WED IN POLICE STATION

CROOKS ARE WITNESSES

Bride Tricks Sister and Brother-in-Law Into Attending.

Mrs. Henry E. Hardtner, at the Planters' Hotel Monday, told congratulating friends, who until Saturday knew her as Miss Juliette Doerr of 1817 Longfellow boulevard, how she made her sister and her brother-in-law witnesses to her midnight marriage in East St. Louis.

Miss Doerr was one of the leaders in the younger set of South Side society. Mr. Hardtner is a wealthy lumber merchant of Monroe, Ala., and is president of the Natchez, Urania & Rouston Railroad, a lumber line 12 miles long, but as wide, he declares, as any railroad in the world. A tour of this railroad is included in the bride's plans for the honeymoon.

"It wasn't exactly an elopement. We just made up our minds during a little dinner here Saturday evening to get married. You know an elopement is when people get married on the spur of the moment, and we planned this several hours.

"Mr. Hardtner and I dined here Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ganahl, my brother-in-law and my sister, who live at the Monticello. We decided to use them as witnesses to our marriage, and knowing that they would probably object to the suddenness of our plans, decided not to tell them everything at first.

Mr. Hardtner and I turned the conversation to marriage, and it was suggested in a joking way that we start on a lark, just as if we were going to elope—no, I mean get married suddenly.

Got License "for a Joke."

"We called a carriage about 10:30 p. m. and started for East St. Louis. On the way over Mr. Hardtner and I kept pinching one another and laughing at my sister and Mr. Ganahl. They had fallen into the trap and thought they were having a great time.

"We had to drive all over town before we found the marriage license clerk, but we finally routed him out of bed and 'secured the papers.'

"Emil said the police station was the only proper place to have such a marriage performed, and to the police station we went. Meanwhile we had fixed it up with Justice Driscoll to be on hand.

When the Justice arrived we found that he had forgotten the wedding ring, and asked Emil for the loan of his. Then he began to get worried, and said the joke had gone far enough.

"Then it was for us to turn the laugh on him. We told him the whole elopement—the whole wedding—had been planned hours and hours and he and sister were elected chief witnesses.

"He scolded awhile, and we compromised by calling up papa and mamma. I told them all about our plans. When they found we were determined they said all right, but told us to be sure and return home for a wedding breakfast.

Police and Robbers Guests.

"So we were married right there in the police station, and you never saw such a queer lot of wedding guests in your life. There were all kinds of policemen and robbers. It was awful.

Second Wedding Ere Dawn.

"After our marriage we drove back to my home and were forgiven. The folks telephoned to a few friends, and we had our wedding breakfast. We sat up telling how it happened, and at 5 a. m. were driven to St. Kevin's, where we didn't have to wake up anyone for a marriage license, and were married again by Father Shea.

"We're going to stay here at the Planters' for several days and then spend our honeymoon in the East. After that I'm going down and ride all over Mr. Hardtner's railroad."

CZAR'S GUNS TRAINED ON MUTINEERS

VLADIVOSTOK OUTBREAK

Twenty Killed or Wounded in Revolt of Soldiers of Garrison.

THROW UP BARRICADES

Rebels Are Prepared to Battle With the Government's Forces.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 27, 1:50 p. m.—The situation at Sebastopol is represented to be improved, the Brest regiment which went over in a body to the mutineers having returned to its allegiance and joined the Bielostok regiment. Reinforcements have also arrived at Sevastapol from Simpheropol, marching from Inkerman between which place and Sevastopol the railroad has been torn up.

Guns command all the entrances to the city from Admiralty Point, where the mutineers are quartered and the sailors are virtually prisoners there. The battleship Panteleimon, formerly Kniaz Potemkine, and the cruiser Otachakoff are in the bay and in control of the mutineers, who have placed their officers under arrest. The remaining ships of the Black Sea fleet are off the southern roadstead. Their crews have not joined in the mutiny, but it is hardly believed they could be induced to fire on their comrades ashore.

Reinforcements are also on the way to Sevastopol from Odessa and Pavlograd.

It is rumored here that Vice-Adimral Chouknin is parleying with the mutineers, offering to accede to all their demands relative to the improvement of the service conditions. This is not officially confirmed, but a dispatch from the American consul at Sevastopol which reports the outlook much less threatening, says it is reported that Admiral Chouknin as received orders from St. Petersburg to yield everything. The British consul is chartering a vessel to take off the subjects of Great Britain.

REVOLT THREATENED IN HALF MILLION TROOPS.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at St. Petersburg telegraphs:

"A terrible panic prevails among the inhabitants of Sevastopol. They are fleeing the city as fast as they can, but they are few ships in the harbor and the mutineers threaten to fire on any which attempt to run out.

"Armed mutineers have occupied the railway station, which is isolated on the land side, to prevent the arrival of reinforcements, and they threaten to sink any vessel bringing reinforcements by sea.

"Trustworthy information states that the spirit of mutiny prevades the half million troops in Manchuria and at Vladivostok. The Manchurian army declares that it will tramp back to Russia if it can find no other way.

"The war office has received telegrams from Odessa, Askabad, Tassken, Kief, Kherkoff, Warsaw, Tsaritin and Astrakhan, warning of an impending mutiny of the troops en masse. This contingency completely prostrates the government, against which even the Cossacks are turning.

"Mutinous army meetings were held yesterday, despite the commander-in-chief's threats. Officers of infantry and artillery are joining the gathering. The Moscow forces are wavering. Inland garrisons everywhere have agreed to refuse to repress agrarian atrocities."

ONE DEAD AND NINE INJURED IN HOTEL FIRE

ONE MAN SAVES TWO

WOMAN ROUSES SLEEPERS

Several Burned Before They Jump in Trying to Use Stairways.

One man was burned to death and nine persons were injured in a fire which destroyed the interior of the South End Hotel, Sixth street and Piggott avenue, East St. Louis, early Monday morning, but left the shell of the building standing with little outward evidence of the disaster.

Largely through the efforts of Mrs. Emma Rheinfrank, owner of the hotel, all the guests except one were saved and Mrs. Rheinfrank escaped serious injury by jumping from a second-story window to a blanket, held by firemen below.

The charred body of the one victim, Patrick Nestor, aged 55, a steel mill puddler, was found in the ruins after the fire had been extinguished.

The South End contains 14 rooms. It has a two-story front, but at the rear, because of the inclined ground on which it is built, has three stories. Most of the 19 guests were sleeping on the second floor.

Boy Discovered Fire.

The fire, which originated in the basement, was discovered at 3:20 a. m. by Matthew Smith, 16 years old, an employe of the Southern Railway, who was on his way to awaken a train crew. He ran to the saloon of Jerry Lehan, two blocks away, and Lehan turned in an alarm. About the same time telephone calls for the Fire Department were sent in by Martin Monahan, grocer, and Bridget Duffy, who conduct a saloon near the hotel.

In the meantime Mrs. Rheinfrank was awakened by an unusual sound, as of a door cracking, and saw the reflection of the flames on the sidewalk.

She immediately awakened Mr. and Mrs. Phil Schneider and Miss Mollie Smeltzer, her cook, and all four of them ran down the front stairway to the street.

Then Mrs. Rheinfrank, remembering that her 14-year-old son, Howard, was still inside, ran back into the buurning building to arouse him.

Woman Broke in Door.

He was sleeping in a room with Frank Neeley, a one-legged man. Mrs. Rheinfrank beat in the door, pulled them both out of bed and commanded them to fly.

Then she went from room to room, knocking loudly, crying "Fire!" and urging her lodgers to make haste.

Running back to the stairway, she found it in flames and escape by that means cut off. Firemen held a blanket for her in the street below, and she jumped from a second-story window. She escaped serious injury, but was badly bruised.

Frank Wolf, who conducts a saloon in the hotel, seeing no other hope, made a dash out through the flames on the front stairs.

Leaning over the banister, helpless and with his hair on fire, was Howard Rheinfrank. Two or three steps further down was Frank Neeley, dazed and in imminent danger of death.

Saved Two at Once.

Seizing the boy by a leg and the man by an arm, Wolf dragged them bodily down the stairway and into the street.

All three were badly scorched—Howard Rheinfrank especially so. He and his mother were taken to Monahan's grocery store, across the street, and put to bed upstairs.

Monahan ran across with a long plank which he leaned against an upstairs window. Harry Hooper, 40 years old, a puddler at the rolling mills near by, was standing at the window. Monahan commanded him to come down, and in his excitement Hooper slid down head first. He struck the sidewalk with great force, and his head was badly cut.

George Way, a receiving clerk at the National Stock Yards, jumped out of a rear window and was badly bruised. His hair was singed and his face scorched.

William Roberts, aged 23, a rolling mill employe, jumped out of a side window, alighted on a mattress and thus escaped injury, but he was severely burned on his back and on the side of his head.

Emil Hoffman jumped through a window, alighted on a mattress and was not hurt in any way.

Scaled Window Shutters.

J. F. Wolf, though burned on the hands and face and his hair singed, adopted a novel means of escape. He held onto a window shutter, climbed outside and let himself down, story by story, by holding onto other shutters, and then jumped to the ground.

Patrick Nestor and Owen Macklin were sleeping in a rear room in which there were two beds.

They had been aroused by Mrs. Rheinfrank, and Macklin risked a jump out of a rear window. He fell on his arms and both wrists were broken.

Both Macklin and Mrs. Rheinfrank saw Nestor standing at a window, as if undecided on risking the three-story jump.

Mrs. Rheinfrank shouted to him to be brave and risk it, and Macklin also called to him, but they saw the old man turn away, and he was lost to view.

When Fire Chief Edward Dowling entered the building he found the charred body of Nestor in a kneeling position in one corner of the room. It is supposed that, not daring to risk the long jump, he tried to find his way out into the hall, and was suffocated.

Nestor was a widower, 55 years of age. His two sons and two daughters reside in Pittsburg, Pa. Nestor had invited them to come to East St. Louis to spend Christmas with him, and only last Saturday he had received a letter from them accepting his invitation and predicting a happy reunion.

On this account the old man was in a joyous frame of mind Sunday. Now his children have been notified to attend his funeral.

An inquest will be held Monday afternoon at Walsh's Morgue.

The fire lasted 45 minutes. The interior was completely destroyed, including the furniture—the total damage being estimated at $5000—but a casual passer-by would hardly know that a fire had visited the place. The cause has not been determined.

KERENS OPENS WAR ON NIEDRINGHAUS

AGAINST FACTIONAL MAN

Congressmen to Confer With Niedringhaus on Plans for Session.

Missouri Republicans are again at war. This time the aggressor is from the ranks of Col. R. C. Kerens, who has told his followers that State Chairman Thomas K. Niedringhaus must not be re-elected. It is Col. "Lib" Morse of Excelsior Springs, who managed the senatorial campaign of Col. Kerens.

"Niedringhaus will not be in it when the time comes to select a new chairman," said Morse to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday at the Planters Hotel.

"In fact, I think all this was settled a year ago when the damaging disclosures in connection with the contributions of the breweries to the Republican campaign fund were hashed up for the delectation of the public.

Kerens' Friends United.

"Are all of Col. Kerens' friends opposed to Niedringhaus?"

"I think so," answered Morse.

"We are opposed to him for principle's sake. Again, we think it would be to the interest of the Republican party to elect some man who has not been identified with factional differences.

"Niedringhaus is a factionalist. His committee should be reorganized. Just now, Secretary Joe McCoy is the whole show in the Republican State Committee.

"I am just as much opposed to one-man power now as when one T. J. Akins, who, I may recall, is the Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, attempted to dictate party affairs.

"The enthusiasm for Col. Kerens at the Karner banquet, which he was unable to attend, was simply immense. It showed that Kerens still has a warm place in the hearts of Missouri Republicans.

"This talk of the self-constituted leaders trying to read the Kerens men out of the party is too silly to comment upon. The Kerens men came out of the senatorial fight with colors flying."

Congressional Conference.

State Chairman Niedringhaus will hold a conference sometime Monday, with several of the Missouri Republican congressmen, at the Planters' Hotel.

"I have no idea what the purpose of the conference can be," said Col. Morse. I fact, I haven't seen a congressman as yet. Perhaps they will come later. It seems to me it is a little early to start next year's campaign.

"I suggest to those who differ from me that we had better wait until the differences in the State Committee are adjusted."

Marshal Field Jr. Worse.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The condition of Marshall Field Jr., who was accidentally shot last week while examining a revolver, was much worse this morning, and his strength is said by his physicians to be failing. Early in the day it was reported that he was slightly better, but about 9 o'clock he became worse, and his strength seemed to leave him suddenly. The physicians declared that they had not yet abandoned hope, but admitted that the condition of the patient was extremely critical.

STRANGE FANCY GETS CRIPPLE IN PRISON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—Charles Limarauti, for 40 years a well-known character about San Francisco, was yesterday sentenced to six months in the County Jail. Limarauti is a hunchback.

The particular offense for which he was convicted was that of following Mrs. Alfred Bouvier, a beautiful woman, to her home at 397 Laurel and begging her to care for him, causing her fright as he argued with her on the steps of her house while a crowd gathered.

Limarauti was formerly the owner of a tailoring establishment in this city and at one time prosperous. He says that, some years ago, he fell in love. There was an understanding and he set to work to provide money for a home. Through a series of misfortunes he lost his business and his money, and the girl married another. Then Limarauti asserts, some unknown friends placed a small sum of money in the hands of the cashier of a bank. Through investment, he declares, this money has now rolled up until it amounts to about $125,000.

A few months ago Limarauti says he saw his former sweetheart, now a widow, and thinking to again win her, applied to the keeper of his money to turn the sum over to him. He says that the banker told him that if he would win his former sweetheart the money would be his.

Since then Limarauti has been hunting for his sweetheart. Thinking that some philanthropic woman would aid him in a financial way to buy clothes as befits a man who expects to be married, he has been appealing to kind-looking women who appeared to be of means, promising a reward when he would acquire his fortune.

DEAD MAN'S HAND CAUSES TRAGEDY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 27.—The "Dead Man's Hand," aces and eights, a combination of poker cards which gamblers declare were never beaten, held good again in a poker game Sunday, but the man who held this hand lost his life, his head being completely severed from his body. The man who tried to beat the poker hand with seven cards and a hatchet, escaped with blood flowing from many knife wounds, and is being sought by the police all over Western Pennsylvania.

Antonio Duvulko, a mill boss, was the victim. Leon Gilleti, another Italian, was the other person. There were six men in the game. Duvulko was a heavy loser, and got the idea that Gilleti was cheating. When next Gilleti dealt the cards Duvulko glanced at them and turned pale. Throwing his hand down face up on the table it was seen to be aces and eights. The mill boss said to Gilleti: "You're cheating; you have more than five cards." With an oath Gilleti tried to throw his hand in the discard, but Duvulko grasped his wrist and shook the cards from his hand. There were seven instead of five.

Duvulko pulled a knife and cut a gash across Gilleti's forehead. Gilleti grasped a keen-edged hatchet, and a fearful duel began. Gilleti struck Duvulko a blow on his neck, almost burying the hatchet. Duvulko fell across the table, and Gilleti hacked him again and again, severing the head from the body. Gilleti was struck several times with the knife and escaped with blood pouring from his wounds.

WEDDING TRIP IN WIFE'S TRUNK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 27.—Lacking money for railroad fare and wishing to take his bride to see his father in Chicago, George Frances, recently of Denver, traveled inside a small trunk. Mrs. Francis traveled in a tourist sleeper with the key to the trunk in her pocketbook.

The trunk was bought at a second-hand store in Denver. A hole was bored in one end and strong cross pieces were placed on the inside for the inmate to cling to when the trunk was tossed around by the baggage smashers.

After putting into the trunk bread and meat and a can of water, Frances crawled inside and his wife locked and strapped the trunk.

When nearing Omaha the baggageman, while checking over the articles in his care, noticed the trunk move mysteriously. Suspecting there was a man inside, the baggageman asked him if he wanted a drink. Frances, finding he was discovered, begged the baggageman not to expose him.

When taken out Frances was so stiff he could hardly walk, but begged hard to be allowed to continue his journey.

"The food gave out before I was found," said Frances, "and I do not know how I could have stood it if I had been left in the trunk until we reached Chicago."

NINTH COMMANDMENT IS CITED BY MINISTER IN DEFENSE OF FOLK

Rev. Dr. D. W. Bradfield Preaches Vigorous Sermon on the Slander, Rebuking Men and Women for Tale-Bearing and Imputing False Motives.

"IGve them the free bridge to talk about! Yes, in God's name, give them anything, anything, anything—to talk about that will supply topics to keep their tongues from wagging about the faults and misfortunes of their neighbors."

When Rev. Dr. W. D. Bradfield shouted these words last night in a sermon on the Ninth Commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," there was a rustling of female garments and a stir among the women in Cook Avenue Methodist Church that for a moment kept the preacher's voice from being heard.

After a brief pause the voice from the pulpit rang out loud and clear:

"Yes, give 'em anything to talk about that will furnish some sort of pretext for mental exercise. I hail the formation of all the Shakspeare clubs and Browning clubs, and other clubs for women that tend to give them something to think about and stop the unbridled idle talking that does so much harm and the slander that slays character. Why I saw good old sisters, many of them, at the big free bridge meeting at the Odeon Saturday night—good old sisters who haven't been to church for a year—and I was glad to see them there, for I knew they would have something to talk about besides each other and their neighbors."

The minister had quoted Campbell Morgan as saying the sin of slander—of inconsiderate talking—is a sin peculiar to women.

"God help the woman," he said, "who is so afflicted with mental poverty that she has nothing to talk about but the personal affairs, the weaknesses and the faults of her sister women. God help her, I say, and God pity her.

Scores Men as Worse.

"And yet I do not agree entirely with Dr. Morgan when he says this sin is exclusively woman's sin. Men are worse, worse, worse. If a coterie of men begin to talk of politics they soon begin to talk of politicians; if they talk of business they soon drift to the personal affairs of business men; if they begin discussing religion they soon take up the persons in the church, and the unbridled tongues of the mental idiots ruin and damn the character and besmirch the reputations of men prominent in church affairs.

"Oh, my friends, it is so often said that if the records of afternoon tea parties and other gatherings of women were made public in their entirety there would be some sensational resultations. I say if the records were made of the gatherings of coteries of men the revelations of this great crime of character assassination would be a thousandfold worse. Who more than men find fault with each other? Who more than men attribute wrong motives to men, even though they know the acts of these men are right and beneficent? Who more than men damn and destroy character by inconsiderate talking?

Tale-Bearer and Assassin.

"The highwayman is a gentleman," he said, "and the assassin is kind compared with the slanderer, the vilist criminal under the shining sun.

"The tale-bearer is responsible for the ruin of more homes, the breaking of more hearts, the wrecking of more lives than any other miserable miscreant that cumbers the earth. The fellow who tells a story hurtful to his fellow man, and then hides behind the qualification, 'I tell it just as I hear it,' is a wrecker of human happiness and a criminal blacker than the pirate on the high seas.

"The man or woman who asks 'Did you hear that story about Neighbor Jones? No? Well, I won't say anything; the least said the better—that person is contemptible beyond compare; too cowardly to say words for which he can be held accountable."

Stands Up for Gov. Folk.

Imputing false motives, Dr. Bradfield declared one of the commonest methods of bearing false witness.

"O, yes, he knows which side of his bread is buttered; yes the minister's sermon was a good one, but he knows how to handle topics in a sensational way, so as to attract attention. Yes, I know he prosecuted boodlers, but he knew how to play his game for the governorship.

"I have no patience—no patience with such men," he exclaimed. "As a friend and former schoolmate of your splendid Governor, Joseph W. Folk, I am unable to see justice in imputing to him selfish motives in the work he did for this city and is doing for the State. He fought public enemies, and found his bitterest foes in his own party. He considered neither personal nor political prospects in the work he did; yet to him are imputed ulterior motives.

Dr. Bradfield's Conclusions.

"If you have a grievance against a man go to that man, not to a third party. If he will not hear you, take two or three friends and go to him. Tell him about it, not a third party. If a man or a woman comes to you with evil report, in Jesus' name I ask you to stop and consider the bearer of the tale, whether he is in a position to know the truth whereof he speaks. If tempted to impute false motives, remember we are told, 'Judge not, lest ye be judged.'

"It was said of a great scholar that he knew enough to be silent in 30 languages. You know but one, and—you—don't know—enough—to be silent—in—that—one. Pray God to help you."

Some of Dr. Broadfield's Striking Utterances.

"God help the woman who is so afflicted with mental poverty that she has nothing to talk about but the weakness and faults of her sister women."

"Give 'em the free bridge to talk about—give 'em anything to talk about that will keep their tongues from wagging with slander."

"Men are worse, worse, worse! The unbridled tongues of these mental idiots ruin and damn the character and besmirch the reputations of men prominent in church affairs."

"If the records of afternoon tea-parties were made public there would be some sensational revelations."

"The highwayman is a gentleman and the assassin is kind, compared with a slanderer."

"As a friend and former schoolmate of Gov. oJseph W. Folk, I am unable to see justice in imputing to him false motives in the work he did for this city and is doing for the State."

KILLED AFTER QUARREL.

Deputy Coroner Hertel of East St. Louis began an inquest Monday into the death of Otto Knowland of 1812 Bond avenue, 22 years old, who was found Saturday night in his room with a fatal bullet wound in his left side.

The young man died early Sunday without regaining consciousness. Dr. H. Voris, the physician who was summoned, expressed the belief that the killing was not accidental. Knowland is said to have threatened suicide. Officer Haggerty, who was detailed to the case, says that Knowland and his wife had quarreled.

CUBANS ARMED ON PINE ISLE

Prepared to Resist Attempt of Americans to Sieze Government.

HAVANA, Nov. 27.—A report that the American residents on the Isle of Pines, led by T. B. Anderson of St. Louis, intended to attack Nueva Gerona, the Capital, and seize the Government, has alarmed the Cubans.

The Cuban Rural Guards are ready to resist the attack, but reinforcements have been asked for. The captain of the revenue cutter Ana reports that a number of Cuban residents have been armed by the Mayor.

This statement seems to be confirmed by the fact that, although there only 25 Rural Guards on the island, a high official admitted that the Government has the means of crushing any revolt.

Secretary Andrade says the matter is a Cuban affair, and, if necessary, the Cuban Government will crush any revolt without consulting Washington, which has nothing to do with it.

Well-informed persons state that the Cuban Government intimated to the Washington Government that it proposed to maintain its authority in the Isle of Pines. A reply was received stating that the Cuban Government would be acting correctly if it acted as it proposed.

Secretary Andade does not consider that it will be risky to fight, if the Americans attempted violence.

It is thought here that the Americans in the Isle of Pines may hope to obtain additional sympathy in the United States if they assume a violent attitude, especially if any of them are killed or wounded, whereas, if they submit to not being recognized by Washington their cause will be lost.

Short Talks on Advertising—No. 37

That there is remarkable prosperity, that prices of raw materials are on the up grade and that there is an increasing demand for the better grades of goods are facts well known to any St. Louis manufacturer or jobber.

That no part of the country is enjoying a greater share of prosperity than the Southwest is also conceded.

Now we ask you, is any manufacturer better situated to promote the sale of his product than one located in St. Louis, the base of supplies for the great Southwest? Is there any better time to begin to do it than now, even when the demand is keeping every man you employ working overtime?

The conditions of trade outlined above cannot last forever—~~if you~~ begin now to establish that specialty of yours on the market you will be very glad to have a year or more of advertising behind it when trade is not so brisk.

FATHER OF THREE DOZEN TURNS UP

Arkansas Indian Lets President Hear of His Family Record.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 25.—When President Roosevelt reads the family records of George Fields, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian of Rogers, Ark., which has been forwarded to Washington, he will indeed be delighted, for Fields is the father of 36 children, 26 of whom are living.

The Indian is 60 years old, and has been married three times. Being under the impression that President Roosevelt has offered a prize for the best showing in an anti-race suicide competition, he sends his family records to the White House.

PUT ME IN JAIL; LET FATHER GO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Nov. 25.—A little girl appeared at the police station Wednesday and asked that her father, a farmer, whose name is withheld out of respect for his child, who was held for drunkenness, be released, and that she be allowed to take his place. The little girl had walked several miles from the country and presented so pitiful an appearance that the police let the man go and the little one was not kept as hostage.

LAND FORCES MITYLENE

International Fleet Takes Possession of the Island Capital.

VIENNA, Nov. 27.—The Nueue Frei Presse today published a dispatch from Constantinople saying that the Sultan, through Tewfik Pasha, the foreign minister, has announced to Baron Von Calice, the Ambassador of Austria-Hungary, that Turkey accedes to the demands of the Powers regarding the financial control of Macedonia.

MITYLENE IN HANDS OF ALLIED FORCES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 27.—The instructions to the commanders of the international fleet were to land detachments and occupy Mitylene at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon unless contrary orders reached them in the interim. Presumably, therefore, the capital of the island is now in the hands of the allied forces.

It was arranged in the interview between Tewfik Pasha, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the Brtish and Sutrian Ambassadors on Saturday that if by 8 o'clock Sunday night the ambassadors received a written notification from the foreign Minister promising acceptance of the demands of the powers the ambassadors would telegraph to the fleet at Mitylene to suspend further operations until Monday.

No such information was received, so it is suggested that instructions staying the hands of the commanders of the fleet have not been dispatched.

TURKEY'S DARANELLES DEFENSES FORMIDABLE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The situation between Turkey and the European powers having become so serious during the last few days, great interest is felt in military and naval circles in the question of the Turkish defenses of the Dardanelles. Turkey has spent a good deal of money on the defenses of this narrow strait and it is expected that she can put up a successful fight against a modern fleet.

The principal fortifications of the Dardanelles, which is a narrow strait of about three miles length are found on the end nearest the Sea of Marmora. At the entrance in the Aegean there are two old castles transformed into new fortifications armed with Krupp guns of 15, 24 and 28 centimeters. The straits at that point are about three miles broad, then growing larger and afterward grow again much smaller and at that point the chief fortifications are built.

The Dardanelles at that point is divided into two straits by a small island. On the European side there are nine fortifications. The first one of these has 21 Krupp guns of 21 and 35 centimeters. On the Asiatic side there are three well-armed fortifications. One of these has 12 Krupp guns of 35 centimetres. These fortifications are manned by two regiments. Their position is strong, and as they are situated on the high banks of the strait they are able to hold up a much larger naval force without great danger to themselves.

The only way to make them harmless would be by attacking them from the high hills on the land side. To prevent this a continual line of fortifications has been built, closing the peninsula off from the European side. These fortifications have all been built under the supervision of European military authorities and are well armed with the newest guns. An attacking fleet will have the disadvantage of having to proceed one by one, and although it is very likely that the combined nations could take some of the Turkish islands, the opinion of many naval officers here is that they will not likely try to sail up to Constantinople.

DIVORCE FOR "SMACK."

Although Unseen, It Was Heard, a Witness Testified.

Walter L. Moose was given a divorce by Judge Bishop, sitting in Judge Hough's division of the Circuit Court, Monday, on the strength of a "smack."

The smack occurred during a call which was made on Mrs. Tillie Moose by a book agent. It was overheard by a woman. She told the Judge about it, and Mr. Moose got his divorce.

Part of the time between June, 1902, and October, 1904, which was the length of time that the couple stayed together, Mrs. Licht lived in the same house with them. Mrs. Licht told of the smack and other things.

Mrs. Licht, one of the witnesses, was asked if the book agent kissed Mrs. Moose when he called at the house. "Well, I don't know whether he kissed her," she said, "but I heard the smack."

Cooked It.

"Bridget."

"Yis, mum."

"Did you boil this drinking water, as I told you?"

"Yis, mum, I biled it two hours. Why, ain't it done?"—Cleveland Leader.

Why the Powers Proceed Against Turkey.

After the uprising against Turkish rule in the spring of 1904, in which the Sultan's troops were accused of massacres, and in turn accused the Christians with ruthless brigandage, the powers made a serious demand upon Turkey for reforms in Macedonia. Russia, Austria and Italy were the principal countries in the initiative. One of the chief demands made was that the Sultan permit agents of the powers to take financial control of Macedonia, and collect the revenues, displacing corrupt and despotic Turkish officials.

The Sultan emphatically declined. An ultimatum was sent to Constantinople, threatening a naval demonstration against Turkey. The Sultan replied again, reiterating his formal refusals, though in a mollified tone. Correspondents have made it clear that the educated Turks greatly resent the attitude of the European cabinets, and even sincere reformers are hoping that the Sultan will resist to the utmost.

The Turks are especially bitter at seeing Russia, while in the throes of a revolution, taking a leading part in forcing reforms on her. The whole thing seems to the Turk, according to correspondents, to be an instance of Christian fanaticism. The trouble is but an incident of the general struggle between Christian and Moslem for the control of Southwestern Europe.

The powers retort to the Sultan's replies that the Macedonian disorders threaten the peace of Europe. The Turks sarcastically suggest that the powers would find better employment making naval demonstrations at Odessa. The powers hold that the Russian revolution is exclusively internal.

DANCED "TURKEY TROT."

Herman Adler Fined for His Exhibition.

Dancing the "turkey trot" cost Herman Adler of 6300 North Broadway $5. He was fined that amount by Judge Pollard Monday morning in Dayton Street Police Court.

Adler said he knew no other form of dance except the "turkey trot," and that he did not suppose he was doing wrong. George Rettle, who conducts the hall at 8444 North Broadway, where Adler gave the terpsichorean exhibition Saturday evening, testified that he remonstrated three times with him, without avail. Mounted Officer Hoffman was summoned by Rettle, and Adler was taken into custody.

FIGHT FOR GEM AT FAULKNER'S CLUB

Broker E. F. Lugar Thought John Fitzgerald Was Wearing His Diamond.

E. F. Lugar, a well-known stock broker, who was arrested Sunday afternoon at the Commercial Club, 208 North Eighth street, after a fight with John P. Fitzpatrick, a bookkeeper, whom he had accused of having a diamond stud and necktie belonging to him, was discharged for want of prosecution in City Hall Police Court Monday.

Fitzpatrick told City Attorney Anderson that he was sure Lugar would not have made the accusation if he had not been under the influence of liquor. He said further that he was convinced that Lugar was a gentleman, and that he was unwilling to prosecute him.

The Commercial Club is conducted by William R. Faulkner Jr., son of Dr. Faulkner, custodian of police properties. Faulkner has recently come in for much notice by reason of the fact that it was he, as secretary to Chief Kiely, who sent word to Chief Desmond to send detective Andrew Gordon, dismissed last week, to Hawes' office at the last general election.

Under-the-Lid Club.

The Commercial Club consists of one large room, fitted up magnificently and connected with the street by a long passage. At one end of the room there is a bar. There are some dozen tables in the room. The ceiling is the most costly decoration of the room. It is a huge stained-glass dome. The club is said to be an "under-the-lid" club.

According to the police version of the fight Lugar, who says he was robbed of the diamond stud and necktie Saturday night, entered the Commercinal Club Sunday afternoon. Fitzpatrick was seated at a table with friends. Lugar walked over to him, and, looking closely at Fitzpatrick's necktie, said:

"That's my diamond which was stolen from me." Fitzpatrick got up quickly and struck Lugar in the face. Lugar struck back, and the fight was progressing merrily when Faulkner called the police.

At the Four Courts Lugar repeated his accusation. Sergeant Harlow asked him to describe the diamond he had lost and the label on his necktie.

Lugar's description did not tally with either the diamond or necktie worn by Fitzpatrick.

Lugar was then locked up. He was released on bond several hours later.

Lugar lives at 1025 Dillon street. He is a member of the M. A. C. Fitzpatrick, who is well known in political circles, lives at 4587 North Market street.

Woman Who Carried Money in Handbag Mystified When Its Gone.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Jacob Rimlinger of Mount Pleasant, Pa., lost her pocketbook, containing $1800, while traveling on a street car between Mount Pleasant and Jeanette.

Fearing burglars, she had tied the money up in a handkerchief and placed it in her handbag. When she reached Youngwood she took a peep into the bag, and the money was there all right. But when Mount Pleasant was reached she looked again, and it was nowhere to be found.

Mrs. Rimlinger, says that no person of suspicious appearance sat near her. Not a trace of the money can be found.

IN SOCIETY

Miss Alma Kregel, who will be married to Cortland Harris, on Dec. 5, has been much entertained by her numerous friends during the past week or two. Last Tuesday Mr. C. A. Logeman gave a handsome luncheon in her honor at her beautiful home at Ferguson. The table decorations were in yellow and the favors were minature bisque cupids. That same evening a dinner was given in honor of the prospective bride and groom.

Thursday afternoon Miss Agnes Petring entertained for Miss Kregel with a luncheon and linen shower. The decorations were carried out in pink crysanthemums, pink satin hearts and smilax, the hearts and smilax being strung from the center of the chandelier to the walls, forming a large umbrella.

The favors were tiny doves perched on intertwined wedding rings and these were attached to pink satin hearts having the names of the guests on one side and a familiar quotation written on the other and as these were mostly in a humorous vein their reading created much mirth. The bell from which the linen was showered was suspended in the doorway between the dining room and music room and as the hostess had sworn her friends to secrecy the linen came down as a genuine surprise to the prospective bride. After the linen had been inspected a slip of paper was given each guest with a pencil and a copy of a poem entitled "A Floral Love Tale," the young ladies being requested to fill in the dashes with the names of various flowers, trees and fruits. Those present were: Misses Alma and Viola Kregel, Florence and Nell Jones, Bertha Aldrich, Lucy Kenney, Lillian Neun, Florence Leighton, Bertha Flach, Cora Todd, Amelia Meier, Regina Lohman, Edna Peper and Winona Petring.

An interesting program was given. Mrs. Weist read a fine paper on Thanksgiving, and the following topics discussed: "What Have We to Be Thankful For in the Line of Religion?" by Mrs. Ferguson; "What, in the World of Science?" by Dr. Barnard; "What, on the Subject of Education?" by Miss Nehl; "What, in the Field of Art?" by Mrs. Beach, who rendered her contribution in rhyme. Several musical selections were given by a young lady guest of Dr. Sara Bernard, after which the hostess served dainty refreshments.

PREACHER SCORES AN ERRATIC CHOIR

Tells Singers They Act Like Monkeys and Poodle Dogs.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Nov. 27.—"Only babies, monkeys and poodle dogs require amusement," said the Rev. W. B. King, pastor of the Methodist Church, when he got a sharp stick after his choir for playing whist. He was "good and sore," church folk say, because the singers seemed to know more about when to lead an ace than when to lead doxology.

As the result of his kick the organist and one member of the church choir have resigned, and other singers are on the verge of striking. The chorus believe they have a right to play whist, since it is a popular pastime in the smart set, and they cannot equalize their society obligations without it. They have argued with the minister that there is no more harm to play whist in their innocent way than there is in building block houses or making paper dolls. They are indignant over the way their pastor has jumped on them about it.

DIES IN SUNRISE OF CHERISHED HOPES

Inventor of Marine Engine Passes Away Day Before the Realization.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—For 30 years Edward Waldron, an inventor, suffered privations in order to perfect his theory of an engine that would revolutionize the speed of water craft, only to die the day before his triumph was to be realized.

His new steel motor boat Waldron was to have been launched from the yards of Pusey & Jones, in Wilmington, Del.

The new craft was fitted with a flexible rotary engine, upon which he had repeatedly experimented in speed-driving and it was his boast that the new engine would make the Waldron the swiftest boat of its kind in the world.

Waldron was 64 years old and until a year ago lived on Poplar street, west of Seventeenth. His wife, who had been in poor health, suddenly became insane, and she was taken to the Norristown Asylum. His 13-year-old daughter was placed in care of friends in Germantown, and Waldron rented a room in the Vine street house.

There he lived alone, taking his meals at nearby restaurants. He had sacrificed everything for his invention, and is said to have plunged deeply into debt to realize his hopes. He patented an automatic clutch and other devices, which brought him a small royalty.

Eye Don'ts

Don't wear other people's glasses; they were probably fitted for other troubles than yours.

Don't let some cheap fakir tamper with your eyes; call on a legitimate specialist who has an office or a regular place of business.

Don't wear blue or colored glasses; they may seem to give relief, but are really most injurious. The man who prescribes them should be able to give more beneficial results with clear glasses. We can.

MISSOURI TRAGEDY IS MYSTERIOUS

Inquest May Disclose Cause of Killing of Jay Lawder.

FARBER, Mo., Nov. 27.—At the inquest today over the body of Jay Lawder, prominent business man of this city, who was killed at the railroad station Sunday by E. J. Bailey, it is the hope of the authorities to learn the cause for the tragedy, which is yet a mystery. Bailey, who has been lodged in jail at Mexico, is a coal miner, and has a wife and several children. It is not known that the men ever had trouble, or that they were even acquainted. Lawder's body has been shipped to Mexico for burial.

Lawder was in the act of boarding the train to go to Mexico, when Bailey, according to eye-witnesses, came up to him, and, without a word of warning, shot him through the head with a revolver. The bullet entered just in front of the left ear and came out the other side of the face. He fell, dying, to the platform, and was carried to his office, where he expired in a few minutes.

Dr. J. A. Welsch was summoned and arrived a few minutes before Lawder died.

A brother-in-law was standing near him when the shot was fired and several persons were eye-witnesses to the tragedy. Coroner Paul Coil and Prosecuting Attorney Oscar arrived from Mexico at 2:30 p. m.

Funeral of Michael Gavin.

The funeral of Michael Gavin, who died at his home, 1466 East Warne avenue, Sunday, will be held from Holy Name Church Tuesday morning.

Gavin was 80 years old, and entered the postal service of St. Louis in 1865. During the Civil War Gavin served under Gen. Lyon, and had a scar on his hand as a reminder of the war. He was held in great esteem by Grant and Lincoln, both Presidents having recommended him for his work in the Government service.

Ohio Squirms in the Shadow of "Lid" She Fears She'll Draw When New Governor Reigns

JOHN W. PATTISON

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.

IT LOOKS like Ohio is to become a reform State.

Governor-elect Pattison has said that he believes in the strict enforcement of the law, not only on week days but also on Sundays.

In a recent speech at Hamilton he expressed his regard for the sacredness of the Sabbath. From his expressions during his gubernatorial race the beverage dispensers are figuring it as certain he will follow in the footsteps of Missouri's Folk.

Despite the persistent reform rumor, a campaign advisor of Gov. Pattison says he will be unable to enforce any radical Sunday law, because that rests with the people under the requirements of the local option law.

However, the proprietors of saloons and amusement resorts are alarmed over the prospect for trouble.

Gov. Herrick's successor declines to discuss the matter pointedly before his inauguration, referring questioners to his speeches for their information on the "lid" subject.

Since the election the presentiment that a "lid" will be placed on Cincinnati has expanded, until it is a topic of discussion everywhere.

At Columbus and other cities in the State, there is as much curiosity as in Cincinnati.

The effect in this city of a "lid" would be more pronounced than in all the other cities of the State combined.

Cincinnati's population, which is chiefly German, will find it hard to forego the Sunday "duck" and the steins. Red lemonade and soda water, as it appears on the streets in St. Louis, will be an unwelcomed successor to the bottled brew.

In view of the stormy prospect, prominent drink suppliers are preparing to resist the enforcement of the Sunday law.

Mayor-elect Dempsey will ally himself with the Governor, whatever his attitude on the "lid" question may be.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The Comptroller of the Currency received a telegram stating that by order of its directors, the American National Bank of Boston has closed its doors. SHANGHAI OYSTER CREW.

Marshal Hears Complaints from Fishermen.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 27.—As a result of the inquiry into the oyster boat scandals ordered by President Roosevelt, United States Marshal Langhammer today rowed out to the nearest oyster boat, the Bug Eye, M. C. Weber, hailing from Oriole, Md. As the Marshal's yawl came alongside the white crew set up a cry for rescue.

"We're held here prisoners by a negro captain," they said. "He starves us. We were buncoed into coming."

"Stay where you are, boys," called back the Marshal, "I'll be around to help you next week."

"The mate keeps us here by pointing guns at us," the oyster men yelled. "They stole us in New York. The captain says we cost him $25 apiece and he won't let us go ashore until we work it out."

The men on the Bug Eye were on the point of seizing the boat's yawl and making off to shore, but were dissuaded by the Marshal. Inquiry proved that the boarding master who shipped the crew is Max Friend of New York. Three of the men had just landed as immigrants.

GAME WARDEN MAY BE ABOLISHED

Many Objections to New Law in Michigan Arise Throughout State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Nov. 25.—As a result of the action of the Legislature in increasing the resident deer hunters' license fee there is a strong probability the Marquette Board of Supervisers will abolish the county game waden's department. A similar disposition is manifested in other districts of the upper peninsula.

Criticism of the new provision of the game law is caustic. The operation of the legislation complained of is that while the State game warden's department will be enabled to make a better showing, it will be at the expense of the counties, and Northern Michigan supervisors do not like it. In this county, at least, a feeling of great hostility has been engendered among the members of the county board, and there is likelihood that the three men now acting as county game wardens will soon be looking for other jobs.

EYE OPERATION FOR MRS. ADAIR.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Mrs. Adair of New York, London and Texas has at last undergone an operation for double cataract and remains for months in a darkened room of her house in Curson street. For the first week she is not allowed to see anyone. The operation promises to be successful, although the day before it she contracted a chill. The surgeons suggested postponement, but Mrs. Adair insisted on the operation taking place. The dance she gave the other night for her niece, Miss Post, and several royalties was really a sort of temporary farewell, for it will be some time before she is about again and then she will go down into the country for a rest.

Why Famous Gives
Eagle Trading Stamps

Their Benefit to the People—A Statement Well Worth Reading.

IT will be three years next May since Famous first introduced Eagle Trading Stamps as a feature of its business. Before adopting this co-operative plan, you may rest assured, we subjected the Trading Stamp proposition to the most rigid examination, feeling that it would be dangerous to interest our patrons in anything but the most legitimate and honest enterprises. We decided in favor of the Eagle Trading Stamp after much deliberation, and we can truthfully say that no one feature of our business has ever operated so successfully and struck the thorough approval and responsive chord of the people as did the Eagle Trading Stamps. Famous wants to go on record right here as saying that Eagle Trading Stamps have nothing whatever to do with the pricing of our goods. Famous only handles merchandise of sterling and guaranteed qualities and our values we know are not surpassed in the city. Eagle Trading Stamps are used by Famous purely and simply as an advertising medium, and instead of giving the newspapers and various other advertising propositions our entire advertising appropriation, through the Eagle Trading Stamp plan, the people at large are the beneficiaries and receive practical and desirable articles for the home—an expenditure which Famous freely divides among the people, and which we would otherwise spend in various other advertising mediums.

That the people have been benefited by and want Eagle Trading Stamps is best evidenced by the fact that over 40,000 St. Louisans have received beautiful premiums for their Eagle Trading Stamp collections, and that right now there are over 100,000 enthusiastic and wide-awake St. Louisans collecting Eagle Trading Stamps.

It is an injustice to class the Eagle Trading Stamp Co. with many trading stamp concerns. The Eagle Trading Stamp Co. stands for uprightness, integrity and fair dealing and IS IN ST. LOUIS TO STAY—it is an organization of progressive and honest St. Louis business men and has back of it a capital of $2,000,000. So sure are we of their thorough responsibility and honesty that Famous unsolicitedly and unhesitatingly guarantees the value and redemption of every Eagle Trading Stamp that is issued.

Famous Gives Eagle Trading Stamps

because the premiums given for a collection of 300, 600, 990 or more are much more valuable, desirable and of better character than those given by any other Trading Stamp Company in America that we know of.

An inspection of the premiums on display in the Premium Room Annex on our third floor, or in the main Premium Room at 1107 Olive street, will fully verify this fact.

Famous Will NOT Discontinue Giving Eagle Trading Stamps

but proposes to give them just as long as the people so strongly endorse this splendid plan.

We consider them a most excellent feature, and we feel quite confident that if all the people fully understood their true merit and value, all the people would be enthusiastic collectors of Eagle Trading Stamps.

BIG FUNERAL OF "YIDDISH DUMAS"

600 POLICE ARE NEEDED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Nathan Meyer Shaikewitz, who was called the "Yiddish Dumas," whom his people of the East Side revered and adored, was buried from his home in East Broadway yesterday. One hundred thousand mourners were at the funeral, which was one of the most remarkable demonstrations of sincere grief New York has ever seen. They filled the windows, fire escapes and roofs.

Six hundred policemen curbed the throngs. A cordon of police kept back the thousands who early hastened to the house of "Scomer," Schiakewitz's nom de plume, the name best loved. Only the leaders of delegations wearing badges were permitted to enter the house. There the widow and children were mourning after the manner of their forefathers, rending their garments and casting earth on their heads.

With 17 mounted policemen surrounding the hearse, the slow march began to the building of the Educational Alliance. Behind the hearse marched delegations from Hebrew societies, professional and literary men, actors, musicians, typesetters, of whom it is said all, at one time or another, had set copy from Shaikewitz's pen.

The auditorium of the Educational Alliance holds 700 and had been filled long before. It seemed as 100 times 700 had congregated around the doors. Here the police easily maintained their restraining lines and kept East Broadway clear from crub to curb. This proved wise. While the funeral services were progressing truck No. 26, answering an alarm, swept up Broadway, with two policemen galloping ahead shouting warning.

The cortege, as had been planned, passed three synagogues, the first one on Christie street; on Rivington street the Kahal Adath Jesurun Synagogue, and the Shaarai Shomoyan Synagogue, also on Rivington street. The funeral proceeded to Williamsbug Bridge and crossed it to Union Field Cemetery, where "Scomer" was buried.

On the Brooklyn side the cortege was met by Inspector Nally with 10 mounted men and 250 patrolmen. A number of plain clothes men were also included in the police details and they were scattered along the line in order that the jeers of insulting hoodlums could not detract from the true dignity of the funeral nor diminish its solemnity.

Ethel Barrymore at Her Glass, "Making Up" to Play "Sunday"

Olympic Star Dressing Room Arranged to Reflect Her Personal Tastes.

The star dressing room at the Olympic Theater was turned over to the decorators and furnishers Sunday by Manager Short with instructions to follow out certain wishes of Miss Ethel Barrymore, who opens a week's engagement in "Sunday" at the Olympic Monday night, with regard to its arrangement.

Miss Barrymore's dressing room at the Hudson Theater in New York distinctly reflects her individual tastes, and she is said to apprecite keenly the courtesy of meeting her wishes in this direction by managers of the houses in which she appears when on tour. With the aid of certain photographs of friends, and a few of herself, reinforced by a knowledge of her preferences in the matter of flowers, the star dressing room of the Olympic, it is said, will be made quite homelike and familiar for Miss Barrymore.

During the waits of "Sunday" Miss Barrymore usually reads. Such authors as Conrad and Jack London are her favorites, but there is one book of which she never tires. This is "Alice in Wonderland," which she recently read for at least the twentieth time, and when found deep in its pages by a visitor, Miss Barrymore explained that she had been reveling in Alice's encounter with the cat that slowly disappeared until only its grin was left.

GAELIC MAKES GROWTH.

Dr. Hyde Declares Language Revival Has Helped Ireland.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—When Bourke Cockrane spoke of Dr. Douglass Hyde as the right arm of the Gaelic revival in Ireland and America, at Carnegie Hall last night in his introductory address presenting the famous Irishman, a great ovation followed.

Dr. Hyde began his address in Gaelic. Later he spoke in English. Among other things, he said:

A dozen years ago the Gaelic language was taught in less than a dozen schools. Six years ago it was taught in less than 105 schools. Today it is taught, more or less, in 3000. Six years ago an Irish book was a rarity. Now there are many published. In the capital of Ireland now you cannot get a place unless you know your own language. I am told that our building up of Ireland's language is seen in the doubling of our trade in our woolen mills and in the enormous growth of many of our little industries."

SEPARATION CAUSED MRS. GRISSOM'S ACT

Washington Woman Who Shot Herself Sunday Lost Husband and Child.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—It is not believed that Mrs. G. Grissom, who attempted to commit suicide in Farragut Park yesterday by shooting herself twice in the body, will recover. She is in the Emergency Hospital.

Mrs. Grissom is a former resident of Denver, Colo., and the wife of a former official of a large woolen mill concern at Spray, N. C. It is stated that she had separated from her husband.

Eugene Grissom, a brother-in-law, says that Robert G. Grissom, the husband of the injured woman, met his wife in Denver and married her in 1894. She was of a well-known family, her father having been a Colonel of a Missouri regiment during the Civil War. Mr. Grissom tonight attributed his sister-in-law's action entirely to the fact that by the decree of divorce she is compelled to surrender her child into his father's custody for six months of each year.

TRADING STAMP REGULATION.

The Features of the Pending Bill Discussed by a Party Affected.

The ordinance now pending, which would require trading stamp companies to not only furnish a $1000 bond, to secure redemption of stamps, but which would exact a much larger tax from firms in this line of business, has been provocative of much discussion throughout the city by reason of the immense number of people who have found trading stamps attractive. Opinions differ as to the fairness of putting an extra tax upon a business which the law declares to be entirely legitimate, but the guarantee bond feature seems to meet with general favor.

The Eagle Trading Stamp Co., which is doing a large business, coincides with the popular view, as to the bond feature, and not only indorses it but goes much further, by advocating larger bond than the ordinance proposes. Mr. I. H. Lesem, president of that company, declared himself forcibly on this point.

"I am thoroughly in favor," said he, "of bonding all trading stamp companies, and of making the bond not merely $1000, but a real guarantee of all obligations, such as $10,000 or $20,000. A company which is honest and responsible can well afford to furnish the evidence of its stability and fair purpose. A company which objects to thus qualifying has no right to ask public confidence. The trading stamp business is legitimate, honorable and popular. It has been hurt by irresponsible and dishonest people, but even the banking business has suffered in the same way. If the possibility for further confidence games be abolished, the interests of the public have been served. Why, then, should fair dealing firms, which are willing to meet all requirements of safety, be further penalized by an additional tax on their business? I think a spirit of fairness will guide the Assembly, and that the excellent purpose of the bill in protecting the community against imposition will find favor, while the proposition to put an unjust burden on business enterprises which are in nowise offenders will, on full consideration, be eliminated."

FOOTPADS SEARCH GIRLS; ROB WOMAN

Athletic Miss Louise Rivers Chokes Negro Burglar Who Was Overpowering Young Man—St. Louis County Woman Attacked—Two Stopped Near West End Church.

Three encounters between footpads and women are the most recent episodes in the onslaught of robbers on the St. Louis public. Two girls were stopped on their way home from a West End church by two young men, who tore their cloaks open in the search for money and jewelry. An athletic North St. Louis young woman choked a burglar who was about to overpower a man whom she had called to aid her. A St. Louis County woman, on her way to Main street railroad station at dusk, was attacked on Olive street, her purse being taken.

Application was made Monday for a warrant against William Jordan, a negro, whom Miss Louisa Rivers of 1910 North Nineteenth street, identifies as the burglar she choked and routed after a desperate encounter in the building of the Pickel Stone Co., at the rear of her home.

William Tragie, who lives at the same house, and who went with Miss Rivers when the negro was heard moving about in the building early Sunday and was bruised in the encounter with the negro, and his left index finger was badly bitten.

Miss Rivers first heard the burglar as he walked through the alley connecting her home and the building occupied by the stone company. She called Tragie, and together they heard sounds as of someone moving about within the place.

Tragie preceded Miss Rivers into the dark room, about which were scattered slabs of stone and partly carved monuments and gravestones. He had gone only a few steps when he thought he detected beathing.

Defends Himself With Hammer.

"Who is that?" he cried. "What do you want in here?"

For answer the negro sprang at him. Tragie gave combat and the men struggled to and fro in the darkness in desperate struggle.

As the combatants, choking and striking one another, swayed about, Tragie was thrown against a bench, and his hand, put out to support himself, encountered a light hammer. With this he struck his assailant several times.

Tripping over a stone Tragie fell, and the negro was pummeling him when Miss Rivers took a hand. Until then she had watched the struggle from the door.

When the two fell Miss Rivers jumped forward and fastened both hands around the burglar's neck. She has strong hands and in her vigorous grasp the negro soon began gasping and finally released his hold on Tragie. The latter sprang to his feet. At the same moment the negro leaped up and darted through the door.

By the light of a match Miss Rivers and Tragie found that a number of stones had been pushed from their supports and broken, causing damage estimated at $150.

Jordan was arrested later at North Market Stree Station. He has several scalp wounds, and is bruised about the face and shoulders.

Girls Attacked Near Church.

Miss Ruth Hunter and Miss Jennie Kenton of 4222 West Belle place, 18 and 20 years old, the former a student of Hosmer Hall, were stopped by armed highwaymen Sunday night as they were returning from church, their cloaks were torn roughly open in search of jewelry and when nothing was found the highwaymen lit cigarettes and walked away.

The girls had attended First Presbyterian Church, Washington boulevard and Sarah street, and walked north on Whittier in returning to their home. Many other church-goers were near them, both before and behind. Between Washington and Delmar boulevards two young men darted from the shadows and demanded their money.

Speechless with fright, the girls made no sound. Each of the young men seized a cloak and tore it roughly open.

"Guess you've got a watch if you haven't got money," said the one who attacked Miss Hunter. A brief search showed the highwaymen that their surmise was wrong, and one exclaimed "Confound it!" as they turned and walked leisurely south on Whittier street.

The girls sped to their home, four blocks distant, and, when they arrived there, they found Special Agent Haley of the Terminal Association visiting Miss Hunter's brother. For some time they were so agitated that they were unable to give a coherent account of the attack.

Haley telephoned Roscoe Shaw, secretary to Chief of Police Kiely. Police of Deer Street Station made what they termed a thorough search of the neighborhood, but found no trace of the highwaymen.

Robbed on Downtown Street.

While Mrs. Ida Enfield of Jennings, St. Louis County, was on the way to the Wabash Railway Station at the foot of Olive street, late Sunday afternoon, a negro stole her purse, containing 40 cents and a railroad ticket, costing 80 cents.

Mrs. Enfield was one of a party of 12 residents of Jennings who had spent Sunday in St. Louis. On the way to the evening train they walked down Olive street, the two men of the party a block in advance of the women.

A negro strolled up from the levee and met them. As he passed Mrs. Enfield he snatched her purse from her hand and ran down Second street.

Burglars who dropped their booty and fled when discovered, broke into the Anti-Monopoly drug store, Sixth and Market streets, early Monday.

At 1 a. m. J. J. Flynn, night clerk at the Windsor Hotel, heard a noise which caused him to look toward the drug store. He saw two men in the entrance, and he started toward them. At his approach the men fled.

They left behind them a basket containing a half dozen boxes of cigars. Other boxes of cigars were lying beside it. Later the police found several boxes of cigars in the alley. Goods valued at $30 were recovered by the drug company, and it is believed that little else was taken.

Chalk Marks Guide Robbers.

Residents of Bartmer and Chamberlain avenues are "viewing with alarm" the appearance on the fronts of their homes of chalk marks which in three instances have been followed by burglaries. The chalk mark, usually a figure "6," is being rubbed off by housewives as fast as it appears.

The homes of J. A. Gardner, 1035 Goodfellow avenue; W. R. McGuire, 5737 Bartmer avenue, and Fielding W. Oliver, 5534 Bartmer avenue, have been entered recently after the marks were noticed on the houses. A gold watch was taken from the Gardner home and an overcoat from that of the McGuires.

Second Burglar's Visit.

For the second time within three weeks the home of John E. Eggers, 1123 Hamilton avenue, was robbed early Sunday. The burglar took $9 from Mr. Eggers' trousers, a small bank containing $6, and thoroughly ransacked every room in the house, but did not touch silverware in the dining room. Profiting by the previous experience, Mr. Eggers had secreted all the jewelry in the house and a large sum of money, and these were not found.

The theft was discovered at 7 a. m. Sunday, when Mr. Eggers awoke. He found his trousers on the floor. A card-case which had been in a vest pocket was found torn to pieces, the thief evidently having destroyed it in anger at finding nothing of value in it. Visiting cards in it were mutilated.

The first robbery occurred Nov. 9, while Mr. and Mrs. Eggers were in Wisconsin. It was discovered by Miss Fannie Hillman, who was occupying an adjoining flat. A rear window on the ground floor had been forced and several suits of clothing taken. It was supposed the theft was committed in daylight.

Choked in an Office.

John Mahan, night watchman at the Grand Leader stables, 1427 North Broadway, was attacked in the office of the stable late Sunday night, choked, beaten almost into insensibility, and robbed of a watch and 75 cents, all the money he had.

Mahan was reading in the office, and did not hear the men enter the place. He was struck on the head with a wagon stake, but rose and tried to fight his assailants. With curses the men throttled him, beating him brutally, and throwing him to the floor. Dazed, he lay in silence and watched them make a thorough search of his clothes and the office. He did not lose consciousness.

Footpads Took His "Gun."

A revolver which Max Zehns of 2802 Lemp avenue bought for protection against highwaymen was taken from him by four men who halted him at the gate to his yard and demanded his money. A number of arrests were made, but all were released and Zehns was held on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and disturbing the peace. The men who were arrested said he was drunk and was flourishing the revolver and that they took it to prevent him from doing any harm.

Zehns says highwaymen got $8 and the weapon. Police of Wyoming Street Station reported that a fight had occurred between Zehns and several companions, and that he drew his revolver on John Suess, a driver for a brewing company.

White Men Rob Negro.

N. B. Armstrong of 3639 Evans avenue, a negro, was knocked down Sunday evening by three white highwaymen while on the way to his home and robbed of $4.75 and a silver watch. The robbery occurred on Spring avenue, near Easton.

Bertram Walter of 1102 North Compton avenue, 12 years old, is under arrest on the charge of stealing brass and lead fixtures from a vacant house at 3110 Bell avenue. He was found at the house by Newman Robers, a paper hanger, who discovered the theft and made complaint.

James Riley of 1522 Prairie avenue was robbed of $40 in a saloon at 3843 Easton avenue. He says two men for whom he had been buying drinks robbed him.

Elmer Mattox of 2620 Natural Bridge road was robbed of $60 in a Chestnut street resort early Sunday. The police found $30 under a carpet in a rear room and arrested two negresses.

John Grundy of 2200 Locust street was robbed of a gold watch and $120 in a Spruce street house. He accuses a negro man and woman.

Tools valued at $50 were stolen early Sunday from a stable in the rear of the home of August Rick Jr., 1019 Ann avenue. Bernard Hannekin of 820 Allen avenue is under arrest.

William Gies of Detroit, who is stopping at the Southern Hotel, complained to the police early Sunday that he had been robbed of $40 in a house on North Twenty-first street. Hattie Koenig was arrested at the place.

Oliver Raithel of 2744 Armand street is under arrest on complaint of Frank O'Brien of 1306 Market street, who says Raithel took a watch intrusted to him to pawn. The watch is valued at $30.

19-YEAR-OLD BABY RECOVERS HER MIND

Mary Scally Lapses Into Infancy Cannot Be Explained by Physicians.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Nov. 25.—For the third time within several years Miss Mary Scally, known as "the 19-year-old infant," has emerged from the mental condition pertaining to babyhood, and has regained her grasp on affairs.

During the periods of infancy to which this remarkable young woman occasionally relapses her mind is almost a blank. She can be aroused only by things which attract babies, such as bright lights and jingling bells.

Emerging from this state, she remembers nothing that transpired during the mental hiatus.

Miss Scally's last attack lasted six months. Among her first questions, upon recovery, was regarding the near approach of the Fourth of July. She was surprised to learn that Thanksgiving is the next holiday.

Her physicians think she will not relapse into the baby state again. She is a woman in strength and stature.

MOTOR CARS FOR FIELD ARTILLERY.

VIENNA, Nov. 25.—Two armored motor-cars, which have been manufactured at the Wiener-Neustadt works for the rapid transport of heavy artillery in time of war, are said to have given excellent results during their trials.

The cars, which are provided each with a 40 horse-power motor, carry a field gun, with a full supply of shells, and have seating capacity for a conductor and a gunner, both of whom are accommodated with an armor-plated shelter.

Watches for Prompt Pupils.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Carnarvonshire Education Committee resolved to present watches to 23 children, whose record of school attendance is remarkable. One had not missed a day for 10 years, another's record is unbroken for eight and a half years, three have not missed a day for seven years, six have a record of six years, and 11 of five years. One of the schools is one and a quarter miles from the nearest dwelling-house.

Hunter's Triple Bag.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—While shooting at Brundish, Suffolk, H. C. Rowling of Eye fired one barrel at a rabbit and killed it. On going to pick it up he found that he had killed a partridge and a pheasant with the same charge.

A boxcar in the Iron Mountain Railroad yards, near Utah street, was broken open Sunday and a quantity of shirts and shoes taken. The articles were found a short distance away, where the thieves had apparently dropped them.

W. Kraler of the "Heir to the Hoorah" Company, playing at the Century this week, has reported to the police Sunday night that a watch was stolen from his room at the Stratford Hotel.

TOWN BOARD IN VERY BAD TANGLE

Deaths Two Aldermen Leaves Tie and Business Stops.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DANVILLE, Ind., Nov. 25.—The tangled condition of the Danville Town Board is growing worse instead of better. The trouble has been pending for some months. The death of J. W. Tinder, councilman-elect from the Fifth Ward, left the board a tie, two members being elected on what was known as the high salary and two on the low salary.

Then Charles G. McCurdy, the member from the Second Ward, died suddenly, leaving but three members on the board, James A. Downard and Charles F. McClelland representing the high salary faction and James W. Dempsey as representative of the low salary men.

A special meeting was called for the purpose of filling the vacancies, but Dempsey failed to put in an appearance. The two men present elected Henry A. Record and Wesley Brady and the board was organized with Mr. Record as president.

Ausbun Rudd, the next day, made application to Judge Thomas J. Cofer of the Hendricks Circuit Court for an injunction to prevent the meeting of the board, alleging Downard and McClelland had conspired in the election of the new men, who were to act with them in allowing the old high salary bills. The injunction was granted. A change of venue was then taken to Boone County, where Judge Artman is to be heard next month.

Mr. Dempsey attended one meeting, but only business relating to the election was transacted. Since then he has declined to attend any meeting. Proceedings were begun in the Circuit Court to compel his attendance and Judge Cofer has the case under advisement.

BURNING CAR RUNS WILD.

Passengers Have Exciting Ride Down a Mountain.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 25.—About forty passengers on a Lookout Mountain street car coming into the city had the scare of their lives when a car caught fire. The motorman yelled to the conductor to lock the back door while he locked the front dorr. Then at full speed the motorman tore into the city and stopped in front of a saloon, where the passengers were let out and water secured to put out the fire.

The fire was in the front of the car and during the wild ride the passengers jammed into the rear. The conductor stated that the car was going at a good speed when the fire was discovered. If he had left the doors unlocked the passengers would have jumped off before he could come to a full stop and somebody would have certainly been hurt. The passengers were highly indignant when they were finally liberated, but soon saw the force of the street railway man's reasoning.

BROOM CROPS MAKE ILLINOIS MEN RICH

Industry Originating Before the War Becomes Flourishing Again.

WINCHESTER, Ill., Nov. 25.—Central Illinois has just harvested material for 15,000,000 new brooms. The highest priced product comes from this State. The origin of the industry in Illinois dates back to the early '60s, when Col. John Cofern, a farmer, who had been visiting in Tennessee, brought home some broomcorn seed and planted it in Douglas County.

He found the soil peculiarly adapted to the product, and other farmers, seeing his success, also planted. The Illinois market price ranged from $80 to $90 per ton this year, and owing to the limited source of supply it is possible to corner the market of the Illinois crop. This has resulted in sending the price up to $130 a ton.

NEW CHARGES AWAIT MURDERER

Special to the Post Dispatch.

LINCOLN Neb., Nov. 25.—The insanity charge against Frank Barker, the Webster County murderer, may be dropped now that it has served the purpose of saving him from hanging June 16.

A reprieve of two years was granted Barker by Gov. Mickey, thereby stirring up much censure in Webster County, where the feeling against Barker is still very bitter. The County Attorney there is said to be watching every move of Barker's counsel and already has a new complaint, charging him with murdering his sister-in-law, prepared and ready for filing.

The present conviction and sentence to death is for the murder of his brother, Daniel Barker.

Death of Mrs. Logan.

Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Mench. She was the widow of James B. Logan, for many years pastor of Twelfth Street Church and editor of the Western Cumberland Presbyterian, published in St. Louis. Her son, W. C. Logan, is editor of the national publication of the church, at Nashville, Tenn. Seven children survive—John M. Logan, Joseph R. Logan, Frank E. Logan, Mrs. J. C. Mench, Mrs. T. H. Perrin and Mrs. A. A. Neff of Alton and W. C. Logan of Nashville.

LITTLE REVOLVER KILLS BIG BEAR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BELLEFONTAINE, Pa., Nov. 25.—Lawshy Baird, a coal operator of Osceola Mills, and Postmaster John McCamant of Tyrone had a thrilling moonlight encounter with three bears. The two left Unionville in the evening in a carriage to drive to the camp of the Ranger Hunting Club of Tyrone, at the head of Beech Creek.

On the way they became lost, and stopping the team, got out to examine the road, when there was a terrifying growl and an old she bear and two hungry cubs came crunching through the brush. The horses frightened and stampeded with the carriage and guns, leaving the two men at the mercy of the bears.

The only weapon they had was a 22-caliber pocket revolver carried by Mr. Baird, and as the mother bear approached on her haunches Baird stuck the revolver in her face and fired. The ball struck in the right eye and penetrated the brain and bruin rolled over dead.

In the meantime, McCamant secured a huge club and attacked the cubs. He succeeded in dispatching one and turned to look for the other only to hear it making off through the brush. With it disappeared the men's handbag, which they had dropped in their fight with the bears. The cub got away.

Being unable to locate the camp of their friends, the two men followed the North star and arrived at Snowshoe about midnight, while the team was found at Unionville.

DEER PURSUIT STIRS BUSY CITY

Special to the Post Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 25.—Citizens pursued a wild deer through the Lowry Hill district and along Mt. Curve avenue, when the animal made its appearance in the heart of the city, coming whence nobody knew, and escaping whither nobody has learned. The animal evidently escaped from some park or show. It is possible that it came in from Minnetonka. It escaped after it had been chased a dozen blocks. Pursuers were on bicycles, horses and street cars.

17 KILLED, 25 HURT IN TRAIN WRECK

CHILDREN AMONG VICTIMS

Two Cars Telescoped and Burned, With Passengers in the Mass.

CAUSE OF WREK MYSTERY

LINCOLN, Mass., Nov. 27.—Fuller details of the disastrous read end collision of the Boston & Maine Railroad at Baker Bridge Station last night, show that 17 persons were killed or burned to death, while 25 were seriously and many slightly injured. The work of clearing away the debris has just been finished, but all of the bodies have not been identified. The list of dead follows:

MAY CAMPBELL, Maynard, Mass.
WILLIAM WALSH, Maynard, Mass.
CHAS. WETHERBEE, Acton, Mass.
DONOR GAUTHIER, Marborough, Mass.
BRAKEMAN of accommodation train.
CHAS. E. BARNARD, Charlestown, Mass., fireman of the Montreal Express.
ANNIE HARTWELL, 21 years old, of Littleton.
ANNA HILLBRIDGE, 5 years old, Acton.
MARY McSWEENEY, Concord, Mass.
JOSEPHINE KARLSON, Maynard.
W. J. BARRIS, Maynard.
— BARRIS, 3-year-old son of W. J. Barris.
B. TYDEPRIU, aged 50 years; residence unknown.

Injured Taken to Boston.

The most seriously injured, all of whom were taken to the Massachusetts Hospital in Boston, were:

Savario Vando, Concord; internal injuries and scalp wounds; very serious.

Mrs. Clara Fuller, Leominster; compound fracture of nose; fracture of left clavicle; suffering from shock; condition critical.

Mrs. Albert Batly, Maynard; crushed thigh; may die.

Mrs. William J. Barris, Maynard; fractured clavicle; multiple scalp wounds; fractured ankle; condition favorable.

Anna Claven, address unknown; amputated arm; lacerated wounds on leg.

Many in addition to those named were attended by surgeons at the scene of the wreck and were able to go to their homes. Early today no deaths had occurred at the hospital in Boston, although at least half a dozen patients are in a critical condition.

Cause of Wreck Unknown.

Aside from the work of identifying the remains which were removed from the charred ruins, the greatest interest centers this forenoon in the investigation of the cause of the disaster.

President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston & Maine Railroad, stated that orders had been issued to institute a searching inquiry. He said:

"I cannot understand how such a frightful accident could have happened unless the signals were in some way misunderstood."

The tracks were not entirely clear of wreckage until today, although the eastbound track was freed from debris during the night, and anumberoftrains were transferred around the wreckage early in the day. The Montreal express which left Boston at 7:45 last night, and crashed into the Marlborough branch accommodation train, resumed its journey to the anadian city about 3 a. m.

Passengers Tell of Crash.

Witnesses of the collision said the local train, which consisted of four cars, three of them passenger coaches, had just pulled out of Baker Bridge Depot, a small flag station about a mile and a half west of Lincoln Station. Just west of the flag station is a highway bridge over the railroad. The train had entered a deep cut after passing under the bridge and the rear car had just cleared the structure when the heavy Montreal Express, consisting of nine cars and two locomotives, crashed into the rear end. The impact was terrible, and many of those killed met death almost instantly.

The forward locomotive telescoped the rear car and passed part of the way through the coach immediately ahead. The second car of the local train was also badly damaged, but the first car and locomotive escaped.

The fire consumed all the woodwork of the two rear cars which remained on the roadbed and incinerated a number of the victims.

The fireman of the leading locomotive, Charles E. Barnard, was burned to death in his cab, but Engineer Connors managed to escape in some strange manner. He was found under a tree on the embankment near the scene. His injuries were not regarded as serious.

The engineer and fireman of the second engine escaped injury and no person in the coaches of the Montreal train was injured.

Scenes of Horror and Heroism.

The glare of the burning wreck lighted the awful scene, and above the hiss of escaping steam and the crackling of the flames arose the shrieks and groans of the victims and the excited cries of the rescuers. Several passengers in the rear car of the Marlborough train were caught in the ruins of the locomotive and coach and the flames prevented help from reaching them.

Calls for assistance and medical aid were sent to Boston, Concord and other places. The Fire Department of Lincoln arrived within half an hour, but the men were unable to make much impression on the burning pile. They succeeded, however, in saving portions of the third car.

The Pullman car of the express train was used as a temporary hospital. Two of the victims, little Anna Hillbridge and a man, died in this car. As the flames from the burning wreckage died down, bonfires were lighted to assist the surgeons.

CONGRESS MAY PROBE FIGHTS OF MIDSHIPMEN

Testimony as to Laxity of Rules Against Encounters May Cause Action.

MIDDIES HAVE "CODE"

Supt. Sands Declares Discipline Forbids Fights and It Will Be Enforced.

AUTOPSY IS HELD

Black Eyes and Bruised Faces Explained by Tales of Falls Against Door Jambs.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 27.—The possibility of a congressional investigation into the prevalence of prearranged fist fights between midshipmen at the Naval Academy is being discussed here and it is generally thought that the evidence of the midshipmen as to the laxity of the regulations against fighting under previous administrations will cause some such action. Admiral Sands and Capt. Colvodresses have been in office here only a few months, and no knowledge of a breach of discipline has been imputed to them. It has been suggested, however, that Admiral Brownson, former superintendent, and Capt. Charles J. Badger, former commandant of midshipmen, who were mentioned as countenancing fighting, may ask for a court of inquiry.

"Fighting is contrary to the discipline of the Naval Academy, and discipline will be enforced," said Admiral James H. Sands, superintendent of the Naval Academy, today. "The great body of midshipmen are law-abiding young men, high-toned and honorable, but, as will be found among all large numbers of youths, there are some more hot-spirited than others.

"There is no trouble in governing the midshipmen. They always rise to the full measure of their obligations. This is especially so with the members of the first class. There is no spy system and none is needed."

Exacted No Pledges.

Admiral Sands made this statement when asked about the effect of fighting according to the "code," as in the Branch-Meriwether case. Since Admiral Sands' incumbency as superintendent and that of Capt. George Colvocoresses as commandant of midshipmen, no pledges to abide by the academy rules have been exacted from the midshipmen as was done in the matter of hazing by Admiral Bronson, the former superintendent. The position taken has been that all midshipmen are under an honorable obligation from the time of taking their oath on entrance to the academy to abide by the rules and that no pledge could make their duty stronger.

The fatal termination of the Branch-Meriwether affair has made no appreciable difference in the attitude of the midshipmen toward prearranged fights, which they consider right and proper under their "code." Several such arrangements have been held since the beginning of the court-martial proceedings against Meriwether, so the midshipmen have stated without hesitation, to their acquaintances in this city.

Black Eyes and Door Jambs.

This morning two midshipmen were seen by a prominent naval official near the academy hospital. They had black eyes and bruised faces. They may have fallen against a door jamb, the official said. Nevertheless, many naval officials believe the present agitation will at least prevent fighting over trivial matters. One midshipman, who had some part in the Meriwether-Branch fight, declares he will never again take any part in a prearranged fight.

The body of Midshipman Branch was disinterred Sunday and an autopsy was held by a local board of naval medical officers, pursuant to the orders of the Secretary of the Navy. The condition of the body made it possible for the autopsy physicians to reach a conclusion at the condition of the vital organs of the midshipman at the time of the fight. The findings of the doctors will be made public at the court martial.

Tennessee Man Smoked and Drank Through Long Life and Enjoyed Health.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SOUTH PITTSBURG, Tenn., Nov. 25.—Joseph Kern, aged 109 years, died at the home of his son-in-law, James Kelly, near here. He was born in Cork, Ireland, and according to the old family Bible in which his birth was recorded first saw the light of day in 1796. He was an inveterate user of whisky and tobacco, and was never seen without a generous quid in his mouth. He possessed a remarkable memory and having traveled much would regale his hearers with tales of Ireland and Scotland, of the blood he had shed in the war between the United States and Mexico and the war between the States. He was an unswerving Democrat, having voted in every Presidential election since attaining his majority. He was given a soldier's funeral. His remains were interred at Dalton, Ga., being accompanied there by Confederate veterans in uniform.

MORE PUBLICITY.

Publicity was fully justified in the first public trial of a public officer by the Board of Police Commissioners. The trial of Detective Gordon brought out information of the greatest interest and importance.

The fact that Gordon was dismissed does not in the least degree weaken the obligation of the board to sift his charges to the bottom and follow by searching inquiry all the lines of misconduct which they suggest. That there was some truth in his charges was proved by admissions of Chiefs Kiely and Desmond. Gordon was sent to Harry B. Hawes when the latter was out of the board and was the leader of the Democratic campaign. He was sent there for a conference on politics. There is a difference in the statement of Hawes and Gordon as to the purport of the conference between them, but Mr. Hawes' explanation merely mitigates the offense. Who was responsible for the sending of Gordon to the Democratic leader? How much truth is there in the charges Gordon made concerning the effort to make him do political dirty work, concerning the "jobbing" of him because he refused to do it, concerning the protection of lawbreakers?

The searching out of the whole truth of these things is the paramount duty of the new board. It must go on with the public inquiries until the whole truth is brought to light. It must put on the witness stand every man who can throw light on the conditions making for wrongdoing which have existed in the Police Department. This duty cannot be evaded without stultifying the new board members and Gov. Folk and without failing to accomplish what the new board members were appointed to do.

THE DRUMMER AND HIS WIFE.

The St. Louis wife who asks for a divorce because her husband, a traveling salesman, compels her to accompany him on his business trips, attacks the very foundations of a long-cherished belief that has furnished material for much alleged humor to paragraphers and jokesmiths in general.

The point of the jests has invariably lain in the assumption that "der drummer, der innocentest man on der road" is never so carefree and happy as when he bids wifie good-by and starts on a trip of business and pleasure combined, selling goods and smashing feminine hearts all along his route, and that his wife languishes at home, bitterly bewailing the fact that she cannot accompany him. Yet here's a "drummer" husband who refuses to leave his wife behind him, and a drummer's wife who seeks a legal separation because she isn't left behind.

Thus it is that our merriest conceits are being destroyed by the Gradgrinds of fact. Even the mother-in-law joke would now seem to be in peril.

TELL THE TRUTH.

Replying to a troubled correspondent, Miss Nixola Greeley-Smith advises women to tell their ages when they are rudely asked for such information. "If we lie about our ages, it is pleasant to reflect that there is a place provided for us to go to."

Miss Greeley-Smith is an ingenious woman, but she has missed the mark this time.

Does a woman really know her own age? Certainly not. She has only hearsay evidence, which is not accepted in courts of law. A witness must tell what she knows, not what another has told her.

To be sure she was here when she arrived, but has she any recollection of the event? Of her own knowledge can she tell within five years of the date of her birth? Certainly not.

When a woman is asked how old she is she should tell the truth. She should say, "I don't know." So, she need not have bad dreams about the place provided to which people must go who tell lies.

COMMERCIALINVASION O F CHINA.

Consular Agent Burrill reports that the United States controls practically the entire sewing machine market in China. Although German sewing machines sell in China at 40 to 50 per cent less than the prices of American machines, the Chinese prefer the American machines. The reason is that the American sewing machine companies have not been contented with merely sending drummers and advertising their wares in the usual way. They have actually established sales depots throughout the empire, one company operating 50 such depots, 47 of which are under native supervision. This company expects to establish 200 sales depots in China within three years, and that a sale of four machines a month will be averaged from each of these depots.

This is the way to capture the Celestial empire for American trade. The Chinese are shrewd traders and their prejudice against foreign made goods can always be removed by intelligent and fair treatment. By establishing sales depots in the various provinces and placing native managers and salesmen in them, American merchants make the most powerful appeal to Chinese self-interest. No boycott on sentimental grounds can overcome the effect of such a peaceful commercial invasion.

Saturday night's mass meeting at the Odeon was a convincing demonstration of the strength and sincerity of the sentiment of the people in favor of a free railroad and wagon bridge to break the bridge and terminal combine. In his address Gov. Folk not only summed up the argument for the abolition of the bridge arbitrary and the destruction of the bridge monopoly clearly and forcibly, but expressed the sentiments of nine-tenths of the people of St. Louis who are determined that the city's commerce shall be free from the bondage of monopoly and the burden of bridge tolls. There is no answer in right or reason to the arguments and no possibility of checking the tide of public opinion, which must take the form of effective action. To the objections urged by the Joint Committee against the free bridge clause in the Council bill may be added another against insertion of the word lease in the clause which permits the city to build or lease a bridge. Why should a loan of $3,500,000 be provided for the leasing of a bridge? Why should provision be made in a bond issue designed to provide for the construction of a free bridge for the leasing of a bridge, unless it be entirely separate from the provision for the construction of the municipal bridge? Is not this a loophole for the substitution of the sham proposition to lease the wagonway of the Eads Bridge for the building of a new municipal bridge? No possibility of a juggle should be allowed in the bill.

WHAT IS A "RAKEOFF"?

The term "rakeoff" has received a judicial and judicious interpretation in the Pennsylvania courts.

One John F. Ancona was County Comptroller and a candidate for re-election. During the canvas the statement was printed that Mr. Ancona had received a "rakeoff" in a certain deal.

Judge Endlich said that "a search of the standard dictionaries does not disclose the phrase as a recognized part of the English language." But he found that in popular speech it meant "going over an object with a rake and gathering up the material which adheres."

On this definition it was held that the County Comptroller went over a certain fund and fraudulently scraped in $420. Hence a new trial was denied and the two defendants were greatly elated.

The definition is commended to the thoughtful attention of policy holders in life insurance companies. Perhaps it will suggest to them the propriety of inquiring before insuring whether the president of the company has a rake and uses it to gather material which adheres to it.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

MEMORIAL TO EMIL PREETORIUS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Dr. Emil Preetorius should have a permanent memorial in Lafayette or some other St. Louis park.

Ever foremost to instill in the hearts of the German-Americans a love for their adopted country and its principles of republicanism: broad-minded, cultured, aggressive and determined in the cause of freedom and humanity, a model husband and father, Dr. Emil Preetorius stands as the pioneer in the Mississippi Valley of a sturdy civilization which he represented. He has by his influence helped to build up St. Louis and the West, has brought to these shores the best types of Germans, and through his newspaper served his adopted country well.

Absolutely unselfish at all times, leaving no fortune, he has engraved his memory on the hearts of thousands.

No more fitting place, perhaps, than Lafayette Park can be suggested for a national memorial, built by small subscriptions from all the people, for opposite the park he lived for many years, there he took the walks that gave him inspirations and prolonged his years of usefulness, and there finally ended his long life.

Such men as Judge Leo Rassieur, Gen. John W. Noble, Congressman R. Bartholdt, Judge G. A. Finkelnburg, Adolphus Busch, Dr. F. L. Soldan, Dr. Hugo M. Starkloff, Carl Schurz, Chas. A. Stix, W. D. Orthwein and Hugo Muench and others of his compatriots could be named to form a committee for the purpose.

WOMEN CROWDING OUT MEN.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Delegate Preismeyer has applied the torch; let it be hoped that others will do likewise and thus give the unemployed men of this city a chance to make a living for those depending upon them. I, for one, am out of employment, because a young woman accepted my situation for less money and longer hours when I went out on strike with the printers. Girls filling men's positions in order to decorate themselves with finery is an every-day sight in this city. I would suggest that the men of this city organize and refuse to deal with merchants who fill men's places with female help, in order to increase their profits. Men are bound to lose true respect for women under such conditions. Would like to hear from others on this subject.

STREET CAR SAFEGUARDS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Letters which appeared in the Post-Dispatch in opposition to the promoters of safeguards on street cars make me think there must be something to it, as the promoters seem to have touched a very vital spot in the opposing ranks.

If anything can be put on the back of street cars that will avoid accidents, it should be put to use. The mere fact of the companies having a franchise should not compel the public to fit their cars out with safety appliances at their own expense. A. B.

FIREMEN SMOKING.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Last Monday, Nov. 13, I was standing in front of the Post-Dispatch Building on Broadway, smoking my pipe, when the Fire Department responded to a fire on the Levee. A hose wagon crossed Broadway at full gallop, the driver smoking a corncob pipe. Just then something happened to me that has been in my mind ever since. A puff of wind blew the hot ashes from my pipe into my eyes, and it took me some time before I was able to see again. That set me thinking what would have happened if the driver of the hose wagon had got the ashes from his pipe in his eyes. I think a driver and the man sitting on the seat with him could stop smoking that long. I don't mean to criticise the Fire Department, as I think they would all stop smoking when going to a fire when this is brought to their attention.

If only the truth be known, I am sure that they have been the cause of many downfalls and broken hearts and homes as have been the races (they go hand in hand), and as you were instrumental in stopping races, we pray God be with you in this fight.

A SURE WINNER.

William Shakspeare Summers of Eldorado, Ill., is running for State Senator in his district along the Ohio River.

No common man, and therefore no common candidate, is William Shakspeare Summers, as even the most unthinking person would judge from his name, which is both classic and pleasing.

But it is not his name that is going to land Mr. Summers in a senatorial seat at Springfield; it is his overflowing and ebullient humanity, his unbounded knowledge of human nature. On the cards which he is distributing among voters, as well as his every-day business cards, is this magic legend:

OFFICE HOURS:
When you are in distress and need my services.

Now, how are you going to beat a man like that? There it is—a personal appeal to every man; an appeal that gets right down to where he lives, without preliminaries. How can even a man with so engaging a name as that of Senator Douglas Helm, who is opposing him, hope to win out against so seductive a campaigner as this? And Douglas, it must be admitted, has been both tender and true to his constituency.

Long years from now, we predict, the voters in and around Eldorado, and even to the uttermost confines of Metropolis on the Ohio, will be singing of the political joys, that prevailed "in the good old Summers time."

LEARNED THAT HIMSELF.

It may be Mother Eve induced

MARRIAGE AND THE CLERGY

By Nixola Greeley-Smith.

The hastiness and thoughtlessness of men and women who are really boys and girls in betrothals, mere impulse with a frothy sentiment or a foul passion; the commercial maangement of matchmaking for place, for title, for money; the careless and criminal neglect of clergymen to find out the condition and circumstances of people coming to them for marriage, are at the bottom of the misery of so much married life today.

And as one studies the surroundings of what is called a wedding in our time one cannot but deplore the irreverent confusion and display which drowns the religiousness and disturbs the dignity of the service itself.—Bishop Doane on Divorce.

NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH

"WHAT is it that has two feets, fedders all over it and barks like a dog?" asked Sam Bernard two seasons ago.

The answer was, "A chicken."

"But a chicken doesn't bark like a dog," you protested, indignantly.

"Yes, I know," was Hoggenheimer's reply. "I put dat in to make it difficult."

So much for the "confusion and display" which attends the ceremony of which Bishop Doane complains—he put that in to make it difficult. And if it wasn't there a great many people would be led to feel that there was something subtly immoral in getting married.

The church, by the way, is responsible for the pomp of marriage, and I don't see why its masters of ceremonies or stage managers should object to the introduction of such harmless pieces of "business" as rice-throwing, etc., which Bishop Doane specifically condemns.

Now, as to the more serious problem of divorce itself. Of course, everybody is entitled to his opinion as to the sanctity, the holy estate of matrimony. No one envies more than I the blessed obliquity of vision which permits optimistic persons to view it as anything else than the most expedient working principle of harmonious living.

Everybody is agreed that we ought to have a uniform divorce law. But——

Until we get it, have the ministers of the church, who, so far as marriage is concerned, are public servants, any right to refuse to perform such marriages as the law allows?

Is a righteous man any more privileged to place himself and his righteousness above the law than is an unrighteous man to place himself and his sins below it? It seems to me the obligation of abiding by the law, however much we disapprove of it—the priest from exalted reasons, the criminal from mean ones—rests equally upon the just and the unjust. And a clergyman has no more right to refuse from personal conviction to marry persons whose marriage the law permits than a restaurant keeper to decline to furnish them entertainment or a theatrical manager to sell them seats. And the absolute obligation that rests upon either of these has been affirmed by innumerable court decisions.

MIDAS

Old Midas was a greedy chap,
Who sat upon a throne.
He sighed to sit in Fortune's lap
And call the earth his own;
And once a goddess said to him—
Or god, I don't know which—
"I'll fill your coffers to the brim;
You shall be vastly rich.

"Henceforward everything you touch
At once shall turn to gold.
Of gilded stuff you'll have so much
The sight will knock you cold."
And so it was. His meat and drink,
In cupboard and decanter,
And everything of which he'd think
Would turn to gold instanter.

Gee whizz, but Midas he got sick
Of having gold around!
It made him cross and splenetic,
And, in disgust profound,
He prayed the gods to take away
The stuff which he so hated,
And, to his joy, without delay
He was accommodated.

Strange view that Midas held of old!
We never hear a "beller"
About an overplus of gold
From John D. Rockefeller;
And if a god with such a bait
Should walk right up beside us,
Which one of us would hesitate
To risk the fate of Midas?

THE SKATE

THE merry, madly-whirring wheels were whirring madly, merrily. Round and round they rolled, carrying on their ball-bearings the gliding, graceful (more or less) forms of hundreds of happy youths and creating a mighty roar that fairly filled the huge building from the chalk-sprinkled floor to the rafters far above. (Not bad, that?) Ever and anon the music of the band crashed through the ceaseless din and the notes of "Bluebell" were borne to the ears of the joyous throng.

In the rapt ecstasy of the smooth, swift motion, trim and pretty girls, their cheeks glowing and their tresses blowing in the breeze, made and maintained by their own rapid flight, cling to arms of young men who proudly swing and guide them through the ever-moving, ever-changing mass.

If you have not seen it, a true artist of the typewriter could give you no adequate conception of the sight. What I wish to do is to tell you of Bertine's experience last night.

Bertine is a cunning little baby-faced girl of 18 years and the 180 pounds. Bertine just knew she could skate. Why, when the ice rink was here she went once and did not fall down a single time. So Albert, kind little Albert, took Bertine to the rink. Albert is a pretty good skater; he has not fallen for three nights. They spent a very interesting evening.

To begin with Bertine's skates were not good ones.

"They roll right out from under me!" she declared, and she wanted Bert to exchange them for others.

"All you need, now," said Bert to Bertine as they reached the edge of the whirlpool, "is confidence. Just don't think you're not going to fall and you won't—maybe. Pick up your feet each time and don't try to dig your toes in, because if you do like you do on ice skates you'll fall on your face. Don't rest too much weight on your heels, because if you do you'll fall on the back of your head. Don't get excited, just hang on to me and I'll skate for us both awhile. Now, you ready?"

"Why did you wobble so?" demanded Bert.

"I dunno, did I?"

"Come on, now—ump!"

Bertine's fair form had jerked in that peculiar manner of girls on skates when they think their feet are getting ahead of them. That was the reason for the ump! She had taken Bert's plea for confidence too literally. She nearly squelched Bert.

But Bert was as game as a rat terrier. He disentangled her hands from the decorative palm on the other side of the railing and they started again.

"That's right; lift your feet. No, not that way. Never mind about lifting them; just skate. Can't skate? Yes, you can, think you can, anyhow. Ugh! Ump! Don't do that again—look out! Now, here's a straight-away stretch. Don't wobble! Don't wobble! Why don't those people get out of our way—look out!!!"——

The young man behind did not hear any more. He was too busy separating himself from the mess.

Furthermore, he allowed Bert to complete Bertine's training unobserved.

THE MARRIED MAN

Phonographed for the Post-Dispatch

By W. H. James.

SAW an overcoat for $40 today that's a peach. I'm going to get it as soon as the rent's off my hands. My wife is inconsistent about these things, so I won't say anything about it to her. I find that the best way is to just cut down her allowance for the house when I see anything I want. You know how women are. She'd ask me if I couldn't get an overcoat for less than $40 and she would be unkind enough to remind me that she has been wearing an $8 jacket for three winters. That's the way with women. They can never understand that a man's position in the world depends on the front he puts up. The fellows that I meet around the saloons and places judge me by my clothes. They never see my wife's jacket. I couldn't even get a standoff for a drink the day before payday if I didn't have good togs.

A philosopher, I think it was Socrates, has rightly said that a woman can never understand a man. She doesn't know what it means to be a good fellow. Her life is so constricted and she has nothing but trifles to bother her, little things like housework, attending to the children and keeping her clothes mended so she can look half way respectable when she goes to church on Sunday. I don't go to church myself. I don't know how it is there, but I do know that at the saloons and the Sunday clubs a man is judged by what he has on his back. Of course, what he spends counts a good deal, too. One can't be cheap, you know.

I gave my wife a little lesson in finance this morning when she got to harping on that jacket question again. I just put it to her this way.

"My dear," I said—I always call her "my dear"—"you must learn the value of money. I believe you have been putting 25 cents in the plate at church every Sunday.

"Now, don't you know that means $13 a year? Think of it, $13 for which you get no return at all. It goes to the missionaries, you say? Well, you don't know those missionaries, do you? What's that? I don't know the brewers and distillers who get my money? Now, my dear, do be logical. I didn't say anything about brewers and distillers. You will get off the track. Talking to a woman is at times most exasperating. If you will put only 10 cents in the plate on Sunday you will save $7.80, almost enough to buy a new jacket. See the point?"

That's the way to talk to them. Give it to them straight.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

Across the house Miss May Irwin shook with laughter over the humor of the play, her motherly face beaming with enjoyment, her hands, oftener than not, applauding with cordial vigor.

The audience plainly relished seeing both of them when it wasn't following the play itself.

The hit of "The Heir to the Hoorah" is made by the Wild Western brother and four friends of the hero, and their highest point is reached when three of them rush and tackle a fourth, wrathfully garbed in evening clothes with spurs, and put a collar on him as they would a brand on a rebellious maverick.

It's a story of the civilized East brought cheek to jowl with the barbaric West, and for a time the shock of the contact threatens to wreck the lives of young Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lacy. But a baby intervenes, the heir to Joe Lacy's Hoorah mine, and above its native redwood cradle they reach a transcontinental reconciliation.

Every woman in the house made the baby the star of the evening—even though it was an inanimate planet.

There's a good lot of cleverness in the play. It tells a "heart interest" story to the accompaniment of almost continuous laughter—an extremely difficult and dangerous performance. It has the faintest of plots—but you don't notice this until you think it over afterwards. Its characters are hackneyed—but they're made fresh by good acting, bright lines and excruciating situations. Paul Armstrong, its author, must be reckoned with hereafter. He is a humorist who gains his effects with the broadest of strokes and is yet shrewd enough to realize that the cry of the new-born babe of an estranged husband and wife, heard through a half-open door by a bunch of half-savage buffoon bachelors, is rich in the very essence of pathos.

Sincerity and artificiality are close together in the play. The little Japanese valet—unobtrusively done by Mr. Tamamoto—who subdues a big British putler by a trick of jiu-jitsu, is as flagrantly vaudeville in spirit as if suggested by a Pike bally-hoo. YeYt Dave Lacy is as genuine and native to the soil as Joe Bowers or Jim Bludsoe, and you can almost get a whiff of broncho sweat from Gus Ferris.

Mr. Guy Bates Post is very good as Joe Lacy, one-third owner of the Hoorah mine, and the roles of Mrs. Joe Lacy (Miss Norah O'Brien), Mrs. Kent (Miss Louise Morewin), Mrs. Kate Brandon (Miss Jane Peyton), H. van Rensselaer Kelly (Mr. Wright Kramer) and Swingston Winthrop (Mr. Brinsley Shaw) are brightly taken. But the real stars of "The Heir to the Hoorah" are Mr. Ernest Samson as Dave Lacy, Mr. Wilfred Lucas as Bud Young, Mr. C. C. Quimby as Bill Ferguson, Mr. Colin Campbell as Lon Perry and Mr. Ben S. Higgins as Gus Ferris—a constellation of five.

For it is they who make Mr. Armstrong's play go from 8:15 to 11 p. m.

Helped very often by Ingenue Louise Rutter of St. Charles, Mo., who, as Madge Casey, has the best feminine role in the play and does it very nicely.

Maybe We'll See a New Ethel Barrymore.

At the Olympic tonight Miss Ethel Barrymore will be seen in her new play, "Sunday," supported by a strong company of which Bruce McRea is the leading man. In this play Miss Barrymore appears in something of a new guise, the ward of four big-hearted miners of the Far West, and, although the scene changes to England and high society for a time during the progress of the story, the dominant note is that of the American frontier. Such an atmosphere is distinctly novel for this actress, and there is much local interest in the departure.

Bright Comedy Promised at the Garrick.

A DeMille comedy which has scored a success since its first production about a month ago, "The Genius and the Model," will begin a week's engagement at the Garrick tonight. Its author, William C. DeMille, is also the author of "Strongheart," an Indian football drama that is repeating this season its hit of last, and Henry Woodruff and Miss Edna Goodrich are the stars. The story of "The Genius and the Model" is said to be unusually amusing and brightly told.

Glory and Gunpowder in the Far East.

Gatling guns, gunpowder, soldier boys, a Rough Rider band, "Old Glory" and other stirring ingredients are mixed up in Charles E. Blaney's melodrama, "Across the Pacific, which drew two enthusiastic audiences to the Imperial yesterday. The play is a popular one, ranking as Blaney's best, and is full of exciting situations that follow one another in swift succession. Johnny Hoey takes the part of Willie Live, the young war correspondent; Josephine Foy that of the heroine, Elsie Escott, who enlists as a soldier; "Chinese" Johnnie Williams is again in his old "Chink" role, and E. L. Bennison, R. D. Cain, Lillian Ethel Norris, Florence Hill and others do creditable work.

Jessie Mae Hall in "The Street Singer."

Jessie Mae Hall, who has a big following in St. Louis, appeared at Havlin's yesterday, drawing two crowded houses, to see Hal Reid's new drama, "The Street Singer," in which she takes the part of Violet Vodray, the heroine. The production is melodramatic and exciting, with a thrilling duel among other features, but also offers some musical numbers in which the star's sweet voice is heard to advantage. Scenically, it is above the average.

The Columbia's Musical Horse Headliner.

The headline attraction of the Columbia's new bill, beginning this afternoon, is Luigi Rossi's astonshing muscal horse, Emir. Other features are Edmund Day, Patrice Winston and Robert Watson in "The Sheriff;" the Kitamura Japs, acrobats and jugglers; the Vernon troupe, xylophone experts; the Messenger Boys' Trio, singers and comedians; Les Parisiennes, in a potpourri act; Carver and Pollard, comedy singing and talking, and other acts, closing with the kinodrome.

Farce and Topical Songs in German.

The laughable farce, "Das Opferlamm" (The Scapegoat), was excellently presented by the German Stock Company at the Odeon last night. A feature of the production was the interpolation of many songs of the topical and humorous order, and the performance was well received. A new comedy, "Liebes Manoevre" (Love Maneuvers), will be produced Wednesday night.

Fred. Irwin's Majestics at the Gayety.

Fred Irwin's Majestics began a week's engagement at the Gayety yesterday, drawing two good houses. The uproarious farce, "Down the Line," by Larry McCabe, was the opening feature and many entertaining specialty acts followed.

Opening of the Apollo Club's Season.

The first Apollo Club concert this season will be given at the Odeon tomorrow evening. Miss Alice Nielsen, who has made her successful entrance into the grand opera prima donna class since last heard in St. Louis, will be the soprano soloist; Herr Hans Kronold the 'cello soloist, and an excellent program of club members, under Director Arthur Lieber's leadership, will be presented.

"Robert Emmet" at the Olympic.

"Robert Emmet," the Irish drama written by Dr. P. T. Cunningham of St. Louis, was presented at the Olympic last night with the author in the title role, supported by a big company of local amateurs. The play, which presents stirring episodes in the life of the great Irish patriot, was well received by its audience.

May Howard Company at the Standard.

At the Standard the May Howard Extravaganza company began a week's engagement yesterday afternoon. Two burlettas, "Mlle. Fi Fi" and "The Rounders," were produced, and a good specialty bill offered, including the Craigs, Grant and Lavelle, Russell and Locke and others. An especially striking feature is that presented by the Roma Wrestlers.

LETTERS TRAVEL MILES TO GO FEET

Drop a letter addressed to Beebe Plain, Quebec, into the postoffice at Beebee Plain, Vt., and it will travel a distance of 294 miles, of which 67 is in Canada and the remainder in the United States, before it reaches its destination. The actual distance between the two offices is about 10 feet.

J. M. Grow is the regularly appointed assistant postmaster of Beebe Plain, Vt., and has taken an equally iron-clad oath to perform the duties of deputy postmaster in Canada. Thus he is left to himself the greater part of the time and performs the dual duties with satisfaction to both the Americans and their neighbors, the Canadians.

"Is it true that a letter travels a long distance to go from one window to the other?" he was recently asked.

"Yes, sir; that is one of the strangest things in connection with this office. If you mail a letter from the Vermont side addressed to the Quebec side, it goes from here to the junction, then to Newport, then to White River Junction and back to Lennoxville, Quebec, over the Boston & Maine. There it is transferred to the Grand Trunk and goes to Sherbrooke. It is there transferred to a southbound mail pouch and comes to Stanstead Junction, and then back to this same building, a distance of 294 miles.

A ROMANCE OF COMPOSITE AUTHORSHIP BY EIGHT ST. LOUIS WOMEN

Part III.	by Marie Merceret.	Part VII.	by Clara Estelle Baumhoff.

MRS HELEN WATTS McVEY

MRS AUGUSTA JANUARY CLEME

MRS. LOLA V. HAYES.

THIS story was written by the Twinklers' Club, an organization which is the outcome of a desire for a closer acquaintance among writers and readers to a local agricultural journal. On the afternoon of Aug. 1, 1904, a number of these ladies met at the home of Mrs. Helen Watts-McVey, and it was decided to effect an organization without further waiting, which was done, and the name, Twinklers' Club, was given to the body. Since then, the club has been steadily at work along literary lines, and the unique feature of it is that nearly every member is actively engaged in either literary or journalistic work. The officers of the Twinklers are: Miss M. Merceret, president; Mrs. A. S. Cody, secretary; Mrs. I. M. Mays, treasurer. The meetings are regularly held once a fortnight at the home of some one of its members.

Mrs. Augusta Clement, widow of Francis Napoleon Clement, and her husband are descendants of noted French families, who were among the Huguenots. Some of them were priests, bishops, missionaries, doctors, writers and lecturers. She is by faith a Swedenborgian and believes in telepathy and that all thought comes from the other world. She writes short stories, sketches and poems and in all of her work she shows a preference for things of a mysterious and pathetic nature.

As a writer of light humor, Mrs. Lola V. Hayes, daughter of A. Rodemeyer, veteran editor of the Centralia (Mo.) Fireside Guard, has appeared in the literary world for 12 years, her first story appearing in a St. Louis daily newspaper. The November issues of Ten Story Book and the Larkin Idea Magazine have a short story by Mrs. Hays. She follows her father, who is noted throughout Missouri for his crisp and quaint humor, in that particular style of humor.

PART I.

"WHAT is it to me? Me? I am myself."

High raged the winds, the roar of the sea was deafening. Angrily the waves dashed upon the rocks, soaking with spray a man who stamped along regardless of the elements.

"Patience! I am near the end of my journey. We shall see! Yes, I call upon High Heaven to witness my triumph!"

With quickened step he pushed forward when lo! as he walked there suddenly appeared before him a solid wall. In amazement he stayed his steps, turning slowly towards the west then quickly towards the south, then towards the east, for as he turned the wall ever accomodated itself to his position, cutting off all retreat.

In horror and despair he raised his hands in supplication. Immediately four hands appeared and two of them were black. In despite of the cool evening, the water coursed from every pore. In his fright he tore the hair from his head, which he madly cast away.

The wind was terrific, but the hair was not scattered. With starting eyes he saw the locks form into a solid black mass—, waver, and finally arrange themselves in a semi-circle directly in his path.

"Nome! Nome!" in new terror, shouted the man. To the left, to the right, he ran, regardless of the wall, which now opened for him as a door. Wherever he ran the sea-green Eye bore him company. With trembling limbs he stumbled miles upon miles.

Far, far from the sea he traveled, and when dawn appeared fell fainting upon the wooden steps of a little chapel. There the kind priest found him and carried him into the house, where, invisible to others, the Eye of seagreen watched above his couch.

PART II.

STRICKEN thus at the moment when his overwhelming ambition, which knew no law but its own gratification, seemed about to be realized, Archibald Faring lay for hours as in a trance.

Out of a past of strange, wild adventures had risen this phantom to confront him—this cruel Eye to crush his courage with baleful, unsparing power.

Even thus had gleamed the Eye of the idol in far away India, when, in the depths of night, with chisel and hammer he had riven the priceless jewels from the breast of the sacred statue.

It was a daring adventure, when, with a companion to guide his steps through the windings of the cavern, her had penetrated deep into the mountain side and, after lurking in its recesses for days, had at last emerged at the shrine of a gigantic idol, before which burned incense in a softly swaying dish. Sweetmeats and other dainties sat before it, which the two hungry men ravenously devoured.

Then Faring declared his design of robbing the idol of its costly adornments. His companion, a child of the East, shrank from him, trembling.

"The jewels will bring you a curse," he cried. "Let them alone!"

But Faring had only laughed derisively. Soon his pockets were full of jewels whose value was almost fabulous. They were all his own, for his companion refused to touch them, declaring that the revenge of the despoiled idol would be horrible beyond description. Faring, who feared neither God nor man, scoffed his terror. Should an idol, a thing of badly carved wood, daunt him?

There were darker, more evil deeds than this in his past—a past so dark that had his soul been vulnerable to fear, his eyes would surely shrink from darkness lest it be peopled with the ghosts of nameless sins.

But the jewels had brought their curse. Far, far he had traveled since that night in the sacred cavern, vainly seeking to escape the doom that the Hindoo had prophesied.

"I am master of the world!" he assured himself at length in his native land, where all seemed fair before him. "Wealth beyond computation is mine and she (the beautiful, the good!) shall be my queen. I defy Fate!" he exclaimed, shaking his hand toward that faraway land, and then—came the answer to his challenge—the answer of the idol beyond the sea! That terrible Eye flashed its green fire upon him—those hands of ebony crushed all his virile strength, leaving him helpless as a child.

PART III.

ARCHIBALD Faring's soul seemed seared by the baneful glitter of that sea-green eye, which threatened to wreck his reason. Upon regaining consciousness he made a supreme effort to free his spirit from its horrible incubus, and to do so called upon the one pure being whose influence over him led his soul upward from the depths into which unbridled passions had plunged it.

"Iris," he moaned, "Flower of Heaven, by your prayers save me from doom!"

Then the malignant light in the demon Eye faded; the raven hair dissolved into vaporous shadows, and, Faring, arising, thanked the good Father for his care and hastened away.

"I will go to her," he thought, hopefully, "to her who shall become my guiding star. In her pure presence nothing evil will be able to assail me. That nightmare of the past—that phantasy of an idol's Eye—cannot have power over me when she is forever mine own."

As the spangled curtains of the summer night were dropping earthward he reached the home of Iris.

She was, indeed, a most beautiful woman, but the crown of her glorious loveliness was the reflection of a spirit so ethereal, so chaste, that it shone through her whole being, like a lamp set within an alabaster vase, where the beauty of the cold marble is enhanced a hundred fold by the radiance transmitted through it from the living flame.

Her angelic spirit compelled even the sinful soul of Archibal Faring to bend in homage before its purity.

His advances to this peerless creature were eager and confident. Knowing all the advantages his handsome person and immense fortune gave him, he felt assured that even Iris must look with favor upon his suit, and now that he had satiated his lust for adventure, he resolved to seek her for his bride.

Her gracious manner towards him made his heart beat high with hope, although at times he fancied he could detect a sudden shrinking from his manifestations of admiration.

"Iris, beloved one, be mine," he implored. "I love you as man seldom loves woman. Let me wear forever upon my bosom my sweet Iris—my 'flower of heaven.' "

Slowly the lovely Iris turned towards him, her face radiant, yet questioning. But even as Faring was about to clasp her to his bosom he started back in terror, with an exclamation of dismay, for instead of the golden locks, the snow-white brow and the azure eyes of his beloved, he beheld the gruesome raven hair above the malevolent Eye, which glared at him with mocking triumph in its green depths.

As he gazed, fascinated with fear, the storm descended with a furious roar upon the world and for a moment the earth seemed to be melting in a cauldron of fire.

Unrelentingly the Eye flashed upon Faring, until with a shriek which pierced even the crash of the thunderbolts, he plunged into the tempest-stricken night, driven from Iris and hope, seeking to escape from his implacable foe.

A MAYOR'S WIFE

MRS. CARTER HARRISON, whose husband was the most numerously elected Mayor of Chicago —1897-1904—writes fairy stories. Her latest book is "The Moon Princess." The book tells of the wonderful things the Princess Ethelda and her husband saw when they came to earth to spend their honeymoon.

Ethelda was the Moon Princess and she had chosen for her husband the young Sun Prince.

He was the finest of the Son God's sons, and Ethelda's heart beat proudly as she looked upon her chosen one. The Moon Mother was happy, too, in her daughter's choice, and all would have been well in the wedding festivities save for Ethelda's unheard-of request. How the Moon hated to grant it! But she had reasoned with Ethelda long and patiently without effect. For the wilful little Princess was bent upon this mad whim. "Alas! no good can come of it," sighed the Moon heavily, and she gazed down sadly upon the Earth as she spoke. "No good can come of it,' she repeated. "What could have possessed the child to want it?"

For Ethelda had asked no less than this: To visit the Earth and spend her honeymoon there!

However, Ethelda had her own way; and so that the two young people might approach the Earth safely, the Moon Queen had ordered a wonderful Silver Ladder to be made.

A beautiful shimmering ladder of moonlight stretched in infinite splendor down to the Earth. Whichever way she looked, the majestic sweep of that brilliant ladder was before her. It reached the Ocean, where gigantic waves of foaming white rose to meet it, and it quivered in dazzling glory upon the greenclad forests of the land.

The Earth, resplendent with jewels, awaited the arrival of her guests. The forest back of them was aglitter with lights, for all the glowworms and fire-flies had been summoned for the occasion, and for days they had been decorating the trees. An orchestra of birds sang delicious music, and overhead the sky was spangled with twinkling stars gazing in silent wonderment upon the Earth's splendor!

Then the Sun messenger, who acted as their guide on the Earth, told them the most wonderful tales. Here are the titles of some of the stories he told: "How the Fairies were Changed into Mocking-birds," "The Rainbow Sisters," "The Story of the Jeweled Beach," and many more, all of which contain the most mysterious revelations.

She was in a large and vaulted chamber, in a big cave. For a moment she thought she would die of fright, and then she remembered that, as a Moon Maiden, she had the power to protect herself from harm. In that instant her courage returned and strengthened her. Softly she repeated the words of the charm she had learned in the nursery of the Moon palace, and had sung at her mother's knee. As she sang a beautiful halo formed gradually about her, such as you sometimes see about the moon, and in the shining space Ethelda stood alone. The dwarf stepped forward quickly to snatch her from the glowing circle, but found he could not reach her side. Ethelda was safe from any harm except imprisonment.

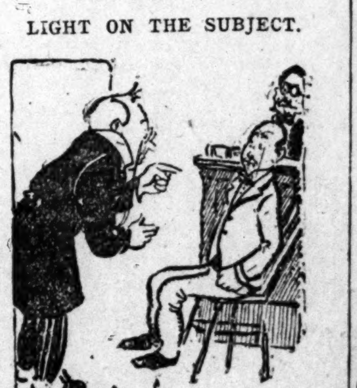
LIGHT ON THE SUBJECT.



Counsel: It was pitch dark, you admit. Then how could you see the prisoner, I would like to know?

Witness: Oh, very easily. Don't you observe that he is lantern-jawed?

NEEDED IN THE CHOIR.

WANTED TO KEEP IT.

"It seems like Hattie is devoted to you. Why don't you get married?"

"No, I don't think you would," said the bright girl. "It takes a clever man to do that."

MORNING GOODS.

No Waste With This Cream.

HERE'S an ideally fine Holstein Cow!

This perfect cow produces 8 quarts of 4% Butter-fat Milk and 1 quart of 12% Butter-fat Cream each day.

You would have to pay the milk man at least 7 cents a quart for this Cow's Milk and 36 cents a quart for this Cow's Cream—in all 92 cents.

If you owned the cow and did not use all the milk she gave daily you would have to waste what was left over—because raw milk doesn't keep.

And besides, although the Milk and Cream were of the finest quality—contained the maximum amount of nutrients—they might also contain disease germs—they would surely contain souring germs.

These 5 tins will make all told 8 quarts of 4% Butter-fat Milk and 1 quart of 12% Cream!—the same quantity and quality as the "perfect cow" gives daily.

And there will not be a single disease or souring germ in this Van Camp's Cream—for it is thoroughly sterilized—every microbe is scientifically destroyed.

Besides you can have these tins in your pantry constantly—ever ready for any possible emergency—to be used just as you need, daily—no waste—no loss, as with the perfect cow whose daily product you must use or waste.

And Van Camp's Sterilized Cream is just right for Coffee, Tea, Pastry—or Cooking of any description.

At all grocers—single tins 10 cents or by the case of 48 tins $4.50 or 9 cents a tin.

ATHLETIC CLUBS WILL TEST LAWS CONCERNING BOXING

Columbia A. C. Proposes to Attack Chief Kiely's Ruling—M. A. C. Directors Will Consider Plan of Future Action.

The stoppage of the amateur boxing bouts at the Business Men's Gymnasium on Saturday night caused more or less of a sensation in local boxing circles. Chief Kiely said Monday morning that boxing by amateurs would not be permitted when any prizes, medals [illegible] trophies were offered or where admission is charged. Chief Kiely seems to believe that boxing between amateurs who are members of an organized and established club, in the club quarters before club members, no admision charged and no prizes offered, is legitimate and would not be molested by the police.

He said that professional boxing would not be permitted. Just whether a professional who is a member of a club could be arrested for sparring with another professional, also a member of the club, for fun, and not for a prize or gate money, the Chief could not say. The law does not differentiate between amateur and professional boxing.

The edict against offering of prizes, medals, admission, etc., can be very readily circumvented by the unscrupulous clubs, while the honorable organizations which believe in true amateurism will suffer. The fly-by-night clubs can privately pay their amateur boxers for their services, while the honorable clubs will not do so. Thus the unscrupulous clubs will profit and the scrupulous ones suffer.

COLUMBIA A. C. WILL TEST BOXING LAW.

The officials of the Columbian Athletic Club, De Kalb and Zepp streets, want to make a test case of Chief Kiely's interpretation of the boxing rules, and is seeking the co-operation of any of the regularly organized clubs of the city in their effort.

A member of the club said on Monday morning: "The C. A. C. is firm in its belief that there is no law to stop bouts that are being held for the edification of club members, and we are willing to put this belief to the test. All the clubs of the city should unite in obtaining a ruling on this question that will settle once for all the correct interpretation of the law. Our charter expressly stipulates that we are entitled to use what means we please of physical culture. Boxing is one of the greatest of sports, and we will not stop in its proper usage by professional or amateur boxers. We have the right to hold private amateur or professional bouts, and we intend to do so. We will announce a program of bouts in a few days, and intend to carry them out or see the reason why. There is no member of the Police Department a member of our organization, and they cannot pass our doors for investigation without our consent. Our club is a legitimately chartered organization, and the police have nothing to do with us as long as we do not commit a breach of the peace. Until they do that they will stay out, and we will conduct the organization as we please. The bouts in our ring are held strictly according to the rules devised by the Marquis of Queensberry for the use of amateurs, and are in no way ruled by the laws of the London prize ring. They are not prize fights, and do not come under the rulings of the Missouri laws."

O'CONNOR CHALLENGES CHIEF KIELY'S RULING.

President John J. O'Connor of the W. A. A. U., who is considered highest authority on amateur sport in the West, does not agree with Chief Kiely of the Police Board that the bouts that were to be held before Bob Douglas gymnasium Saturday night were prizefights because they were to be contested for medals.

Said Mr. O'Connor Monday morning: "The Board of Managers of the Amateur Union will hold a special meeting this week for the purpose of considering the action of Chief Kiely in stopping the amateur bouts scheduled for the Business Men's Gymnasium under our sanction."

"We will undoubtedly make a test case of this ruling and have the legality of the Chief's action settled for all time. These boxers are not professionals, and do not make their living by fistic means. The Amateur Athletic Union is doing for the young men of the country the work that the churches is not, and we do not intend to have our motives misconstrued.

"Medals are not prizes, under the laws of the Amateur Athletic Union, but trophies given as a memento to show that the winner has won some contest of skill or science. I would like to propound to Chief Kiely the question, 'Does the giving of a medal to a track or field winner place him in the category of professionalism?' "

The wave of morality that is sweeping the community in which Gov. Folk is the leader should be tempered with justice when applied to athletic sports. The amateur athletic does not sanction a boxing entertainment without rigid investigation of its amateurism. The A. A. U. protects the State and the municipality."

M. A. C. WILL HOLD MEETING.

Regarding Chief Kiely's pronunciamento on boxing and his statement that all matches for medals or other prizes would be prohibited, President Robert C. Day of the Missouri Athletic Club said Monday morning:

"I shall call a meeting of the board of directors of the club today or Tuesday and this matter will be looked into at once. We will consult with our attorney and if there has been any infringement of the law in the tournaments we have conducted, they will be stopped.

"I am not very familiar with the legal demands in regard to boxing exhibitions, but most certainly we shall not attempt to evade the law. The club is anxious to promote healthy athletics, and will continue to do so, but strictly in keeping with the law.

"I expect our attorney to consult with Chief Kiely and President Stewart of the Police Board and find out just what is the law. We shall regulate our future actions accordingly."

A dual boxing tourney with the South Broadway Athletic Club is scheduled for Dec. 23 at the Washington avenue club. Preparations for this meet will continue, it is said, until it is learned that it cannot be held without a violation of the law.

Boxing matches as conducted by the Missouri Athletic Club have been as purely amateur in character as could possibly be brought about. None but club members have been admitted and the amateur standing of the performers has been strictly adhered to. Medals have been awarded to winners in the various events at the M. A. C. and in this, say the members, is the only point on which Chief Kiely's ruling can have bearing.

At the request of the Post-Dispatch C. Clifford B. Allen, attorney for the M. A. C., quoted the following sections of the Missouri statutes on boxing and prize fighting:

Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1899:

Sec. 2125.—Prize Fighting Forbidden.—Any person who shall send, cause to be sent, published or otherwise made known, a challenge to fight what is commonly called a prizefight, or who shall accept any such challenge, or who shall engage in any such fight, or go into training preparatory to such fight, or act as trainer for any person contemplating a participation in such fight, and any persons who shall act as aider or abettor, backer, umpire, second, surgeon or assistant at such a fight, or in preparation for such fight, shall, upon conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of a felony and be punished by confinement in the penitentiary not less than two nor more than ten years. (R. S. 1889, Sec. 3754.)

Sec. 2126.—Agreement to Fight Out of State.—Any person who shall agree in this State to fight out of this State, or shall train in this State to fight out of this State, or who shall go or attempt to go out of this State to fight in any other State, place or territory, or, being in this State, shall in any way or manner aid, abet or assist to fight or attempt to fight out of this State, what is commonly called a prizefight, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof be punished by imprisonment in the Penitentiary for a term of not less than two nor more than five years. (R. S. 1889, Sec. 3755.)

Sec. 2127. Sparring and Boxing.—Any person who shall engage in any public sparring or boxing exhibition, or who shall aid, abet or assist in any such exhibition, or who shall furnish any room or other place for such exhibition, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (R. S. 1889, Sec. 3759).

"These are the only sections I can find bearing on boxing, said Mr. Allen. "These are old laws made to meet the exigencies of prizefighting with bare knuckles in public. Amateur boxing with gloves, for a medal, in private, no admission charged, cannot, in my opinion, be called prizefighting or come within the law.

"Boxing exhibitions given at the M. A. C. have not been public. Therefore Section 2127 does not apply to them. The word public saves them.

"To my knowledge these amateur bouts have never been called even in most liberal language prizefights. That absolves them from guilt under Section 2125."

BURTON BELTS BLANTON BADLY

Kid Blanton of East St. Louis, Ill., and Walter Burton of Denver, Colo., fought a six-round draw before the All Sports Athletic Club of East St. Louis Sunday afternoon. The men met at catch weights, Blanton tipping the beam at 145 and Burton scaling 149.

The fight was viciously fought from start to finish. Science and skill were thrown to the wind and both men mixed continually. In the second round Burton knocked Blanton through the ropes with a terrific uppercut, the bell saving the Kid from a knockout. In the sixth both men fought hard for the decision, Blanton connecting with Burton's jaw, sending the aggressive Walter over the ropes into the crowd. He came back and fought strong however and Referee Hart announced his decision as a draw. The verdict was well received. Blanton dislocated three of the fingers of his right hand during the melee.

It is probable that the men will be matched for a return engagement for Sunday, Dec. 3.

BOXING RESULTS AT EAST SIDE CLUB.

Harry Lombard, the local lightweight, defeated Andy Martin of Chicago before the Empire Athletic Club of East St. Louis Sunday afternoon. The fight, which was to have been a 10-round affair, was brought to a sudden conclusion in the second round, when Lombard whipped over a hard right to Martin's jaw.

BERT EXPLAINS TIM FLOOD'S CASE

Speaking of the black listment of Tim Flood, the St. Louis ballplayer, and the suspension of Jud Smith for their assault on Umpire Davis, President Bert of the California League says:

"Flood is an old offender, and has been repeatedly fined and suspended for rowdy tactics on the diamond, and as these measures do not seem to have any effect on him, I have decided to place him on the blacklist, which will bar him from further participation in Coast League games. Scenes of such a character as that which occurred yesterday at Los Angeles hurt the game more than anything else, as the majority of people who attend the games do not go to the grounds to witness impromptu prizefights brought on by the uncontrollable temper of some rowdy ballplayer. Of course, Manager Morley will think that Flood has been too harshly dealt with, but my action is final, and the Los Angeles manager and public cannot induce me to again permit Flood to play in this League."

With Smith and Flood out of the game, the post-season series between Los Angeles and Tacoma looks like a walkover for the latter team. Smith has been suspended for the balance of the season.

WILL NOT LEAD FOOTBALL REFORM

President Eliott of Harvard Cannot See Why He Should Take Initiative.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 27.—President Elliott of Harvard, in an interview today, stated with considerable emphasis that he would not invite a meeting of university and college presidents to undertake the reform or abolution of football, as he was requested to do in a telegram sent him by Chancellor McCracken of New York University after the death of Harold P. Moore, right halfback of the Union College football team, Saturday night:

"As yet, I have not replied to Chancellor McCracken's telegram," said President Eliot, "and when I do so it will be by letter and not by telegraph. I shall not call a meeting of college and university presidents to discuss the football situation. I cannot see why such a movement should come from me."

"Possibly it is because you are the head of the greatest university in the country," suggested the reporter, "and, as such, your initiative in the matter would have greater weight than of any other college president."

"No," replied President Elliott," the movement should not come from me, but from a body of men representing the university—from the overseers and the corporation."

"Do you know whether such a movement will be made?"

"I know absolutely nothing about it," replied the president. "Storey has been credited with the intention of introducing a movment for the abolution of football in the Board of Overseers, but he denied to me that he had such intentions. He told the newspapers the same, but in spite of that fact they published the story."

It would appear from the above facts and from the remarks which President Elliott previously uttered in regard to the Harvard-Yale game that he is by no means so hostile to football as he is credited with being. Although he did not witness the contest on Saturday, he had good information in regard to its character, and said that he was satisfied that it was as satisfactory and free from objectionable features as it possibly could be under the present rules.

AMATEUR SOCKER DRAWS GOOD CROWD

Seven Hundred Spectators Saw Contests at Kulage Park Sunday Afternoon.

Seven hundred persons were present at Kulage Park Sunday afternoon to see the Hibernians and the Pilgrims play a tie game of socker football and the Innisfails defeat the Minstrels by the score of 1 to 0.

The games were bitterly contested and as interesting as any that have preceded them on the Kulage field thus far this season. The notable feature of the contests was the earnestness with which the young men played. There was not a dull moment during the contest, all displaying an ambition that is bound to result in some excellent football material being turned out this year.

The Hibernians-Pilgrims contest was the first on the program. It was a nip-and-tuck battle during the two halves, each side scoring two goals.

The feature of this game was a corner kick for a goal by young Cudmore, who shot the ball in between the posts from a difficult angle in the northwestern portion of the field.

The Innisfails-Minstrels contest was an interesting battle from start to finish. Both the elevens presented clean, lithe-looking youngsters in their line-ups, and the boys worked vigorously to score. Cummings counted the only goal, after some clever passing and dribbling by Brittingham and Clancy. Cosgrove, Shannon and Peterson distinguished themselves by some clever work.

DOUGLAS CALLS OFF MONDAY NIGHT'S BOUTS

No Attempt Will Be Made to Continue Interrupted Tourney.

Bob Douglas announced Monday morning that he would make no effort to hold the boxing bouts scheduled for Monday night at his gymnasium in the Burlington Building.

"I have been advised by my lawyers to go ahead with this entertainment for my members, but I do not care to do so in opposition to the wishes of Chief Kiely, who is a good friend of mine.

"His declaration, however, that medals are prizes, I do not agree with, and I will unite with the A. A. U. in making a test case at some date this week."

FIRE LADDIES STILL WINNING AT HANDBALL.

Pat Winters and Dick Shaughnessy, the handball experts of Engine No. 7, defeated Tom Sheridan and Lindsay in three straight games Sunday at the handball court, at Eighteenth and Rutger streets. The scores were 21-13, 21-12 and 21-7. Lonnie Fitzporter and Morris Collonna refereed the match, which was a return one. Sheridan and Lindsay have defeated the firemen the week previous.

Gerald Fitzgerald and Richard Grant, the boy champions of the city, defeated Frank Keiger and William Simpson, 21-10, 21-17 and 21-12. The champions also beat E. C. Miles and A. J. Freeman, the St. Louis University team, 21-5 and 21-7. They wound up the day's sport by defeating Henry Etlinger and John Bischoff of the Yeatman High School, 21-3, 21-5 and 21-2.

CHRISTIAN BROTHERS WILL PLAY ST. L. U.

First Athletic Game Between Big Colleges Will Take Place Saturday.

The initial games of the Basket Ball League, which has just been organized will begin today. Considerable interest will be evinced in the games, as each department of the college has a representative, and there is bound to be considerable rivalry.

AN ALL-EASTERN FOOTBALL ELEVEN

Center—Torrey of Pennsylvania.
Right half back—Morse of Yale.
Full back—Torney of West Point.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—With another Yale-Harvard game as a matter of history, the football players of many college teams have demonstrated their individual ability by which the members of a combined team is annually selected. West Point and Annapolis still have their battle before them and Pennsylvania will meet Cornell on Thanksgiving Day in Philadelphia, but all four of these elevens have gone through enough hard games to prove their worth.

The East has not played the West, so the merits of the players on the other side of the Alleghenies cannot justly be compared with those of Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania and the other teams in this section of the country, in order to make up an all-American eleven. But because of the intermingled schedules of the colleges in the East, an all-Eastern eleven can be selected of the players' demonstrated ability against each other.

Pennsylvania is represented by four players, Yale by three, Harvard by two and Dartmouth and West Point by one each. This does not signify that Pennsylvania is the strongest team, but in four out of the 11 positions on the Quaker team there were players who did better work than those in the same positions on other teams. Yale has won the championship of the season without the usual doubt, and nearly every one of her players has shown up true, tried and brilliant. She, however, excelled by team work in picking her players apart and comparing them with those on other teams; many of them suddenly cease to shine.

There are dozens of players whose work has made them worthy of consideration and the problem of eleminating all but eleven is a difficult one.

SOLDIER BOYS ON DANGER LINE

Battery A and First Regiment Will Clash on Gridiron Thanksgiving Morning.

The first annual football game between Battery A and First Regiment, N. M. G. will take place on Thanksgiving Day at League Park at 3 p. m., Nov. 30, 1905.

AUBERT TIGERS WILL PLAY WESTERN M. A.

The Aubert Tigers, the 130-pound champions of the city, wil play the Western Military Academy at Alton on Thanksgiving Day. The Auberts expect to be greatly outweighed, but they expect their fast playing to compensate for their lake of avoidupois.

The handball tournament will be inaugurated as soon as the Rugby season is closed. Teams will be chosen from each class and it is probable that the winners will contest against the victors in the M. A. C. tournament.

ISSUE CHALLENGE TO CENTRAL HIGH

Ferguson Players Give Version of Saturday's Intended Game.

According to Coach Goode Cabanne of the Ferguson Football team, it was something more serious than wet grounds and an absence of players that caused the Central High players to avoid the issue in the game scheduled between the teams last Saturday. Reports from the Central side had it that the checkerboard at Normandie, where the game was to have been played, was not of regulation size and was too wet to play. It was also stated that all the Ferguson players were not on hand.

Contradicting this, Cabanne says that his team, with six substtiutes, were on the field when Coach Walker and the Red and Black warriors arrived. He admits that the field is five yards short of the regulation length, but says that every inducement was offered the St. Louis boys to bring about a contest to satisfy the big crowd which had assembled.

The Ferguson players, it is said, offered to play a short game or only a practice game, anything to induce a contest, but Coach Walker would not consent. Cabanne says he was willing to bring his team to the city or to play on any field that Central might name.

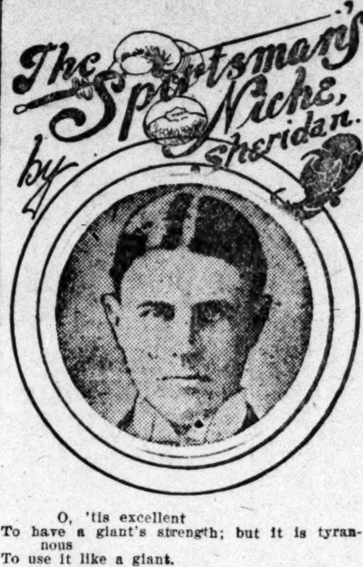
The Ferguson team's followers feel hurt over the impression given out by the reports of the affair in Sunday's papers. They broadly hint that the St. Louis boys were afraid to play.

As a result of this controversy the manager of the Ferguson team wishes to issue a challenge to Central for a game to be played on any field and at any time.

Players of the Central squad laugh at the charge that they were afraid to meet the Ferguson team. They state that the field upon which Ferguson wanted to play was muddy and covered with stones, which would have seriously injured them had they played. The field was only 95 yards in length, they claim.

Granite City Player Hurt.

Wesley Martin, cashier of the Granite City National Bank and manager of the football eleven of that town, had his collar bone broken Sunday afternoon in the second half of the game between the Granite City team and the East St. Louis Indians. The game was won by the Granite Citys, 11 to 6. This was the first time this year the Indians had been scored on. Martin is 28 years old.



The Sportsman's Niche, by Sheridan.

O, 'tis excellent
To have a giant's strength; but it is tyrannous
To use it like a giant.
Could great men thunder,
As Jove himself does, Jove would ne'er be quiet,
For every pelting, petty officer
Would use his heaven for thunder; nothing but thunder—
Merciful heaven!
Splits the unwedgeable and gnarled oak,
Drest in a little brief authority;
Most ignorant of what he's most assured,
His glassy essence—like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven,
As make the angels weep; who, with our spleens,
—Shakespeare, Measure for Measure.

The boxing laws have been misunderstood, misadministered, misapplied and mistaken. That boxing with gloves, in a private club, before bona fide members of the club, where no admission is charged, is legal, if not proper, cannot, I think, be contravened in court. That it is good or beneficial or proper or works for human welfare and the weal of the commonwealth, I do not propose to discuss here. I only assert my belief that boxing with gloves, whether done by amateurs of snow whiteness or professionals of boot blackness, before responsible, edificed, furnished private clubs like the M. A. C., strictly for members, no admission fee charged, the public barred, no decision rendered and no prize offered, is within the law and cannot legally be prevented.

Let us hope that the Missouri Athletic Club will, through its most capable attorney, for this case, Mr. Clifford E. Allen, once and for all, take and bring such action as will forever set the matter at rest. The M. A. C. is one of the very few legitimate athletic clubs in St. Louis.

It must not, and will not, oppose the law. But it is its duty to athletics to ascertain what the law in this case is, and having once ascertained it, to see that the police and the executive, as well as boxers and athletic clubs, obey it.

Lovers of amateur boxing do not want or care about the opinions of a policeman on boxing laws governing boxing or those of any man lower than a judge on the bench. They do not want police pronunciamentos. They want the law.

College professors, athletic managers and athletes have used 1,000,000 lines of good newspaper space in making denial of Ed Jordan's accusations made in his serial story, "Buying Football Victories." Talk is cheap. So far we have not heard of any of the bluffers suing the responsible paper which published the shameful charges for libel. If Jordan cannot prove his accusations, the accused can secure both vindication and money. Bring suit or shut up.

Odd how we apply and misapply names. Railroad men denominate the man who undersells them in the transportation line a scalper, while football managers call he who buys a ticket for $3 and sells it for $15 a scalpear also. He gets it going and coming.

There now, Miles J. Burke, there now. See what you "done" with your fight. And to make it worse you ring in about Bob Douglas not giving back the coin he copped at the door of the Bloomer Ball he pulled off Saturday night. Taking coin at the door for a boxing tournament? Tut, tut, Miles J., tut, tut! Nix with such breaks, nix.

Robert Lee Hedges—We do not accept news in confidence and not for immediate publication. In the past we have been fool enough to do such things, but experience has taught us that it does not pay. The trouble is that when a man gives out news in confidence his confidence is limited only by the numbera of reporters he meets. One of three is sure to laok honor and to split on the gang. We have been scooped on this confidential gag and we'll have none of it. When a man opens his trap to us and liberates a news item he can bet his life it will be in print and for sale in three shakes of a lamb's tail. We'll take our chances in the open.

Pity poor Dan Nichols, the boy who muffed the punt which gave Yale victory over Harvard on Saturday. Flunks in the classroom failures in business may be made up, retrieved and forgotten, but this poor lad is doomed to live his young life under the shadow of being pointed out as the man who muffed the punt which beat fair Harvard.

One thing the amateur boxers of St. Louis can congratulate themselves upon is that they did not, like the professionals, kill their own game. This is one case where the cry of the sports against the goody-goods holds water.

If we do not misapprehend Clarence F. Lloyd, the webfoot wonder who won a heat—but was not in the final—of the novice race at the M. A. C. aquatic meeting on Saturday night is the identical young gentleman who won a novice or other race at the Western Division A. A. U. championships at Laughlin's Lake last September. In any event, Don Clarencio jaunted the junk on the strength of it. By his constant competition in novice races after he has already won an open event entitles Master Lloyd to title of Perpetual Novice. But it is all right. Clar-r-rence is a nice boy and, being a ladies' man, he needs the medals in his business.

Since the late election in Ohio Garry Herman is not so strong as he once was. Too bad, too bad. Garry has been a good guy to the baseball reporters. He staked all the Cincinnati boys to ball clubs, J. E. Grillo to Toledo, C. W. Murphy to Chicago. If Mr. Robert E. Lee Hedges will take a gape about his eyes may light upon the deserving head of Mr. J. Ignatius Finnegan, paragon par "excellence" of baseball reporters and for some months the capable keeper of Rube Waddell when the latter was stainless of guilt as an actor through playing in "The Stain of Guilt."

JORDAN FLAYS MINNESOTA WAYS

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The University of Minnesota, her president, football coach, players and students, are put on the rack by Edward S. Jordan in the concluding article of his series on "Buying Football Victories," which will appear in next week's issue of Collier's Weekly. The article charges open collusion between the athletic department of the institution and that of "commercial Mineapolis." The chief indicement reads as follows:

"The University of Minnesota has entered into a co-operative football alliance with the commercial interests of Minneapolis. This insttiution has practically abandoned all other athletic interests because they could not be conducted on a paying basis. Every energy has been devoted to the production of a winning football team. When football in the West was a sane game, played by students, Minnesota met defeat until the season of 1900 found her willing to enter the campaign for victory as it was carried on by her Western rivals. Dr. Henry L. Williams, now one of the most able coaches in the West, came out from Pennsylvania to coach her team. He concocted a brand of victory during the first season that satisfied the college."

Merchants Otwn Team.

The article then states that following the defeat which Nebraska adminstered to the gophers in the second season of Williams' regime there came a demand for "Doc's" resignation from the Minnesota Alumni Magazine and from one of the Minneapolis newspapers. This was met, according to Jordan, by Col. Frank M. Joyce and Ikey" Kaufmann, business men of the city, who "purchased the entire edition of the offending magazine and silenced the critical newspaper."

Specific charges are made against Usher L. Burdick, a former end; Henry O'Brien, "Sunny' Thorp, Ed Rogers, the former Carlisle player; Irsfield, Hannan, "Hunky" Davies, Marshall, Case and Ittner. All of these players are accused of holding "snap" positions in either St. Paul or Minneapolis. The most startling instance relates to Davies, who, in the language of Jordan, "held a position in the State Capitol at St. Paul at $100 a month, but found it possible to leave his work in time to travel 10 miles to practice before 4 o'clock each day."

Granting that these instances explain nothing in themselves, Jordan makes the inquiry: "Can a football man attend the arduous daily practice, earn his way through college and still be a student?" This is the answer:

Football Men No Students.

"Minnesota has solved the problem of attendance through her 'night law school,' but the dean of that department answers the vital question. He declares that 'only about one-third of the football men can possibly maintain average standing,' and asserts that 'because the game as now played is prejudicial to the highest interests of the university, the faculty of this law school seems to stand as a unit in favor of its abolition.' "

These views, says Jordan, do not coincide with those of President Cyrus Northrop, who "can see no real demoralizing evil in the game of football." This is the only opinion favorable to the game which Jordan asserts has been received from 29 college presidents, to whom inquiries were sent.

"This is an example," comments the inquisitor, "of that laisser-faire faculty policy which today gives indirect countenance to dishonorable athletic practice."

Players "Pulled" to Win Bets.

The gambling end of the evil is said to be greater at Minnesota than any other institution. Jordan charges that the "lid" placed upon games of chance in the northern city has been lifted as far as betting upon football games is concerned, and operators upon the Board of Trade and cigar store owners reap rich harvests in consequence. How it has extended to the players and students is illustrated by a "gambling sell" in connection with the Beloit game of 1903, by which Jordan charges "Jimmy" Irsfield and Earl Lucas made a big "killing."

The betting on that game was on the basis of 10 touchdowns for Minnesota. Jordan charges that Irsfield and Luces, after Coach Williams had ordered the team to make a much smaller score and then practice place kicks, used their knowledge gained as players to make a safe bet, on the basis that Minnesota would not score the needed 10 touchdowns. The gamblers howled, "but a calloused collegiate conscience suffered no pang."

THINKS ST. LOUIS CAN BEAT IOWA

Barney Pelty Fancies That Local Elevens Will Dispose of Hawkeyes.

Barney Pelty, the Broawn's pitcher who is expected to aid Mr. Hedges' aggregation in bringing the 1906 pennant to St. Louis, will depart this evening for his home at Farmington, Mo.

His visit to St. Louis was for the express purpose of seeing the St. Louis University-Cape Girardeau game. Pelty's team played the latter eleven to a 0—0 score.

Pelty saw the Blue and White defeat Missouri State University, and predicts that Dowd's men will beat Iowa Thanksgiving Day by two touchdowns.

Y. M. C. A'S. MEET MOST SUCCESSFUL.

The indoor meet of the Y. M. C. A., held Saturday night, was the most successful held thus far this year. There was a larger attendance than heretofore and the events were more closely contested. Judging from the number of competitors in the different events, Dr. Wingert has aroused considerable enthusiasm among the members for indoor athletics. Summary:

100-yard dash—J. B. Leaton, first; J. E. Smith, C. H. Andrews and C. M. Frank, tied for second place. Time, 12s.

880-yard run—F. R. Millhouse; C. H. Andrews, second; C. R. Hess, third. Time, 2:21 3-5.

Running high kick—H. W. Gareschi, first; C. Cathcart, second; J. B. Leaton, J. B. Barth and R. Collins, third. Height, 8 feet 2 inches.

Nineteen Lives Sacrificed to College Game This Year—University Presidents State Opinions—Game Abolished at Two Institutions.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Nineteen lives are known to have been sacrificed in football this season, exceeding by six the record of 1903, while the number of casualties greatly surpassed that of any previous year. It is entirely probable that the list of injured would have been greatly lengthened if all small games had been reported. More deaths, too, might have been added, but the list is bad enough.

Of the 19 youths killed this season, 11 are high school players. Ten were boys of 17 and under, and three were seasoned college men, presumably fit for the rigors of the game. The list of severely injured will reach over 150, which exceeds all previous records by a score or more.

The first death on record of a feminine football player occurred during the season, the victim being Miss Bernadette Becker, 18 years old, daughter of a leading politician of Cumberland, Md. In a rough scrimmage among girls of her school she received injuries that developed into acute peritonitis.

Penn Faculty Acts.

Aroused by the appalling record of the year, a movement has been inaugurated by the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania to inject a taming spirit into the sport. The University of Pennsylvania came out today in favor of a strict revision of rules, and will seek the co-operation of all colleges throughout the country. Telegrams sent the Post-Dispatch New York Bureau by presidents of many of the colleges indicate hearty support of the movement.

Concussion of brain, 5; internal injuries, 4; fracture of the skull, 4; paralysis, 2; blood poisoning, 1; acute peritonitis, 1; spinal menigitis, 1; heart puncture, 1. Total, 19.

The death of Harold P. Moore of Ogdensburg, N. Y., last Saturday in this city will have the effect of abolishing the game at Union College, where he was a student. After the killing of Moore, Chancellor McCracken of the New York University, impressed that some stringent action should be taken against football brutality in the future, sent a telegram to President Eliot of Harvard, asking him to take the initiative. His telegram stirred the President up, but not in the direction the Chancellor had expected.

Nineteen Harvard Victims.

In President Eliot's university 19 men, including Theodore Roosevelt Jr., received injuries running the gamut from battered ears and flattened noses to fractured arms and legs.

President Wilson of Princeton expressed himself in sympathy with any revision of rules that will make football less dangerous. Princeton's record of casualties for the season comprised six men, the most serious injury being to C. Brown, 1908, whose collar bone was broken in practice.

The Columbia College faculty in this city is much exercised over the harsh treatment accorded the local men by the Pennsylvania players Saturday. They are talking of abolishing the game at Columbia. Douglas Carter, Columbia's fullback, is in a private sanitarium as a result of Saturday's scrimmage. He is suffering from the rare injury of a sprain of the spinal column.

President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California does not share the view held in many quarters that football is an excessively brutal game. "Football is a game for sturdy, well-developed men," said Dr. Wheeler. "Weaklings should not attempt it. However, a few slight changes might be made in the rules that would improve the game."

CHICAGO PADDLERS TO SWIM M. A. C.

Crack Y. M. C. A. Team From Windy City Will Splash Against Locals.

The Athletic Committee of the M. A. C. announced Monday morning that arrangements have been consummated to bring the crack Chicago Central Y. M. C. A. swimming squad to the M. A. C. Jan. 20, for a dual meet with the local club's swimmers. A special feature of the occasion will be a 220-yard swimming race between H. J. Handy, who holds so many world's records, and Marquard Schwarz, the local aquatic expert.

The water polo teams of the two clubs will also meet the same evening.

JIMMIE LEWIS CHALLENGES KIRK

Jimmie Lewis, who entered the Business Men's Gymnasium tournament for the purpose of meeting Oliver Kirk, is disappointed because the bout was not held as scheduled.

He is anxious to meet Kirk before any of the amateur organizations, and is out with a challenge to meet the Western amateur athletic union champion at 120 pounds, the bout to be for points. He also says that he will box Kirk for a good side bet if the latter is willing.

The breaking of an axle of hose wagon No. 1 resulted in injuries to Albert Aulbach, a pipeman, residing at 2856 South Eighteenth street, and Driver Tony Budshu. The wagon was being driven to a fire.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON
KING OF ALL DISEASES
To Contagious Blood Poison rightfully belongs the name King of all Diseases. It is the most powerful of all human ailments—corrupting every part of the body and wrecking and ruining the lives of those unfortunate enough to contract it. When the first sign appears in the form of an insignificant sore or ulcer, few persons realize that the deadly virus has entered the blood; but so potent is the poison that one drop will vitiate and pollute the purest and healthiest blood, and in a short time the degrading and horrible symptoms begin to appear. The mouth and throat ulcerate, the glands in the neck and groins swell, the hair and eye-brows fall out, copper-colored spots appear on the body, and in the latter stages of the disease the poison even works down and destroys the bones. No other disease is so highly contagious, and many have contracted it and suffered its awful consequences through a friendly hand-shake, handling the clothing of one afflicted with it, or drinking from the same vessel. S. S. S., The King of Blood Purifiers, is the only cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It goes down into the circulation and forces out every particle of the virus It is nature's antidote for this peculiar poison, and cures the disease in all its stages, and cures it permanently. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up any of the poison to break out in future years, but so completely eradicates it from the blood that no signs are ever seen again. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, we offer $1,000 for proof that it contains a particle of mineral of any kind. Book with instructions for home treatment and any medical advice you desire will be furnished by our physicians without charge.

VANDIVER NOT A CANDIDATE

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 27.—State Superintendent of Insurance, W. D. Vandiver, will not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1908. He has been credited with an ambition of that kind for some months past, but all doubt as to his intentions is set at rest in a letter written by him to the editor of the Benton, Scott County, Record, in which he declares that he not only is not and will not be a candidate, but that he is for Louis Houck of Cape Girardeau, railway builder, whom he considers most worthy to follow in the footsteps of Gov. Folk. In his letter to the Record Mr. Vandiver says:

"Noticing a paragraph in your paper of last week referring to a so-called Vandiver-Stephens alliance, I wish to assure you that neither Gov. Stephens nor Col. Paul Moore, nor any one else has mentioned the subject to me nor I to any of them.

"I have never tried to be a political boss and I never expect to be one. I have always condemned anything like trafficking in the political rights of the people.

"Furthermore, in order to be perfectly understood, although it is early to talk about candidates for Governor, I have no objection to making my preference known. Some of the papers in our district have connected my name with it and also the name of another Southeast Missourian. Permit me to say emphatically that I am for Hon. Louis Houck as the Democratic nominee for Governor in 1908, and there need be no division of sentiment in Southeast Missouri between his friends and mine. I take this occasion to say that, having some acquaintance with the public men of our country, I do not know another man who unites in himself so many of the qualities that make up a great character. If judged by his attainments in law, literature, science, politics and business all combined, he is the biggest man in the State of Missouri, and I do not hesitate to say there is no position from sheriff of the county up to the presidency of the United States that he could not fill with credit and efficiency; and if he can be persuaded to take the governorship nomination in 1908, I will make as hard a fight for him as I did for Gov. Folk in the last campaign.

"He has done more for Southeast Missouri than any doen of the rest of us put together, and he has demonstrated that he has courage, fidelity and administrative ability that would warrant any Southeast Missourian in feeling proud of his achievements. I would be glad if every newspaper in Southeast Missouri would urge upon him the duty of consenting to become our candidate in 1908."

COMMON FAITH SOUGHT.

Dr. Niccolls Defends Action of Church Conference.

Defense of the basis and aims of the recent conference on church federation was offered in a sermon preached at Second Presbyterian Church Sunday by Rev. Dr. S. J. Niccolls, the author of the resolution by which Unitarians and Universalists were debarred from the conference.

Dr. Niccolls said objections to the limitations which his resolution placed on the conference arose from "a misunderstanding on the part of some as to the aim of the conference." This, he declared, was not humanitarian or civic, but was the promotion of the union of churches in a common faith.

Police Find Sunday Keg.

Leo Dudo, proprietor of a saloon at 1441 North Twenty-first street, was arrested Sunday by Policemen Aylward and Grogan, charged with violating the Sunday law. The policemen claim that they entered the saloon and found a keg of beer on tap in the hallway between the saloon and Budo's residence next door, and that a party of men were drinking beer in the Budo residence, opening into the hallway. Budo was released on bond after having been cited to appear before Excise Commissioner Mulvihill.

SENSATIONAL RISE IN TENNESSEE COAL

Enormous Buying in This Security on Meager Rumors Lifts It $11 Per Share, and Under This Influence the Entire List Closes Higher.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Stocks opened active and higher today, with heavy buying orders distributed throughout the list. The specialties showed wide advances and the tone of the trading was confident.

Speculative sentiment both locally and abroad shows signs of improvement, the excellent bank statement of Saturday being the favorable influence. London prices on Americans were firm and moderate buying is expected from that market today.

Local news is unimportant. The comments of the local Sunday press were conservatively bullish.

General News.

The speculative atmosphere has no doubt been vastly clarified by the improved position of the local banks, and it is generally believed in well-informed circles that the turning point in the money market has been reached. The year end requirements may cause an excessive rate for a few days around the first of the year, but by the 10th of January very easy rates are looked forward to. Rock Island issues continue to be a disturbing element, and liquidation on a heavy scale in both the common and preferred stock was noticeable during today's session. The rumor is still current that the dividend on the preferred stock is shortly to be passed, but this report is discredited in well-informed circles. The independent steel stocks continue to absorb a large proportion of the professional buying and an announcement of an official character relative to the terms of the merger involving many of these properties is expected shortly. Copper stocks are conspicuously strong in Boston and Amalgamated was one of the features of today's trading. Predictions are that last year's high record of copper exports will this year be broken, while the association controlling prices is finding difficulty in keeping the price of the raw metal down at the present level. Steel and iron trade reports continue favorable, and orders for finished products are still ahead of production. The purchases of pig iron in the open market to date by the U. S. Steel corporation aggregate 700,000 tons. The Agricultural Department puts the total value of farm products for the year 1905 at $6,415,000,000, or 4 per cent more than the valuation in 1904.

WHEAT VALUES VERY STEADY

OTHER GRAINS ARE QUIET

Corn Prices Irregular and the Trade in Oats Is Light.

Despite a number of bearish influences the wheat market today had a firm undertone and the close was at a slightly higher price level. Commission houses were better buyers than in some time past and pit traders and professionals were less bearish.

Among the bearish influences were liberal receipts in the Northwest, indifferent cables and large shipments, especially from Russia.

Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported 1282 cars against 1327 cars last week and 1413 cars one year ago. Winnipeg had 451 cars against 406 one year ago. Minneapolis stocks increased 200,000 bu for the two days of the current week.

World's shipments showed:

WORLD'S SHIPMENTS.

Wheat—This week, 13,312,000 bu; last week, 13,680,000 bu; last year, 11,880,000 bu; two years ago, 10,328,000 bu. Corn—This week, 3,493,000 bu; last week, 4,087,000 bu; last year, 2,867,000 bu; two years ago, 4,212,000 bu.

Grain on passage—Wheat, increased 2,643,000 bu; corn increased 1,137,000 bu.

Foreign markets were quiet, Liverpool closing unchanged on wheat and 3d lower on corn. Berlin wheat closed unchanged and Budapest at an advance of ⅝c. Paris prices were steady.

The visible supply figures were negative, showing:

VISIBLE GRAIN SUPPLY.

Wheat—Today, 36,137,000 bu; last year, 35,595,000 bu; increase, 542,000 bu. Corn—Today, 5,252,000 bu; last year, 1,853,000 bu; increase, 3,399,000 bu. Oats—Today, 26,915,000 bu; last year, 24,232,000 bu; increase, 2,683,000 bu.

VISIBLE SUPPLY GRAIN CHANGES.

Oats, increase	572,000	*92,000

*Decrease.

Sentiment in the corn market was bearish on account of the clear weather in the West, but the price range was narrow. Oats were quiet but steady in the face of liberal receipts and a light speculative demand.

Local Money.

Indorsed bills receivable, 4 to 6 months, 5¼ to 5½ per cent; high-grade, single-name paper, 4 to 6 months, 5¼ to 5½ per cent; other names not so well known, 5½ to 6 per cent. Call money on good security, 5 per cent. Banks report good business; rates steady.

Paid $12 for $5.

A warrant charging usury was issued Monday against Harry Palmer, a money lender with an office in the De Menil Building, on complaint of George W. Flowers, a telegraph operator living at 3614 Nebraska avenue. Flowers was paralyzed six months ago and is unable to leave his bed. His deposition accompanied the application for the warrant. He alleges that he borrowed $5 from Palmer two years ago and that since then he has paid 50 cents a month interest, a total of $12. He says that Palmer still claims that $5 is due him.

The sales of the Post-Dispatch in St. Louis each day are greater than the number of St. Louis homes.

PERKINS TOOK COMMISSION ON OWN INSURANCE

THE M'CURDYS ARE OUT

Trustees Decline to Consent to the Halving of Their Monster Salaries.

BIG GUNS ARE RESIGNING

Son and Son-in-Law of Mutual Company's President Follow His Lead.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—George W. Perkins, vice-president of the New York Life Insurance Co., and member of J. P. Morgan X Co., was the first witness called before the Legislative Life Insurance Investigating Committee today. He testified that he was insured in the New York Life Insurance Co. to the amount of $310,000. Some of the policies he held were taken out when he was an agent of the company. On six of them the commissions amounted to $318, and he received these commissions from the agent.

In explaining the testimony of last Friday, when the statement was made by a witness that $56,720 was paid to Andrew Hamilton, "the legislative insurance generalissimo," by J. P. Morgan & Co., George W. Perkins testified that in 1901 J. P. Morgan & Co. paid $56,720 to the Central National Bank and the New York Security and Trust Co.

This payment was made, he said, upon the request of President McCall of the New York Life, to take up loans to Edwin E. McCall and Andrew Hamilton, which those institutions had made at the request of President McCall.

The McCurdys Resign.

Richard McCurdy, president of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., has resigned. The date of his resignation depends only on the time required by the trustees to find his successor.

The Investigating Committee did not accept McCurdy's offer to cut his salary in half, because such acceptance would have pledged them to a continuance of the McCurdy regime. Quickly following the retirement of President McCurdy, his son, Robert H. McCurdy, general manager of the Mutual, and his son-in-law, Louis A. Thebaud, the favored general agent for New York, have resigned. Each of these three men has been drawing approximately $150,000 a year in salaries and commissions from the company besides their indirect profits in financial transactions with Mutual money.

A tentative offer to head the company was made to James B. Forgan, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, who once was an Equitable director. His bank is one of the leading financial institutions of the Middle West. Mr. Forgan declined to consider the offer.

Throughout the long preliminary exposure of Equitable corruption the McCurdy's kept aloof from the insurance mire. Not until the Legislative Committee got after the venerable president was the worse condition existing in the Mutual brought to light. Like President Alexander of the Equitable, McCurdy has retired to his home, ill and suffering from his exposure.

Expert accountants employed by Truesdale, Auchincloss and Fish, the special committee named by the trustees, are diving into every financial transaction of the McCurdy regime. High officers are being summoned before the committee to explain the system of using policy holders' money for private advantage. The trustees are cleaning house, but not without opposition among their own number, for not all the members approve the thorough work of the committee that is determinedly going to the bottom. So far a considerable majority has sustained their moves.

TOWN HAS PARK, BUT NO SALOON

Churches, Postoffice and Other Modern Improvements in Future for Village.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BIRCH, Mich., Nov. 27.—Not a church, saloon, school or place of amusement has this town, but it can boast of a park and a population of 300, which is growing and is expected to reach 400 in the spring.

Birch was unheard of five months ago. Where the town stands the woodman's ax had never descended. The first tree for the first house was felled on May 27, 1905, and since then over $100,000 has been spent clearing the land and erecting buildings. The pay roll of the Northern Lumber Co., which has erected a mill here, and various buildings for the town, is $15,000 a month. The saw mill is three stories high and modern, costing over $20,000, and machinery has been ordered for spring delivery for a shingle and tie mill.

A postoffice will be opened next month when the Marquette & Southeastern Railroad begins regular service.

The company owns 21,000 acres of solid timber land, the estimated stumpage being over 300,000,000 feet, not including timber which goes into ties, posts, poles, pulpwood, bark and other products. Employment will be furnished to hundreds for years.

LAW FOR PUBLICITY TO GROW FROM SCANDAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Probably the most tangible result of the insurance investigation in New York will be some sort of corrupt practices act to require publicity for all expenditures and contributions for Federal elections throughout the country.

Within a few days Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican National Committee will have ready a complete list of all contributions made through him in the last national campaign. As a result of the revelations in New York, the Postmaster-General, after consultation with the President, is preparing to show up his books and he will probably go on record as favoring some sort of law or a political custom which will prevent such contributions.

MEMORY OF PET DOG SURVIVES IN GLAMOR OF FAME AND RICHES

Mrs. Fiske, Who Left "Shakey" in St. Louis in Her Girlhood Twenty Years Ago Makes Silent Search for Friend Who Cared for It.

PERSONAL—Information wanted of Emma Dow, who 20 years ago gave a home to the dog "Shakey;" if whereabouts known, please send information to Mrs. Emma Gates Fox, 2310 Wash st., St. Louis. (7)

The above advertisement, published in Saturday's Post-Dispatch, represents a very earnest effort on the part of Mrs. Fiske, whom so many St. Louisans have seen this past week in "Leah Kleschna," at the Garrick, to ascertain the fate of a beloved dog that was a pet of hers during her girlhood days in this city.

It also represents a sincere endeavor on Mrs. Fiske's part to avoid publicity in so doing, for in every way possible the great actress, who is averse to personal stories concerning herself, sought so to have the inquiry conducted that there should be no remote likelihood of her connection with the search becoming known.

Because of this desire to escape personal notice, the advertisement was inserted in the name of another, and this other was placed under promise not to reveal the fact that it was in Mrs. Fiske's behalf that the inquiry was being conducted. The promise was faithfully kept.

The advertisement itself, however, so naturally indicated an uncommon and interesting story behind it that a Post-Dispatch reporter was sent out to see Mrs. Emma Gates Fox, the advertiser, at the address given, and learn why and by whom this strange investigation of the fate of a dog of 20 years ago was instituted. Something of the story itself was learned as a result of this visit—but nothing as to the identity of the person behind the advertiser, save that once or twice, inadvertently, Mrs. Fox mentioned the name of "Minnie" in speaking of the former owner of the dog.

This is what was learned:

The Story of the Dog.

Something like 20 years ago a black-and-tan dog named Shakspeare was owned by a girl then living in St. Louis. He was the pet of the girl's family and had been given the name of Shakspeare for antithetical reasons—he was so stupid and happy that the name was laughable when attaced to him. But his pet name was "Shakey."

The day came when duty made it necessary for Shakspeare's owner to leave St. Louis. The conditions were such that she could not take her beloved dog with her. She looked long and solicitously for a good home in which to place him.

Finally a woman whose name was Emma Dow volunteered to care for "Shakey," and promised that she would be good to him. The dog was placed in her charge and its former owner went away. But she did not forget the little black-and-tan—no, not even in 20 years' time.

During that time a strange and great good fortune came to the girl who had been obliged to leave her dog behind her in St. Louis. A rich talent with which God had blessed her was developed to its fullest and she became a very famous woman. Her name was known to all the world because of the great gift that was hers, and with fame came also wealth and the content of the exercise of her genius. But always at heart she remained the little girl who had so dearly loved the black-and-tan dog here in St. Louis.

Clews to the Solution.

Hence the advertisement in Saturday's Post-Dispatch.

The story as told above, with the name of the dog's owner carefully withheld, was so interesting that the Post-Dispatch reporter could not but speculate as to the identity of the dog's owner, the little girl who had loved "Shakey" so tenderly, and who had afterward grown into so famous a woman. And then three coincidental facts impressed themselves upon the reporter's mind.

A dog christened Shakspeare might quite logically be supposed to have had an owner inclined toward the stage. The girl named Minnie, who lived in St. Louis 20 years ago and had since become famous—surely that could well be Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske. And the third fact, that of Mrs. Fiske's being in St. Louis at the time the curious advertisement appeared—what more natural than that, during such a visit, she should prosecute the inquiry into the fate of her beloved dog?

Straightway the reporter went to the Garrick Theater. The fourth act of "Leah Kleschna" had just reached its close and the crowded house was ringing with applause.

There, through Mrs. Fiske's manager, an inquiry forwarded to the actress as to whether she had not owned a dog named "Shakey" during her girlhood days in St. Louis, was answered in the affirmative, and the story thus became complete.

The advertisement had been published because she was solicitous to learn the facts concerning "Shakey's" fate, and also to express anew to Mrs. Dow her gratitude for the care bestowed on the dog.

And thus becomes it known why and by whom information is "wanted of Emma Dow, who 20 years ago gave a home to the dog 'Shakey.'" The loyal-hearted little girl who loved the dog "Shakey" and who has since become the famous actress, Mrs. Fiske, desires the information.

VERDICT AT OUTRAGE.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 27.—So indignant was Judge Lynch in court when a jury acquitted a man charged with attempted assault on a woman that he ordered the clerk to read the names of the 12 jurors, and then forever debarred them from doing jury duty in Luzerne County.

The judge said the verdict, in the face of the evidence, was an outrage.

THE OLD WAY AND THE NEW

Some Important Facts Which May Prove Helpful.

Thirty years ago old-fashioned cod liver oil had to be forced down a patient's throat. Invalids couldn't take it, and children wouldn't. But the doctors prescribed it, and it had to be taken by force. Yet when enough could be taken into the system it was beneficial, for it has ever been the greatest of all tissue-builders and general reconstructors known to medicine.

We are now anxious to have every one know that Vinol is a new form of this very old and valuable remedy, cod liver oil. It contains in a concentrated form all the medicinal elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' liver, but by a new process it is made without oil or grease, and it is as delicious to the taste as a fresh orange.

Vinol does not upset the stomach like old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions; its strengthening and healing properties are remarkable, and both doctors and patients are delighted with its action.

Many wonderful cures right here in St. Louis have been effected by its use, and we ask all of our customers to try Vinol on our guarantee to turn money every time it fails to make rich, red blood, increase the appetite, cure stomach troubles, give strength and renewed vitality to the aged, run-down, tired and debilitated, or cure chronic colds, hacking coughs or bronchitis. ALL READY FOR SPAUGH TRIAL

Brothers Who Killed Sheriff Polk of Ironton Last May Will Answer.

A THREATENING LETTER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

IRONTON, Mo., Nov. 27.—The trial of the Spaugh brothers, Bill and Arthur, charged with the murder of Sheriff Polk last May, is set for today in Centerville, the county seat of Reynolds County, about 30 miles from Ironton, the nearest railroad station.

The Ironton contingent began to move to Centerville Sunday morning.

Fifty persons started on the all-day drive early Sunday morning. Every county officer, 27 witnesses and the attorneys were in the delegation. Many others will go during the week.

Threats in Letter.

Just before leaving Ironton for Centerville, Mayor William R. Edgar received a leter, stating that unless he withdrew from the prosecution of the case, "we will blow up Ironton." The letter was signed "Thieves," and was full of threats as to what would happen to Mayor Edgar, Ironton and its citizens in general.

The letter was mailed in St. Louis Saturday afternoon. Mayor Edgar was formerly Prosecuting Attorney of Iron County and has frequently prosecuted the Spaughs on various charges.

The killing of Sheriff Polk last May originated over an assault committed by the Spaughs against young Will Edgar. Mayor Edgar assisted Prosecuting Attorney Dameron in the hearing before the Coroner's jury, and has been connected with the prosecution of the murder case against the Spaughs.

The Spaughs, Bill, Arthur and their mother, arrived in Centerville Sunday afternoon. There was no mob and no attempt at violence at any stage of the journey. The letter which was sent from Pilot Knob last week, and which seemed to be a warning of an attempt at lynching the Spaughs on their road to trial, had the effect of producing strict vigilance on the part of the officers, and a heavy guard accompanied the two prisoners and their mother on the last stage of the trip across 20 miles of country.

Few persons in Ironton knew when or how the journey was to be made from St. Louis to Centerville. Rumor at Ironton had it that a half dozen different trains had been taken by Sheriff Jordan and his charges, and hardly a soul knew when the party passed through the town early Sunday morning.

May Ask Continuance.

There are many rumors that there will be a continuance asked for by the Spaughs. They claim that a traveling man, who was passing the Spaugh house at the time of the killing of Sheriff Polk, is an important witness for the defense, and they have not obtained service on him. His home is said to be in Indiana His name has not heretofore appeared in the case.

Little difficulty is anticipated in securing a jury. Judge J. G. Williams of De Soto, Judge of the Twenty-first Judicial District, will preside at the trial. The Spaughs' case is third on the docket and there is a possibility that another murder case will be tried before the Spaughs case.

Prosecuting Attorney Dameron is assisted by Mayor William R. Edgar and by John Raney of Wayne County. The Spaughs are to be defended by J. A. Finch of St. Louis, Joseph Williams of De Soto, D. L. Rivers of Elvins, Adrain Steel of Ironton and W. O. Frazier of Hillsboro.

FINDS ODD BEANSTALK.

Large as the Kind Jack Used to Climb.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 27.—Friends of O. A. Nunum, a well-known farmer living in Warren County, southwest of the city declares that he has discovered the type of bean referred to in the story of "Jack and the Beanstalk." Mr. Nunum came to town with a monster stalk of a plant that he called a mole bean. It resembles the castor bean. This stalk, which was only the part below the main fork, was eight feet high. Mr. Nunum says that two branches ten to twelve feet long grew from the stalk, thus making the total height of the plant 18 or 20 feet.

ORANG-UTAN, APOLLO, PINES FOR ATTENTION.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Zoo's new orang-utan, Apollo, reports of whose ill-health have been circulated persistently of late, is not thought by the authorities to be in nearly so bad a condition as has been imagined.

When he arrived from Singapore in September he certainly looked very chastened and was weak. But during the last week or two he has picked up wonderfully.

On paying a visit to him, the Post-Dispatch correspondent found him in a far corner huddled in straw. But soon, realizing that he was holding a reception, Apollo rose, stretched his arms languidly and shuffled to the front of his cage.

He picked up a straw and chewed it slowly, still with a fixed expression. "He wants appreciation; all the orang-utans do," said a curator of the Zoological Society. "They are less hardy and more sensitive than other apes. There is something in their nature which corresponds to the artistic instinct in a human being. Look at his soulful eyes."

Apollo has not yet developed any particular hobby. He only climbs about his cage, chews straws and thinks hard.

Apollo is an exceptionally hairly orang-utan, and he has not yet began to take a pride in his personal appearance. He combs his hair now and then but on the whole he keeps himself in a very unkempt condition.

ROSE BLOOMS ARE BEST RAT BAIT

OAKLAND, Col., Nov. 27.—The use of choice roses as rat bait is perhaps unworthy and degrading from the point of view of the horticulturist, but experiments conducted in the home of Mrs. Alice Proctor, near Haywards, have shown conclusively that these flowers completely surpass cheese, bacon rinds and all other edibles that are commonly used to entice the rodents into traps.

Attracted by their sweet perfumes, the rats in the Proctor household gnawed through doors to get at the flowers. They despised traps set with ordinary bait, and it was only when a bunch of dainty Augusta Victorias was placed inside of a wire cage that one of them was at last caught.

For a time the mysterious disappearance of roses that had been placed in the sick room of Mrs. Proctor was considered uncanny and almost supernatural, but evidence soon showed that the thefts were done by rats. Traps were then set near the flowers and baited with the choicest morsels, but without avail.

At last it occurred to H. Y. Smith, a friend of the family, that the roses themselves would be the best bait, and his suggestion to that effect was carried out. A beautiful garland of fresh white roses was placed inside the trap. The trap snapped before long, and within it was found a large rat, choked by the fall of the spring, but with a mouthful of snowy petals.

SMUGGLES FIANCEE TO PRISONER SON

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 27.—Trembling with fear over the probable fate that is awaiting her sons, who are charged with robbing the bank at Willard, Ky., several weeks ago, Mrs. Martha Stamper of Cincinnati paid a visit to the boys, Charles and Stephen Stamper, in the Lexington Jail.

She was accompanied by a comely young woman of about 19 years, whom she introduced to Jailor Robert Wallace as her daughter, but to a friend at the jail Charles Stamper admitted that the girl was not his sister, but his life-long sweetheart.

When the men were first brought to this city for safe keeping by the jailor of Carter County, Charles Stamper stated to Jailor Wallace that he feared his arrest and the crime with which he was charged would reach the ears of his little sweetheart in Cincinnati, and that it would cause her to forget him, but from the visit of the stranger today and the admissions by the young man it is believed she has promised to remain loyal to him.

HUNTERS ATTACKFARMER

ASHLAND, Ky., Nov. 27.—Stout Clayton, a well-to-do farmer, who resides near this city, was assaulted by two hunters who were trespassing on his farm. He approached the men and asked them to leave his land, saying it was posted.

Mr. Clayton is a cripple, having lost a hand while at work in a key factory, and when one of the men aimed a blow at him with his gun, he threw up his crippled arm, which was struck a heavy blow and broken below the elbow. The second man struck Mr. Clayton over the head, making a bad wound, and when he started to run one of the men fired a shotgun, filling his back full of shot.

STRONG LAD WEEPS OVER LONG HAIR

Father Who Wanted Girl Refuses Boy Violinist Visit to the Barber.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 27.—Harry Sanford, the 10-year-old son of John Sanford, a farmer residing near this city, is a maiden, if one judges by long curly locks.

When Harry came into this world his papa was very angry because Harry was not a girl. And so, to be revenged, he declared that Harry should never have his hair cut. He has kept his word.

Harry's hair has now attained a length of 36 inches. But this isn't the only remarkable thing about Harry. Like Sampson of old, with his long locks, Harry has the strength of a giant, and, like Paderewski, of the chrysanthemum wig, he is a wonder with the violin.

The great sorrow of Harry's life is his hair. The other boys pull it and call him "Sissy," and he hasn't a moment's peace. He begs his father every day to use the scissors, but the stern parent is obdurate. The best that Harry gets is the privilege of tucking his long locks down under the back of his shirt.

DR. LEE ON HERESY.

Enthusiasm in the service at which Dr. Lee preached his farewell sermon to the congregation of St. John's M. E. Church South Sunday was increased by the news that Rev. Dr. H. S. Bradley, who is to be Dr. Lee's successor, had been acquitted in Atlanta, Ga., of the charge of heresy.

Alluding to the charges against his successor in his sermon, Dr. Lee said: "Time will come when they will cease to try men for heresy on some little intellectual point. The heretic will be the man who has got a whole lot of money and of opportunity, and doesn't help anybody but himself. The time will come when they will try such a man for heresy, and that will be the only kind of heresy."

A testimonial signed by the Board of Stewards of the church was presented to Dr. Lee after the sermon. A reception will be held for Dr. and Mrs. Lee Wednesday night.
